First confirmed case of bacterial meningitis found in residence hall

Chris Clayton
News Editor

The freshman who was the first confirmed case of bacterial meningitis at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville is said to be in excellent condition and was to be released on Wednesday.

The woman, 18, first became ill on Friday morning and received a diagnosis from Anderson Hospital in Maryville of meningitis, SIUE spokesman Sam Smith said.

Smith said, that after learning it was meningitis, she was transferred to St. Louis University Hospitals, where she was placed in the intensive-care-unit until Sunday. She responded well to treatment.

He said that within hours of finding out it was meningitis the student's roommate and friends from the residence hall were immunized by the SIUE health service, along with her teammates on the volleyball team and other personnel from the athletic department.

At least 20 to 25 people received shots, and fliers circulated Friday warning residents of housing to be alert for the symptoms, Smith said.

"There have been no further reported cases at this time," Smith said.

Symptoms include fever, severe and persistent headache, muscle aches, stiffness of the neck, a rash of small purplish-red dots, nausea and vomiting, confusion or difficulty awakening from sleep.

If anyone experiences these symptoms, they are urged to seek medical treatment immediately.

Student Senate discusses funding problems

By Bethany Behrhorst
For The Alestle

Many questions and answers were addressed at the Student Government meeting held on January 17 at 2:30 p.m. in the Goshen Lounge in the University Center.

A major topic discussed was the implementation of the new Oracle computer hardware system currently being used at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale.

The new system will cost SIUE 1 million dollars.

According to Randy Hobson, student senator and member of the University Planning and Budget Council, there is no need for this new system. The Oracle system is designed for the 20th century. Hobson said the main problem will erupt in the year 2000. The program is an information gathering system designed to contain information about employees.

"Our systems can be upgraded without spending millions of dollars. We don't need Oracle," he said.

Hobson said Carbondale originally had a problem with their computer systems and looked to the Oracle program to solve these problems, however, they over-extended their budget.

"They were going to do it on their own, but due to lack of enrollment and budget problems they couldn't," he said. "There was no money set aside by SIUE to do this."

The Oracle program is designed for human resources and other management systems. The money to fund this project will have to come from existing funds.

"Other major universities have it, and it's successful for them, but it's extremely expensive. It's like the Cadillac or Lincoln of computer systems," Hobson said. "If we had the extra millions maybe this would be the way to go."

Hobson said he thinks that if the 1 million dollars is taken out over the next several years, it will be at the expense of the momentum that the University has established.

Another issue discussed at the meeting was the Lawyer faults pilots in USAir jet crash

SOUTH CAROLINA (AP)— A lawyer pushing a negligence suit told jurors Tuesday that a USAir jet crashed in 1994 because its crew tried to outrun a thunderstorm.

The DC-9 had taken off from Columbia and crashed near Charlotte, N.C., killing 37 people. Twenty survived.

USAir has blamed air traffic controllers, saying they never told the plane's pilots about the storm.

But James Orr, the lawyer for those suing, said in his opening statement that the pilots "...took a risk. They thought they could make it. Unfortunately, they could not."

Wartime gold is said to be Nazi loot

SWEDEN (AP)— Press accounts say Sweden accepted 38 tons of gold from World War II Germany—even though the Nazis may have looted most of it.

After the war, Sweden returned about 14 tons of presumably looted gold to Belgium and the Netherlands. But all the gold that Germany sold after early 1943 is believed to have been from the looted stockpile.

A paper and radio station in Stockholm reported the 38-ton figure Tuesday. The inquiry is separate from one started last month by Sweden's central bank.

Road kill still edible

MONTICELLO, Ill. (AP)—When a deer is killed along one of Piatt County's highways, people like Raymond Burke make sure all that venison doesn't go to waste.

"It's a shame to throw something like that out," says Burke, one of several people Piatt County authorities call to collect road-killed deer.

"You get some roasts out of it. We take loins and butterfly them out. We bone out the ribs and grind some pork with it for meatloaf. We've eaten it all."

State law allows drivers to take deer they hit on the highway, as long as they call the Department of Natural Resources to report the accident. Those deer unclaimed by drivers may go to anyone who claims them.

