Parking construction angers staff

■ BY REBECCA HOPKINS
NEWS REPORTER

Construction equipment can be found everywhere at SIUE these days and many in the campus community are not very happy about it. The administration announced last spring that several parking lots would be resurfaced over the summer, in addition to construction of the new Residence Hall II, Engineering Building and the Greenhouse at the Science Building. However, at the beginning of the semester, the only parking lot completed was the one for the students at the residence hall.

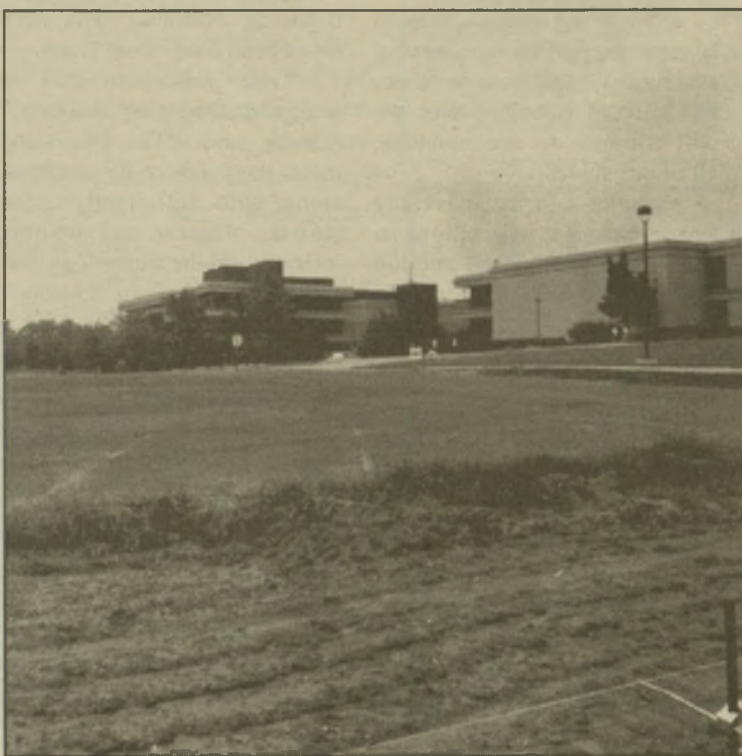

"Of course, the Residence Hall Lot was finished because we're trying to encourage students to become residents of this campus," said Mike Montgomery, an instructor in mass communications. "I just think it's ridiculous."

In the last week, Lot E construction has had a ripple effect ranging from apathy to anger throughout faculty and staff who work in the Communications Building. Already incensed because the lot was not paved and had no marked lines, the employees hit the roof when parking fees were increased to $100 for the 1997-98 school year. To make matters worse, most said they did not know that construction was even planned for that lot until they reported for work on the morning of Sept. 9 and found the access road barricaded.

"I asked the gentleman on the barricade how long this was going to take," said Nora Baker, assistant professor of mass communications. "He said the party line is six to eight weeks, translated that means nine to 10."

Mass Communications parking lot is currently under construction till further notice. It is one of the many parking lots being renovated this year.

Hahs replaces Werner as acting provost

■ BY ZHANDA JOHNSON
NEWS REPORTER

Sharon Hahs, dean of College of Arts and Sciences, has been appointed acting provost for SIUE. Hahs is temporarily replacing David Werner who is now serving as chancellor until someone is selected permanently.

As provost, Hahs' duty is to act as the broad academic oversight on behalf of the university.

"It involves anything that is of an academic nature on behalf of the campus," Hahs said.

Part of Hahs' job is to relay academic matters to and from the Illinois Board of Higher Education. She also relays academic matters to the Illinois Board

Free Tower Lake parking disappears for students

■ BY ALONA THOMSON
NEWS REPORTER

Students of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville are remembering the saying, "Nothing in life is free," as free parking was abolished and turned into red lots.

"I disagree with this," said

Kevin Kirby, senior student. "They should have left some open parking at Tower Lake for guests to come and visit."

Since SIUE's student population is growing, there is a lack of parking spaces and with construction contributing to the problem, students have a hard time finding a parking spot.

"Finding a parking spot in Tower Lake at a certain time of the day, is like threading a needle in the dark," said Kevin Spencer, sophomore student. "And if you do find a spot, the second you vacate it you will never see it again."

SIUE's director of administrative services, Bob Vanzo is working hard to accommodate SIUE's growing student population with parking spaces.

"We are building 200 spaces behind the Communications Building and the Art Design Building," Vanzo said. "We are even making configurations to maximize parking spots."

Students protest dress code

■ BY TOM KENNEDY

The clothes students wear at the fitness center may soon change.

A movement has begun to allow the students more freedom in their choice of attire. "We want to allow the students more freedom to wear (what they want to wear)," said Steve Brown, one of the founders of the movement to change the school's dress code policy.

House Bill 110 ends full retirement health coverage, workers outraged

■ BY ZHANDA JOHNSON
NEWS REPORTER

Members of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees 2887 expressed their concerns about House Bill 110. Sharon Corrigan, legislative director of AFSCME addressed AFSCME local 2887, which is made up of SIUE clerical and kindred employees, at their business meeting Tuesday at 5 p.m.

The purpose of House Bill 110, signed by Gov. Jim Edgar on July 7, was to boost pension benefits of state employees. The bill would increase the maximum benefit from 75 to 80 percent, reduce the required age for retirement without penalty from 35 to 30 over a five year period, eliminate the practice of employees cashing in on unused sick days, and require retirees to pay 5 percent of their health care premium for each year of service less than 20 years.

Before the bill there was 100 percent health care coverage after retirement. After December 31, a portion of health care will have to be paid by the worker after retirement.

"Some people who have been working for 20 years or more are retiring early in order to maintain 100 percent health care after retirement," Corrigan said.

She said that for some it is the right choice to retire before December 31. It depends on the person's situation and their specific retirement plan.

"It is important to check with the retirement system on a one on one basis," Corrigan said.

She also discussed the Tuition Waiver Bill. In the past, if an employee worked for seven years for a state university in Illinois, their child could receive a 50 percent waiver at that university. Under this new bill the tuition waiver is extended to any university in the state of Illinois.

New Residence Hall to alleviate overcrowding in SIUE campus housing

■ BY ALONA THOMPSON
NEWS REPORTER

As the student population grows at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville so does the housing and ongoing construction.

A new residence hall, to be named Residence Hall II, started construction Sept. 15. The dormitory will house 506 students and will be built south of Residence Hall I. Construction is expected to be completed by next September.

The new 506-bed residence hall is planned to be just slightly larger than SIUE's first such facility opened in 1994, having an estimated capacity of 502 beds.

This fall, all housing on campus is full, and there are waiting lists for both the Residence Hall and Tower Lake Apartments.

"My current roommate Roger O. was supposed to stay in the Residence Hall," said Lamar Lillard. "But since they did not have a space available for him, he had to stay at home and commute back and forth everyday to school."

With the new building of Residence Hall II, SIUE being a mostly commuter campus will still fall short of rising student demand for housing.

"There is really no more space to expand for our growing admissions," said housing director Michael Schultz. "But we will continue to accommodate all of our students."

Schultz said the university and contractors will follow an "aggressive" construction schedule in building the second residence hall.

"For next year, there is not a plan. We need another residence hall to make it work," Schultz said. "That's a strong need. That's been proven just by the demand of people who want to get in."

Most of the increase in enrollment is in the freshman class. Last year, 2,403 freshmen enrolled at SIUE, compared to an estimated 2,792 this year.

The residence hall will definitely come in handy to the incoming freshman, who have never been away from home.

"The residence hall is designed for new students," Schultz said. "The furnishing meets the needs of the students, along with sufficiently sized closets, pleasant and inviting interiors and the technology also meets the need of our students."

Hahs

of Higher Education and from the system office in Carbondale.

"My primary goal is to be sure we have a smooth transition and maintain continuity and academic excellence," she said.

Hahs said the academic programs are doing well and she would like for them to continue to do so.

Werner appointed Hahs as acting provost after consulting President Ted Sanders and various advisers. Hahs began working at SIUE in 1995. Prior to SIUE, she served for 10 years at the University of South Carolina at Spartanburg as dean of the School of Humanities and Sciences and as professor of chemistry.

Hahs is maintaining her job as dean of the College of Arts and Sciences while she is acting provost. However, she said that she is contributing to that job in a very limited way. A majority of the work for the College of Arts and Sciences will be done by associate deans Dixie Engleman and David Steinberg.

Parking

Through all the turmoil dealing with parking and construction, Lot 12 has now been made into a red lot and is no longer considered free parking.

"Since we all ready have a visitors lot, why shouldn't lot 12 be treated the same as the rest of the lots," said Vanzo. "Lot 12 needed a lot of construction, such as telephones for safety and lights, but we could not do it for free, when we needed so many road and parking improvements."

Along with free parking gone, the price of parking stickers has risen. Not only do Tower Lake Residents pay for parking in their lots, they also have to pay for parking in other on campus lots.

"We raised the price of parking stickers because we need money to fund all of the parking improvements," said Vanzo. "It will cost 8.7 million to build new lots and the state of Illinois does not give us money, we pay for it ourselves."

Students of Tower Lake Apartments are still wondering why it is taking so long for the reconstruction of the parking lots.

"Timing," said Vanzo. "Our contractors can not do asphalt work when it is cold or raining and when November rolls around the company closes because of the weather."

It will take 18 months for the completion of parking lots on 500 side of Tower Lake because it had to be completely rebuilt other parts only had to be layered.