Venison from road-killed deer may not be sold, but it may be given away. Road-killed deer that are not claimed by drivers often go to local food pantries or other programs to feed the needy.

In some areas like Piatt County where deer are plentiful, authorities keep lists of people experienced in handling deer carcasses. In other counties, the procedure is less formal.

"Usually the person who hits the deer either wants it or knows someone who does," Capt. Robert Cannon of the Vermilion County Sheriff's Department said. "One thing I've noticed is that people with scanners will hear about these accidents and will call up wanting it. That happens a lot."

The quality of the meat varies, depending on the condition of the deer and where it was hit. Deer struck in the head generally have most of their meat intact, while hits to the hindquarters bruise or destroy some prime cuts.

Decisions, Decisions, Decisions

Commentary By:
Melanie Adams
Editor In Chief

There comes a time in everyone's life that he/she has to make a decision that may affect someone else.

Whether it is something as simple as what to make for dinner or something as complicated as what to do with the rest of your life, what you do effects someone else.

I learned this the hard way not too long ago. I had to make a decision that seemed like a no-brainer. I gave my answer and sat back to see what would happen.

I saw quite rapidly what would happen. People got upset. Lesson learned.

I wonder if the President and the rest of the U.S. Government has learned this lesson yet.

With all of the Ethics Committee hearings and scandals, a person begins to think that they are a little clueless in this department.

We have entrusted these people with the power to make decisions that will effect every person's life in the United States.

I can't help but think that if they don't even consider the consequences when it comes to decisions they make in their personal lives, such as taking illegal campaign contributions or having extra-marital affairs, then how can they make decisions for other people?

Also, most of them are too busy drudging up things about each other and pointing fingers at the other party to even think about the public and the best plan of action for running the country.

Sure, they talk a good game during inaugural time. Sure, they say that both sides want bipartisanship. But what will happen when the "honeymoon" is over?

We have all heard the call of bipartisanship before. We have all seen them smile at each other and say that they are going to band together and run the nation, that they will play nice. But how many of us actually believe it anymore?

Will this time around be any different? Maybe, or maybe not. In the next four years, though, I guess we will find out.

Procrastinate, why should I wait?

Commentary by:
Chris Clayton,
News Editor

Why is it when everyone needs something done they decide to wait to do it at the last minute?

Even though it is the beginning of the new semester, I find that myself, and other people, are already beginning to procrastinate.

All of that reading that has been assigned can wait till later can't it? That paper for class? Shoot, it can at least wait till midnight. I mean, it is actually nice outside and this is January so why not go outside and enjoy the weather?

As I write this I begin to wonder why it is we put off what really needs to be done till the last minute? Was it always this way or has it just happened in the last few years?

I think that now with fast food, remote controls, the internet (I admit, I am a junkie), word processors and other things that make our life so easy have actually made us so dependent on them that we wouldn't know what to do if they weren't there.

Continuing to ramble on, isn't it strange how without a remote control you can't even change the channel on your VCR or set the clock? Why is this? It is to keep us dependent upon the technology that we all hold dear.

Another instance of our lifestyle causing us to procrastinate is the internet. With e-mail, we can write a letter to someone and get an immediate response. Nothing wrong with the speed, but it causes us to expect things to come quickly and when they don't, we are upset or aggravated at the person you mailed. By using the Postal Service, you know that you will have to wait for a response. When it comes, it is a surprise and much more enjoyable.

I'm far from being anti-technology, or claim to be one who takes times to do things the correct way. I'm just saying that we need to realize that time is a precious commodity and sometimes the best way to use time is not to use it all at once trying to catch up. Instead, spread out what needs to be done over a period of time and enjoy the moments rather than rushing through them.

What ever happened to the philosophy of 'One nation under God?'

Commentary by:
Ty Norris
Assistant Lifestyle Editor

Words are powerful. They allow us to construct speeches, vows and creeds. For this cause, it is imperative that our words do not weave a web which could ensnare us.

For example, if we are "one nation under God" why do we not seek his counsel or guidance on the laws and decisions we make? Maybe I'm wrong, but if something, or someone, is over you, wouldn't they have supreme rule in your life?