Senator Michelle Williams stated in her letter to the Senate things that concerned her and the fellow students. In the letter one of the subjects she discussed was that the SIUE police force should play an intricate part in directing students to places to park since they have a hard time finding spaces.

"The police have been very involved, they make sure the students are inconvenienced as little as possible," said Vanzo. "They set up barricades for cars that block other vehicles in and they watch speed limits of other students so that other drivers and pedestrians are not hurt."

Although SIUE's population consist of mostly commuters, the housing staff and administrative services are working hard to accommodate the students on campus as well.

"I'll bet they get this done maybe in May. I'm getting a mental picture of winter and trying to trek through snow and ice."

Baker said she was directed to either Lot A or the Vadalabene Center parking lot.

"Lot A was being tarred," she said. "I parked at the VC and then trekked through the muddy path which was barred by back-hoes and tractors that were tearing up the sidewalk in back of the Science Building.

"Why in heaven's name did they pick the beginning of this semester for this," Baker said. "I think everybody who has ruined their shoes going through the mud should get at least a partial refund."

Director of Administrative Services Robert Vanzo said there would be no rebates.

"There will be no refunds for parking privileges," Vanzo said. "Because Lot A and the VC parking lot are also prime parking spaces that go for $100, this is where traffic from Lot E is being re-routed."

Larry Foster, assistant director in the Office of Information Technology, said that things always have to get a little worse before they get better.

"None of the work can start before a contract is awarded to a bidder," Foster said. "Those bids were approved in the July board meeting, at the beginning of the new fiscal year. Once the bids are awarded, a lot of cable locating must be done before digging can begin so that telephone and electrical services won't be interrupted, and that takes a lot of time."

"We've had seven crews working on the parking lots and no cables have been cut," Foster said. "You gotta give 'em credit for not cutting cables."

It isn't just the construction that has people up in arms, but it's also that no one was given advance warning that Lot E was going to close.

"I was most unpleasantly surprised at 7:15 one dark morning to find barricades and someone sitting in a car parallel to Circle Drive ... making sure that no one violated their sacrosanct barriers," Montgomery said. "Apparently someone in his or her infinite wisdom decided to have somebody stationed there all day. There's good use of somebody's time, isn't it?"

"I've been parking in Lot A, but why not look down the road, estimate your construction schedules and do this work when there is a minimum of students, staff and faculty here," Montgomery continued.

"We had no advance warning," Baker said. "Why couldn't they do one lot at a time? Why didn't they do this during the summer?"

Foster said the university could save money by coordinating projects. "We are coordinating new installs (phone and electrical cable) for the new Residence Hall along with some of the other construction so that we can save money."

"We have 900 signatures so far," said Brown. The goal is to get 1,000 signatures to take to the office of the vice chancellor for student affairs.

The current policy is in place to minimize skin contact with the equipment. "If wearing shirts help reduce the spread of germs, then I like the dress code," said freshman Monika McClain.

The argument comes down to student choice and the possibility of spreading certain communicable diseases. Brown said, "It's a student fitness center. Students should have more say in the policies."

Jesse Jackson tells UT students to boycott professor

AUSTIN (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson told University of Texas students Tuesday to skip classes taught by a law professor who said black and Mexican American students can't compete with white students.

"We're not the problem, he is the problem," Jackson told the nearly 5,000 students assembled below the steps of the campus' main Tower. "You have no obligation to be in his class."

Lino Graglia, a 67-year-old professor of constitutional law, made his remarks last week during the announcement of a student organization — Students for Equal Opportunity — that supports a recent federal court ruling preventing race-based admissions policies in Texas. He is the group's faculty adviser.

"Blacks and Mexican-Americans are not academically competitive with whites in selective institutions," Graglia said then. "It is the result primarily of cultural effects. They have a culture that seems not to encourage achievement. Failure is not looked upon with disgrace."

State legislators have demanded his ouster, but Jackson said that would only make Graglia a martyr.

"What we must do is isolate him as a social pariah," Jackson said.

He added that Graglia and university officials still must answer for what he said.

"He has legal grounds for free speech, but no moral ground and no scientific ground for racist, fascist, inaccurate speech," Jackson said.

Graglia, in a statement Tuesday, stood by his opposition to affirmative action programs, but said that his comments were misinterpreted, although he "regrets that the result has been an emotional confrontation."

"I realize now, especially after being called by some cordial Mexican-American and black parents, that it was carelessly put, and I regret it," he said.

"I do not know and did not mean to say, as I apologetically explained to several callers, that black and Mexican-American 'cultures' do not place a high value on academic achievement."

Marc Levin, president of the student group, said Tuesday that Graglia's comments were blown out of proportion. He said his group supports diversity, but not affirmative action.

UT Law Dean Mike Sharlot said an investigation concluded that there were no grounds for disciplinary action against Graglia, and no evidence that he discriminates against students based on race or ethnicity.

Sharlot said Graglia has been expressing such views for years. "He's a voice in the wilderness," Sharlot said.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals issued the ruling against race-based admissions in a case involving the UT law school. The U.S. Supreme Court allowed the decision to stand.

AIDS epidemic worsening among women

CHICAGO (AP) — The number of AIDS cases among women is rising more quickly than among men, and sex with infected men has overtaken drug use as the leading cause of infection among women, federal researchers say.

"Prevention efforts remain critical," the researchers said, particularly since those women who are most at risk can be difficult to educate because of poverty, substance abuse, alcoholism and other problems.

From 1991 through 1995, the number of women diagnosed with AIDS increased by 63 percent versus 12.8 percent for men.

By the end of 1995, 67,400 women nationwide had been diagnosed as having AIDS since the epidemic began, with 11,500 of them being diagnosed in 1995.

However, the number of AIDS cases among women is still smaller than for men. Infected women in 1995 represented just 19 percent of all cases that year, said CDC epidemiologist Dr.

Pascale M. Wortley, chief researcher of the study.

Throughout the 1980s and early 1990s, the disease was spread in women primarily through sharing injection drug needles. But by 1993, sex with infected men had become the main culprit and two years later had risen to 52 percent of the cases nationwide, up from 40 percent in 1991. In the South, it was even worse — 58 percent.

Among men, about 53 percent were infected through homosexual contact in 1993, with 25 percent from intravenous drug use. In 1991, 63 percent of the new cases for men had come from homosexual sex.

More up-to-date data to be released later this week will show the trend continuing, according to the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

The trend toward infection through sex is particularly evident for women under 25, who are 2 1/2 times more likely to have been infected through heterosexual contact than by injecting drugs, Wortley said.

"So it's critical to reach young people before they reach the age of having sex and injecting drugs," she said.

Carnahan urges anti-abortion groups to join him in support of bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Mel Carnahan, who supports abortion rights, urged leaders of three key anti-abortion groups to join him in supporting a late-term abortion bill they don't want passed.

In rejecting his offer, the leaders said Tuesday the governor was playing politics in his latest bid to join him in supporting a ban on what they call partial-birth abortion.

"It's obvious he's trying to drive a wedge between pro-life organization and pro-life legislators," said Samuel Lee of Campaign Life Missouri.

Last week, Carnahan by one vote kept the Senate from overriding his veto of a bill banning the procedure. He said his veto was because the bill lacked any exception for the mother's health.

After his veto was sustained, Carnahan expanded a special legislative session to include abortion and offered a bill allowing an exception to prevent "a substantial and irreversible impairment of a major bodily function of the mother."

Senate President Pro Tem Bill McKenna, D-Barnhart, said he won't assign Carnahan's bill or another version of the vetoed bill to a committee until some middle ground has been reached. Lawmakers resumed their special session today.

Lou DeFeo, Missouri Catholic Conference lobbyist, wasn't buying Carnahan's latest proposal.

"The governor's office doesn't understand the difference between abortion and infanticide. What we are talking is intentionally killing a child during birth," DeFeo said.

The procedure involves partially extracting a fetus, legs first; cutting an incision in the barely visible skull base; then draining the contents of the skull so it will fit through the birth canal.

Carnahan's chief of staff, Brad Ketcher, sent a letter on Tuesday to Lee, DeFeo and Patty Skain, executive director of Missouri Right to Life, urging them to join the governor.

"The governor wants to pass and sign a partial birth abortion ban this year. He wants it to be constitutional and, therefore, effective," Ketcher wrote. "He wants to protect women from serious threats to their life and help. The governor wants your help in this effort."

"The letter also said legislative action on abortion 'is too often dictated by outside entities, rather than emanating directly from the members.'"

Ketcher said the governor believes a health exception must be included in any such legislation for it to meet the legal hurdle set by the U.S. Supreme Court. Skain said the governor is wrong in his conclusion.

"He's misunderstanding the fact that this is about killing a child in the process of being born," Skain said. "It's not about abortion, so the constitutionality question and the health exception don't apply."

Mandela's ex-wife proposed for top party post in South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The women's branch of the ruling African National Congress wants President Nelson Mandela's ex-wife to be the party's deputy chief, despite allegations she helped kill a man in 1988.

If she wins the post, Winnie Madikizela-Mandela would be in a position to run for deputy president of South Africa in 1999.

President Mandela does not plan to seek a second term, leaving the way open for Deputy President Thabo Mbeki to move up to head the party and run the country.

The suggestion Sunday by the ANC Women's League was not an official nomination, but indicated the organization's support for Madikizela-Mandela in the midst of a storm over her alleged role in two deaths.

It was the first time she has been mentioned for the deputy party leadership post, which is also being sought by other high profile ANC leaders.