Also, when the President is being inaugurated and repeats his vows, does he not conclude with "so help me God"? Well, in my opinion, many of our presidents do not actually seek God's help, just pick up any history book and you'll see my point. More often than not, they have gone by society's standards when making decisions. So why say "so help me God" when you are going to do it your way anyhow?

If we, as the American people, are living in a land where there is justice and liberty, why the need for civil rights and civil liberties?

The characteristics of a nation under God would probably possess the characteristics of their leader. What are they? "Love, joy, peace, faith, meekness, goodness, gentleness, and temperance, against such there is no law.

Who sets the standards for what is right and what is wrong? Do we, as the American people?

We already don't fully trust one another, and what is so sad about it is that everyone really needs everyone else, indirectly or directly.

I can hear someone right now saying, I'm a tax paying citizen, so I do what I want. But, in actuality, you don't do what you want. You pay taxes because it's the law and if you decide you are tired of doing so, you'll be escorted to jail.

I heard a stripper talking on TV and she said "this is my body and I'll do what I want with it." Her statement is a contradiction in terms because, if we are one nation under God, then we are supposed to be abiding by his rules. The bible clearly states that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit(God).

So if you are under his rule, his guidance, then you obey and do what he commands, not what you feel is best.

Finally, these days marriage vows are just as empty as a couple's relationship. "To love and obey until death do us part." I've got one word that negates these vows, divorce! "Love is patient, love is kind, love behaves." True love cannot be duplicated, it is authentic.

We are to be careful of these vows, creeds and doctrines we create. Many of them are contradictory. Like one person said, "either you is or you's ain't."

top academic and extracurricular award," Hobson said.

Award winners were invited to lunch with Gov. and Mrs. Edgar in the Governor's Mansion in Springfield.

"We received our awards on the floor of the Illinois House of Representatives. The award winners sat in the seats of the representatives and were called up to receive the award," Hobson said.

Engineering student receives ASME award

Bethany Behrhorst
For The Alestle

It was gravity at work.

Todd Hickman, a senior in the SIUE Engineering Department, designed an elevated dump system that lifted a container filled with water and dispensed it into a drainage pipe then to a disposal container. "This seemed like the most feasible design to transport the liquid, let gravity do the work instead of the limited power of the motor," Hickman said.

Hickman presented this project at the American Society of Mechanical Engineers (ASME)

International Mechanical Engineering Congress and Exposition, held on Wed., Nov. 20, 1996, and won third place.

"We are very proud and excited for him," his mother, Barbara Hickman, said.

As a result of his hard work, Hickman won the regional contest and came in third place overall. He won $500, and the mechanical engineering department at SIUE received $250.

"We are terribly pleased with Todd's design and how it compared to other regional winners," Thomas Anderson, chair of the department of mechanical and industrial engineering, said.

In addition to Hickman's honor, three engineering faculty members, Anderson, and Nader Saniei and X. Terry Yan, both associate professors, were given praise at the conference for their performance.

Anderson presented a paper called, "The Theory of Equilibrium Dynamics". Saniei and Yan co-authored the paper, "Heat Transfer from an Obliquely Impinging Jet".

This is the second consecutive year that two SIUE engineering students have won this regional competition. Last year engineering student Robert Arcykiewicz won third place.

student fee review. A 3.18 percent increase was noticed when activity fees were examined. The percentage should be no more than 3.0. Any amount above 3.0 is subject to penalty by the Illinois Board of Education.

"If we are over 3.0, the Board of Education takes a certain percentage off the top from allocations. This is the money provided for the school by the Board," said James Little III, student body vice president.

The telephone fraud situation is still a topic of concern. One of the concerns is that of students feeling that they were falsely accused or over-billed or billed unjustifiably.

"I suggest the people who can prove they were falsely accused come forward with that information. It can be confidential," Little said.

After telephone amnesty, the Telecommunications Task Force was established to explain what the new system, the Office of Information Technology, has to offer students and to give customers better and cheaper service.

According to Little, the Telecommunications Task Force is working with OIT in order to create awareness.

"The job of the two organizations is to make them (students) aware," Little said.

The next meeting will be held Friday, Jan. 31, at 2:30 p.m. in the Goshen Lounge.

Students registered for spring semester at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville have been granted additional time to pay their tuition and fees.

"The university expects students to pay by the second week of class. But with the bad weather and the closing of the university we lost a work day and decided that the wisest thing to do was to extend the deadline," Marion Smithson, director of financial aid said.

CANN Music festival at The Gallery to benefit AIDS research

By Tom Hockett
For The Alestle

Stopping the spread of AIDS is a nationwide battle that many people fight every day. Usually those battles are fought by the use of conventional fund raisers, celebrity red-ribbon campaigns or public awareness commercials.

However, rock'n'roll will be the AIDS-fighting firepower on Saturday night at The Gallery in Glen Carbon. Children's AIDS Network National (CANN) and The Gallery's owner, Walter Heck, have teamed up to bring the CANN Music Festival to the local venue.

The CANN Music Festival is a national concert program designed to unite regional music acts, local clubs and area media outlets in order to support this worthy cause. Heck said, "This is our second one (CANN Music Festival). The first one went really well."

The Gallery's doors will open at 8 p.m., and there is a $5 cover charge. CANN, a nonprofit organization, will receive all the profits from the door and a percentage of the liquor sales. "CANN is a nationally known company. They call the club, and the bands play for free," Heck said.

Four bands will take the stage Saturday night beginning around 9:30 p.m. They are "Hippie Crank Gastank" from St. Louis, "Bi-Level" from Edwardsville, "Benny" from Collinsville, and "Tweakness Jones" hails from Cincinnati, Ohio.

All of the bands are original acts. CANN recruits bands who perform their own music, and CANN musicians have an opportunity to submit their songs to CANN for regional and national compilation albums.

The primary focus of CANN is to inform the public about the AIDS virus, especially young adults, pregnant mothers and families who are at risk of contracting AIDS. "CANN is really unique. It reaches the desired age market through music," Heck said.

The Gallery is located near the intersection of Route 159 and Center Grove Road in Glen Carbon. The address is 2858 South State, Route 159. Patrons of The Gallery must be at least 21. For further information on Saturday night's concert contact The Gallery at (618) 659-0506. For further information on CANN Music Festivals call (618) 656-0228 or contact Scott Stoltz, CANN music director at (618) 656-2086.

Book dealing with witchcraft banned

MUNCY, Pa. (AP)—Dan Egli was upset when he read "Spells, Chants and Potions," a book about Witchcraft found on the library shelves of his children's elementary school.

"This book teaches revenge . . . something I don't want my kids to learn," said Egli, a clinical psychologist.

Other parents agreed. They approached school administrators about banning the book, but school officials decided to keep the book on library shelves. It can only be checked out with parental permission.

On Monday, however, bowing to continued community pressure, the school board decided to review its decision and the district book policy.

Egli said portions of the book at the Ward L. Myers Elementary School teach children to handle their anger by inflicting pain on others.

"Evil spell-casters hoped the body would swell until it burst like an over filled balloon," one portion of the book states in reference to a spell that deals with getting even with an enemy.

The book ends with this warning to children about practicing spells:

"Spells might seem very easy to cast. But as you sit home ready to light that first black candle to cast a spell upon your 'enemy,' think of this: An eerie house on a deserted block not far from you . . . a dark room with mysterious singing that sounds strangely like a chant . . . a hand — the hand of your 'enemy' — reaching out to light a shiny, new, black candle . . . a piece of paper with your name on it."

Contents of the nearly 20-year-old book written by Sue Avent came to light last year by the parent of a third-grader who had checked it out of the library.

'Real World's' Sharon gets really real. Really.

By Ty Norris
Assistant Lifestyle Editor

Showcasing her insightful and witty personality, Sharon Gitau, 22, from the London cast of the hit MTV show "The Real World," lectured Friday to an attentive crowd on issues ranging from multi-culturalism to a day in the life on the "Real World IV."

Sponsored by University Center Board and co-sponsored by the Residence Hall Programming Committee, Gitau's extraordinary speaking style informed and entertained the audience.