The most recent allegations against Madikizela-Mandela came in the book "Katiza's Journey," published last week by journalist Fred Bridgland. It focuses on Katiza Cebekhulu, who has been a fugitive since he disappeared on the eve of a 1991 trial at which he was to be tried along with Madikizela-Mandela on charges of murder.

Cebekhulu alleged that Madikizela-Mandela ordered the killing of Dr. Abu Asvat in 1989 to cover up her role in the abduction and beatings of four young men at her Soweto home in late 1988.

One of the young men, Stompie Seipei, later was found dead, and Madikizela-Mandela was convicted at a 1991 trial of kidnapping and being an accessory to assault. She eventually paid a fine but never served prison time.

The country's Truth and Reconciliation Commission, which investigates abuses by all parties during the apartheid era, has subpoenaed Madikizela-Mandela to testify about those and other deaths later this month.

Mavivi Manzini, an ANC Women's League official, said Sunday that the 60,000-member organization supports Madikizela-Mandela's insistence that a hearing be held in public. The panel insists it be held behind closed doors.

Mrs. Mandela (thinks) that since the issue is in the media, it must be clarified openly," Manzini said. "(Holding it) in camera implies there is a cover-up, and she says she has nothing to hide."

Madikizela-Mandela told the Johannesburg Sunday Independent that she would welcome a reopening of the murder case to clear the air. She said the allegations were an attempt to discredit her before the ANC national congress in December.

This campaign is being carried out to destroy me before we go to the congress," she said. "I want to deal with all the distortions once and for all. I do not want to speak in camera and be interpreted by someone."

When physics students get physical ...

Pilobolus Too

■ BY MATT INGRAM
STAFF REPORTER

When students in a conceptual physics lab arrived for class Tuesday morning, their instructor, Dr. Art Braundmeier, had a surprise for them. Lab tables and equipment had been pushed aside, and for the first hour of class, the students strutted around the room like dinosaurs, then climbed on top of one another.

No, they were not suffering from falling apple-induced concussions, Isaac Newton-style. The exercises were part of an instructional seminar taught by Adam Battelstein, an artist in residence at SIUE and dancer with the Pilobolus Too modern dance troupe. Battelstein used the exercises to demonstrate how the posture, balance and movement of dance can be applied to physics. “Obviously, all dance obeys the laws of physics,” Battelstein said, “but I wanted to demonstrate it in a way that would seem clear and entertaining to them.”

The demonstration relied heavily on student participation, and at first the students displayed less physical activity than Stephen Hawking. But eventually everyone jumped in, including teaching assistant Jun Liu and Braundmeier, professor and chair of the department of physics. “I think the students reacted very well,” Braundmeier said. “I was really pleased with [Battelstein’s] explanations of how physics relates to what his dance company is doing. I hope that it supplements what [the students] are learning in the lecture portion of the course.”

Braundmeier may bring similar programs to physics classes in the future. “I’m going to think of other things we could do which are physics related,” he added. “I kind of wish that more students would get to see [similar demonstrations].”

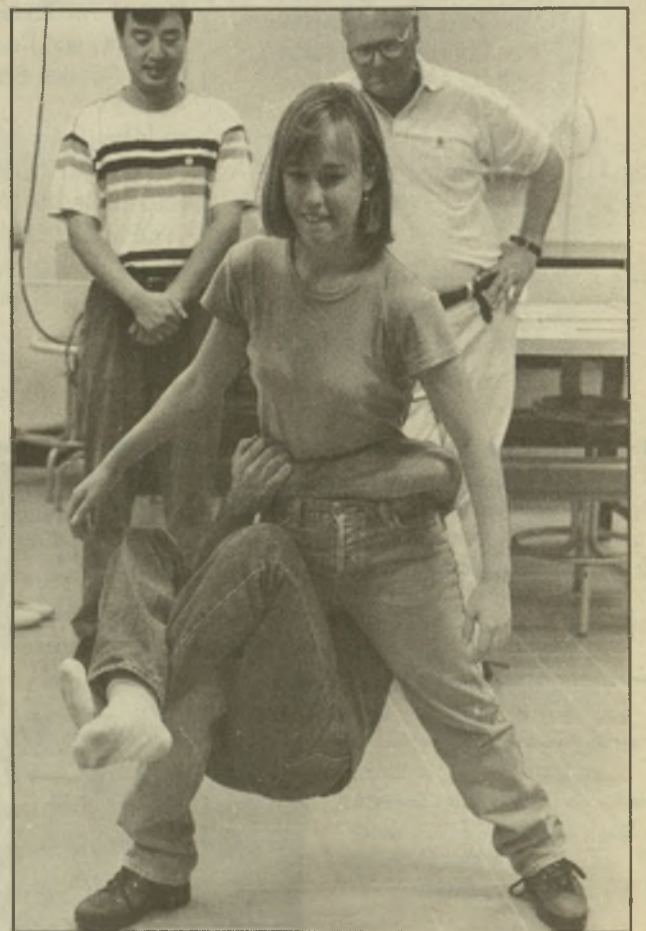

The exercises included dinosaur walking, which helped the students find a posture that maximized their balance. Later, they formed pairs that would lean into and pull away from each other as mirror images, maintaining a constant center of balance. The pairs were then encouraged to develop innovative ways of climbing on top of each other, becoming fully suspended.