"The Real World" was a TV show that taped the lives of five to seven individuals. The cast members moved in together for an extended length of time. The Real World was broadcast from New York, San Francisco, London and the latest was from Miami.

According to Gitau, the producers of "The Real World" endeavored to "give people an inside look into people's everyday lives." So, what started out as a weekend turned into several weeks.

Gitau spent fifteen weeks in London with seven strangers while cameras recorded every minute.

"We lived in Central London, and (our cast) was made up of people from Germany, Southern England, both coasts and the Midwest," Gitau said.

"We understood everyone was coming from a different place," Gitau said.

The cast members shared a house and accomplished the "disciplines of learning to share space," Gitau said. The rent was paid by the producers but, according to Gitau, the cast members were responsible for their living expenses, such as the phone bill and groceries.

"It was very exposing," Gitau said about having a camera record her every motion. "The camera has a definite affect on you," she added.

"The rooms were wired for sound, and we wore a (concealed) wire microphone," Gitau said. "It wasn't as glamorous as you all might expect."

Gitau did not let the glamour of being on a successful TV show hinder her from "learning to accept human beings, and encouraging them to appreciate themselves."

Just a few years ago, Gitau was content writing and singing songs. While she is still a singer and songwriter, Gitau has dared to go where few are able to go. She carries such titles as lecturer, motivator and student, with hopes of becoming a music publisher.

Gitau told her audience that she enjoyed herself in spite of how she might have been depicted on the show, as a victim of jokes and belittlement, and her recovery from tonsillitis. Gitau describes it as "10 days of agonizing pain."

As Gitau shared her insights about dealing with diversity in roommates, cultures and experiences, she urged her crowd to "look at everybody as a whole."

Sharon remains very close friends with her co-stars as well.

"There's a warm, family-like feeling," she said.

"We (London) are the love cast," she added.

Though her days as Sharon on the Real World IV are over, Gitau is far from reaching her desired goals.

"Slowly, but surely," Gitau said, is when she will secure a record contract. She wants a contract that will allow her some creative control.

When asked what would be the best word to describe her, she said, "open."

Open and outspoken is who she is. About her life and issues. Sharon Gitau is a real person in a real world.

Bussin' Blues
by Corey Stulce
Lifestyle Editor

This column is especially for the poor souls who rely on the bus service to take them back and forth from Tower Lake to campus.

I have two major complaints, one that is probably out of our control, and another that most certainly is.

The first is the crazy crapshoot of wondering when and if the bus is going to show up at all. I know that it is sometimes hard to stick to a schedule, but I would like to know if an attempt at all is even made.

I know that when I am ready to go to campus, I don't even look at my watch anymore. I just go outside and hope one of the buses will make its way down the road. This is usually not a problem, but last week when we had the butt-blistering cold, it was a long and painful process.

Why does it seem like there are more buses that leave from Tower Lake than go to Tower Lake? Where are these mystery buses going? Are they taking students with them?

At least the drivers are nice, for the most part, and let as many kids that can jam their way onto the bus inside.

Of course, I did hear someone say the other day that a certain female driver didn't let anyone stand on the ride home. You know who you are lady! Straighten up.

For my second complaint, and this involves you riders directly, who do some of you think you are? When you come outside at the last minute, and there are many people who came out early to wait for the bus, do not walk right in front of them and hop on the bus. That is just plain, no-manners rude! You know who you are, too.

I'm giving everyone permission to push someone down who steps in front of you to get on the bus. Tell them, "Corey said I could."

Also, if you are standing up, please go all the way to the back of the bus so we can all get on and enjoy the ride. I don't know how some of you people grew up without common courtesy. It's a few of you ruining for all us bus riders, and it's really sad.

Oh yeah, one more tip. If you plan on riding the bus, take a stinkin' bath! I don't want the first thing I smell in the morning to be someone who reeks of butt cheese.

If you don't stop someone from driving drunk, who will? Do whatever it takes.

East Alton man hits but misses for a new car

From SIUE Sports Information

An East Alton man, who sank a golf putt from 60 feet away, earned an outstanding prize during a halftime contest of Saturday's men's basketball game between Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville and Bellarmine College.