One particularly interesting maneuver was called the “greyhound.” One person would hang from the other person’s back while swinging his legs forward, through the front person’s legs. Then the duo would rock forward until the back person was standing, and the front person would swing his legs forward, etc. The effect somewhat resembled a greyhound’s legs in action.

The grand finale consisted of the students forming a chain, each one sitting on the previous person’s knees. Thus they proved the maxim that if you try hard enough, you can always find someplace to sit down.

Rich Walker, Coordinator of Arts and Issues, hopes to initiate more department cross-pollination in the future. “It’s easy for me to just bring a dance company in and stick them in the dance classes,” he said. “That’s a no-brainer. But it’s finding those other matches that are difficult. Dr. Braundmeier was very open to it.”

For Battelstein, instructing groups with little dance background is nothing new. “I get to teach from elementary school students all the way up to senior citizens, and everyone in between,” he said, “including people who’ve had no dance training.” Teaching physics students may be ironic, though, since Pilobolus Too has often been accused of defying the laws of physics. Battelstein joined the parent company, Pilobolus, in 1989. Since then, he has performed for audiences worldwide and participated extensively in the dance theater’s outreach program. He now performs for Pilobolus Too, a two-person version of the original troupe.

“The company is known for its ability to partner,” he said. “We deal with physicality and sharing weight. In Pilobolus Too, we specialize in solos and duets.”

Battelstein will conclude his weeklong residency at SIUE with a performance Thursday night at the Communications Building Theater with partner Rebecca Stenn. The show on campus is sold out, but tickets remain for the troupe’s show at 8 p.m. Saturday at St. Louis’ Center of Contemporary Arts. You can get a real seat, not just someone’s knees, by calling COCA at (314) 725-6555.

Disabled students and staff can find support at New Horizons

■ BY CHRISTIAN HAINDS
STAFF REPORTER

In the midst of all the fraternities, sororities and other extracurricular activities here at SIUE, it is not hard to imagine that a few worthwhile groups or committees may get lost among the shuffle.

One group that many people may not know about is New Horizons. It is an organization that is designed around addressing concerns of students and faculty with disabilities. Having a disability is not necessary to become a member, but having a genuine desire to help is.

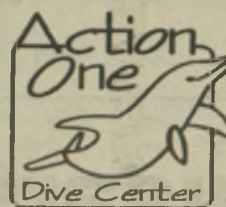

Marlin Thomas, the president of New Horizons, plans to make this year’s organization “bigger than than it has ever been.” By this, he means getting involved in more activities on campus. Also, the group plans on helping disabled children around the area. “Even though we are a student organization, we should still be helping out the community,” Thomas said.

New Horizons is also looking to expand its list of active members. One of the group officers, Eran McKittrick, struck at the heart of the issue. “We need people to make an organization.”

Those interested in joining New Horizons can attend meetings every other Wednesday at 2 p.m. in the DSS room (Peck Building 1311). The next meeting is Oct. 1.

“Everyone needs to work together,” Thomas said, and with help, New Horizons is sure to have a productive, worthwhile and fun year.

McGwire puts heart in front of paycheck

■ BY WAYNE FRAZER
STAFF REPORTER

Admit it.
You were stunned.
I know I was. Who would have thought the low-rent, penny-pinching Cardinals would lay this kind of money out?

This is not Tom Pagnozzi money. It isn't Ron Gant money. This is bank-breaking, roster-wrecking, ticket-prices-be-damned money, the kind of money you are supposed to be in a major market to spend, and even then, you might be crazy.

This is $28.5 million.
Four nice lottery jackpots.
28 houses in Ladue.

In terms you might be better able to grasp, that's 5,181,818 large nachos at the ballpark.
With extra cheese.

So, did the Cardinals do the right thing in ponying up the big bucks for the big guy?
Absolutely.

Not only do the Cardinals make themselves a contender for at least the next three seasons, they save face in the eyes of fans everywhere.
Redbird rooters might have stormed the stadium, demanding Walt Jocketty's head. Instead, St. Louis gets publicity and front page spreads all over the country.

The amazing aspect of the signing is that McGwire not only took less money than he would have commanded on the free agent market, but he also deferred some of it to allow the Cards to try to sign Todd Stottlemire and Andy Benes.