However, contrary to the inadvertent announcement made at Saturday's game, Jim Henderson did not win a new 1997 Mercury Cougar for his effort. The contest rules from America Hole-in-One, an insurance company which monitors and applies the contest rules, state a person can compete only once per season, voiding any chance of winning the vehicle.

"He was clearly told before he took the putt that it was not for the car," SIUE Assistant Athletic Director Nick Adams said. "However, we decided to allow him to putt anyway because his name was drawn."

Mr. Henderson, whose name was taken from a random drawing of people who signed up that evening, won a pair of golf bags for sinking the putt.

Cougars to play tough two-game road trip

By Brett Licata
Assistant Sports Editor

The SIUE men's basketball team will face heavy competition from undefeated Indianapolis tonight and Northern Kentucky Saturday afternoon.

After a 70-54 loss to Bellarmine last Saturday, the Cougars will play their toughest two-game road trip of the season. The top team in the Great Lakes Valley Conference, Indianapolis, will host the Cougars in Indianapolis, Ind. This is the nation's third ranked team with a perfect 15-0 record, including eight conference wins.

"Normally we play well against big teams," head coach Jack Margenthaler said Wednesday morning. "If we stay fundamentally sound and play our game, we can come out on top."

SIUE will have to deal with a patient offensive attack and a stifling defense that Indianapolis will throw at them.

"We have to be disciplined and aggressive on the offensive side of the ball," Margenthaler said. "They have a hard press defense and a lot of size inside that we have to contend with."

Indianapolis has broken their school record for wins with 15 straight and are defeating opponents by about 13.5 points per game.

Northern Kentucky is showing why they were runners-up to the NCAA Division II championship last year. They are currently in third place in the GLVC standings and have a record of 16-2.

"Our players have the attitude needed to win this game," Margenthaler said. "We have to shoot well, get rebounds and take care of the ball."

The Cougars have an overall record of 7-8 after losing their last six games. Their GLVC mark has fallen to 1-7.

Bob Fehringer/Alethe

Kim Lowe scrabbles for the ball in last Thursday's game against Kentucky Wesleyan. Since then the Cougars beat Bellarmine to take sole possession of third place in the GLVC.

Lady Cougars take sole possession of third place

By Brett Licata
Assistant Sports Editor

A third place tie in the Great Lakes Valley Conference standings was broken last Saturday when the SIUE women's basketball team defeated Bellarmine 64-61 at the Vadalabene Center.

Jerseyville's Amy Tuetken led the Cougar attack tossing in 19 points going 5 of 6 from three-point range and grabbing 10 rebounds. Pinckneyville's Leslie Phillips added seven rebounds and five points. Alicia Harkins and Beth Brown contributed 11 points each to propel the Cougars into a second place tie with Northern Kentucky.

"We hadn't beaten them in a while," head coach Wendy Hedberg said. "Despite struggling offensively, we had a great game defensively."

SIUE will have two more conference tests on the road against Indianapolis tomorrow and Northern Kentucky on Saturday.

Indianapolis is tied for fourth place in the GLVC with an 8-7 overall record and a 4-4 conference record.

"We have difficulty winning in their building so our work's cut out for us," Hedberg said. "We want to get the ball inside and shut down some of their key people. They're Want $25,100 for college?

The Army Reserve can help you take a big bite out of college expenses.

How?

If you qualify, the Montgomery GI Bill could provide you with up to $7,124 for college or approved vo/tech training.

We'll also pay you over $107 a weekend to start. Training is usually one weekend a month plus two weeks' Annual Training. By adding the pay for Basic Training and skill training, you'll earn over $18,000 during a standard enlistment.

So, if you could use a little financial help getting through school—the kind that won't interfere with school—stop by or call:

The Cougars will have a chance to break the second place tie with Northern Kentucky as they travel to Highland Heights, Ky. for a 1 p.m. tip-off. Northern Kentucky is 9-6 on the year with a 6-2 conference mark.

"We play well when we travel there, but can't seem to pull out a victory," Hedberg

SIUE is 11-4 on the year and No. 1 in the nation in three-point field goal percentage at 42.5. They have knocked down 68 of 160 three-pointers.