How often do you pick up the newspaper and read about an athlete who gave up money and the chance to play near his home, simply because he liked the area?
McGwire, who celebrated his first at-bat after the signing by hitting a ball farther than anyone had ever hit one before at Busch Stadium, made a choice that will cement him as firmly into St. Louis as Ozzie Smith and Dan Dierdorf.

Restaurants, endorsements, adulation. All these goodies are now his, but I don't think any of that crossed his mind during his six weeks here.

No, Mark looked into the stands and saw something he hadn't seen anywhere in baseball. A home.

Cougars put out call for goalie

■ BY BRETT LICATA
SPORTS REPORTER

Head soccer coach Ed Huneke has found himself having to make some difficult decisions lately. One of which is who to put in his lineup.

The SIUE men's soccer team is finally getting healthier. The abundance of skilled players on the team vying for playing time is a good problem for Huneke.

"A lot of talented players are coming back from injury," Huneke said. "It makes for a good situation. We have a team loaded with starting players."

One problem that Huneke doesn't like is having to find a backup goalkeeper to replace senior Chris Koenig who is injured. Huneke is talking to anyone interested in filling the spot.

"It was a real blow to us when Chris went down," Huneke said. "We need more than one goalkeeper. We're currently giving tryouts so that we can fill the spot as soon as possible."

men's soccer coach Ed Huneke

The Cougars (4-0-1) blew out Lincoln College 8-0 on Tuesday at Bob Guelker Field.

Junior Todd Hunter exploded for a hat trick after being out earlier this season because of injury.

"We're trying to get Todd more playing time," Huneke said. "He deserves credit for coming off the bench and making something happen."

Goals also came from Matt Little and Jason Maxfield, both of Granite City, Mascoutah's Jaron Hines, freshman Steve Singleton and senior Brett Darby.

SIUE, which is ranked 12th in the nation, will play the first conference games on its schedule this weekend as it travels to Indiana. The Cougars play St. Joseph's on Saturday in Rensselaer, Ind. On Sunday, they'll play at the University of Indianapolis.

SIUE tied St. Joseph's 1-1 last season.

"We want to play high pressure defense," Huneke said. "We'd like to attack early and set the tone."

Last year, the Cougars scored a late goal for a 2-1 victory over Indianapolis.

"It's important that we don't get into bad habits," Huneke said. "If we play like we've been playing, we'll be tough to beat. We just can't afford to slack."

Women's soccer faces tough foe on the road

■ BY BRETT LICATA
SPORTS REPORTER

It's payback time for the SIUE women's soccer team. It will take its No. 15 national ranking on the road to play the team that ended its season a year ago.

The Cougars will try to reverse their past fortunes when they face St. Joseph's on Saturday. St. Joseph's downed SIUE three times in head-to-head meetings last year. The most devastating of the losses was in the first round of last year's NCAA Tournament.

SIUE will have to keep St. Joseph's star forward Mary Reid in check.

"St. Joseph's is going to be a real tough game," said head coach Brian Korbemeyer said. "She (Reid) is someone that can ruin you. We have to keep her marked at all times. If we do, we should be able to give them a good game."

SIUE will also battle Indianapolis on Sunday. The Cougars defeated Indianapolis 4-0 in their only meeting last season.

"Indianapolis has an offensive trap that they like to use," Korbemeyer said. "We want to exert our style on them and beat the trap."

Korbemeyer also looks for his defense to step up and take charge this weekend.

The Cougars go into the weekend with a 4-2 overall record and a 1-1 conference mark.

St. Louis native Janece Friederich has followed up last year's All-American season by leading the team with six goals and is tied with Lynda Bowers of Palmer, Alaska, for the assist lead with five.

Freshman Michelle Montgomery of Granite City is second in goals with three and has added one assist. Megan Beagles of Springfield has also contributed a goal and an assist in the young season.

Junior goalkeeper Stacy Wade has been stingy between the posts with a .98 goals-against average. She has also recording four shutouts in the Cougars' six games.

Two Kansas players suspended after fight

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Two University of Kansas football players were suspended for one game by coach Terry Allen on Tuesday following a Saturday night fight on campus.

Redshirt freshman Jason Gulley and senior defensive back Avery Randle were suspended for a violation of team rules, Allen said in a brief statement.

Three students from the Kansas City, Mo., area who were walking on the west side of campus were attacked around 11:45 p.m. Saturday by a group of 10 to 15 men who had stopped their cars and approached them, police Sgt. Chris Keary said Monday.

"Based on the information that has been presented to me, it's obvious that we had two players who were provoked into a situation in which they used poor judgment and should have avoided," Allen said.

ISU apologizes for post-game remarks

POCATELLO, Idaho (AP) — Idaho State University head football coach Tom Walsh apologized Tuesday for remarks he made during a postgame radio show after the Bengals' 43-0 loss to the University of Idaho on Saturday.

Walsh compared ISU's play in the defeat to playing like "a bunch of paraplegics."

"The remarks I made on the postgame radio show after the Idaho game were not meant to be construed as offensive to any person or group of people," Walsh stated in a press release.

"I was trying to say that we made numerous mistakes in the game, that we played badly, and that we were our own worst enemy."

Syracuse QB will play despite ailing shoulder

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — In addition to a three-game losing streak, Syracuse has another worry: Quarterback Donovan McNabb has a severely bruised right shoulder. McNabb will play Saturday against Tulane.

Touted for the Heisman Trophy before the season, McNabb hurt his throwing arm late in a 36-34 loss at Oklahoma

Hurricanes eager for Pitt game

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — Eager to rebound from a humbling defeat at home, where they were once perceived as invincible, the Miami Hurricanes are grateful they don't have to wait long.

The 22nd-ranked Hurricanes (1-1), who slid nine spots in the poll after Saturday's 23-12 loss to Arizona State at the Orange Bowl, are at Pitt on national television Thursday night in both teams' season-opening Big East clash.

"We liked to have played it on Monday," Miami coach Butch Davis said. "This couldn't get here quick enough."

Davis said Tuesday his players were ready to put Arizona State behind them, and despite a short week of preparation, felt his team will "bounce back and perform."

"We believe we missed opportunities and that's the frustrating thing," said Davis, whose ineffective offense converted just one-of-11 third down situations.

Miami's defense was solid until tiring in the fourth quarter, but its offense didn't score a touchdown for only the sixth time since 1983 and first time since last season's 10-7 win over West Virginia.

Senior quarterback Ryan Clement, who was 14 of 28 for 175 yards and one interception, shouldered much of the blame, but he isn't ready to call it a season.

"Absolutely, I feel like I let the team down in a myriad of ways," Clement said. "I didn't step up, move the offense and make the big play."

Volleyball Coach Expects More From 4-8 Cougars

■ By CHRISTY PERRY
SPORTS REPORTER

The SIUE women's volleyball team had its hands full last weekend battling two nationally ranked teams and beginning play in the Great Lakes Valley Conference.

Friday night the Cougars butted heads with 11th-ranked Northwood University and fell 15-5, 15-4, 15-8.

Northwood checked in with seven players over 6 feet tall. Even with such a tall front line, SIUE outblocked Northwood with its six team blocks.

SIUE head coach Sandy Montgomery was bitter about the loss. "We beat ourselves. If we would have played to our potential, it would have been a much closer match."

Michelle Gilman had five kills and eight digs. Diane Beckmann added eight digs.

SIUE hoped its luck had changed as it faced conference foe Bellarmine College on Saturday afternoon. SIUE dropped the first game 8-15 and won the second 15-7. The Cougars decided to make the third game a real nail-biter and pulled out the victory 17-15. They won the fourth game 15-4.

Montgomery was happy with the play of junior co-captain Jill Stenger. "Jill did a very nice job for us outside," she said. "She came in a lot of key situations and got a kill for us when we needed it."

Montgomery also had words of praise for 6-foot hitter Julie Litteken. "Julie had a nice game. She got a lot of good kills and stood out offensively."

Stenger ended up with 13 kills and 14 digs against the Knights, and Litteken paced the Cougars with 15 kills.

Even though SIUE was victorious, it does not mean Montgomery thinks they have reached their pinnacle.

"It was a much better game, but it was not our best effort. I was happy we stuck it out mentally to be able to come back and win the match. We are still not playing to the level we want to, but it is getting better."

Northern Kentucky University (9-1) was in town Sunday afternoon for more conference action. Northern Kentucky, which is ranked 25th in the country, wanted to show the Cougars what they were made of.

SIUE came out like wild fire to defeat the Norse 15-12 in the first game. Kentucky battled back and won the next three, 15-4, 15-11, 15-11.

Even with the loss, Montgomery was content with the Cougars' play for the most part.

"We came out very strong and I was very happy with that. We missed crucial serves and we only missed five all day, but they were at bad times. I'm happy with their performance, but we did let it slip away though. I do think we are better than they are."

Stenger was on the top of Montgomery's defense list and stood out once again on Sunday.

"Jill had 14 kills today and that helped out tremendously because our offense centers around our middles and when we're getting production out of the outside that helps us a great deal."

Michelle Gilman recorded 16 kills and was helped out by her sister Kim Gilman, who tallied eight kills and three aces. Christy Scheller added 49 assists, and Mandy Tubbs had 19 digs.

SIUE (4-8) will be back in action at 7:30 p.m. Friday to take on the Flyers from Lewis University in the Vadalabene Center. Students get in free with ID.

THE MOST FUN YOU'LL GET OUT OF THE DMV.

A motorcycle operator license is more important than you think. The fact is, unlicensed riders are over-represented in fatal crashes. So get your license. While an afternoon at the DMV isn't much fun, having a license is something you can live with. MOTORCYCLE SAFETY FOUNDATION
