College Forum wants to hear your concerns

BY DANIELLE STERN
ASSISTANT NEWS EDITOR

Students will have a chance to speak their minds at the first College Forum Tuesday, Nov. 9, in the Morris University Center.

The Wellness Center is sponsoring the program in an effort to improve health and safety on campus.

"It's one of the ways of finding out what students really want to know more about," said Wellness Coordinator Mary Baya.

Wellness Center staff started an awareness campaign last week through Alestle advertisements asking students to reply with their top five health and safety concerns. The center compiled a list of topics based on the responses.

Fifty students have been invited to discuss this list of health and safety issues, which include alcohol and other drug use, crime prevention, dating violence and sexual assault, food selection on campus and night life on campus. The students will be divided into five groups, with each group assigned one issue. After the 5 p.m. discussion in the Hickory/Hackberry rooms of the MUC, students will eat dinner at 6:15 p.m. in the same location.

At 7 p.m. the students will participate in an open forum on the health and safety topics, with ten panelists made up of administrators, faculty, staff and one student.

Hunt is under way for new fund-raiser

BY PATRICK EBERS
NEWS EDITOR

The search is on for a new vice chancellor who will oversee the SIUE Foundation and public affairs for SIUE.

Duties of the two positions include recruiting donors to the university and coordination and design of fund raising and public relations campaigns.

The position, officially titled vice chancellor for development and public affairs and executive director of the SIUE foundation has been filled on an interim basis by Brad Hewitt since 1998.

He along with five other candidates will be interviewed in separate open sessions Nov. 3-18.

According to Jim Klenke, chair of the search committee, this position does not directly affect the student body, but because of the fund-raising duties, it can affect the quality of the school in the future and the prestige of degrees.

Attendees will have a chance to grade the candidates with evaluation forms that will be available at the sessions.

Klenke said in late November or early December, the committee will recommend two to three finalists from the current list of six to be interviewed by Chancellor David Werner and SIU President Ted Sanders.

Meningitis vaccine available

BY BRIDGET BRAVE
ASSISTANT NEWS EDITOR

Meningitis is on the move through many college campus across the nation, but SIUE is prepared. Meningitis vaccinations are now available at SIUE Health Services.

The vaccine is provided at a cost of $81 and protects against 50 percent of the strains for two to three years.

The Illinois Department of Health defines meningitis as an inflammation of the membrane that surrounds the brain and spinal cord. Meningitis is caused by viruses or bacteria.

Viral meningitis is generally less severe than the bacterial variety and does not require any specific medical treatment. The bacterial strain is often serious and may result in permanent brain damage, such as hearing loss, or rarely, mental retardation.

Before antibiotics were used, at least 70 percent of the meningitis cases died of the infection. With modern antibiotic treatment, the fatality rate is usually 15 percent or less, but the patient may still suffer long-term neurological problems.

Meningitis is not highly contagious. Generally people have a natural immunity to this disease and illness is infrequent. Both viral and bacterial meningitis are transmitted from person to person through direct contact with nose or throat secretions. In addition, healthy individuals can have these bacteria in their throats and spread them to others.

Letters to the Editor

SURVEY SAYS ...

Dear Alestle editor,

Recently the Alestle has shown ads, sponsored by the Wellness Center, stating that according to a random survey of college students, they drink zero to three drinks a week. Ironically the "Most of Us" ad shows the same three people in a different location over and over again. This began to make me think, could this possibly be another one of those surveys that give people the wrong information? So, I decided to make my own completely random survey. I decided to use Thursday night and Friday night for my data.

My first completely random survey took place at Brewskee's Sports Bar on Thursday night. The results were astonishing. I found that 90 percent of college students had already surpassed their three drinks for the week before they entered the bar. Surprisingly, once inside these people continued to drink more. By the end of the night, 75 percent of the people surveyed had doubled, tripled or even quadrupled the three-drink limit that the Wellness Center recognizes as the average for SIUE students. On Friday evening, I took another completely random survey as I stood by the bathroom at a local keg party. These numbers in the survey resemble the numbers from the previous evening. Therefore, I discovered that 90 percent of students I surveyed are binge drinkers.

Now, I am aware that my completely random survey is ridiculous and my results are wrong. But the Wellness Center's survey does not have much more credibility. Its survey consists of the students who actually took the time to answer the questions. In the past, I used to read the Wellness Center propaganda and just disagree with its statements. However, the Wellness Center has lately become the progressive police and has become annoying. Everywhere I look I see "don't drink," "come to our party and remember it for a change," "have fun at Tons of Fun," and blah, blah, blah. First, only 800 people of 11,000 attended Tons of Fun. Let's look at the other side: 10,200 found something better to do. Now the activities of these people ranged from studying to, yes, boozing. Even though I choose not to attend the Wellness Center events, I do support the Wellness Center for offering these events for people who want to abstain from alcohol.

However, I disagree with many of the Wellness Center's arguments. It wants to tell students if you drink, you will make poor grades and flunk out. I do not disagree that there is a correlation between people who drink every night and the people who flunk out. I do think, however, that the correlation needs a closer look. Many people who drink every night lack the discipline to study. Even without booze, they would find something nonconstructive to do like watch television, stay on the Internet all night, bounce a ball against the wall, stare out the window, etc. The booze just makes the leisure time more fun. Let's be honest, people drink because it is fun to get drunk. Most of the time you don't get sick, or find yourself in a bad situation. Of course, there are exceptions, but there are risks to everything we do. I have a chance of slipping and falling in the bathtub and bleeding to death, but I still take showers.

One area in which the Wellness Center deserves support, is its attempt to stop drunk driving. However, the Wellness Center staff only tries to do this by sending fliers that say "Celebrate today and live tomorrow, have a designated driver." I would like to see them act. Perhaps have a shuttle service from downtown Edwardsville that operates late at night. Promote an organization that hires people to pick up drunk drivers for tips (drunks have a tendency to tip a lot). Instead, SIUE students observe all talk and no action. Now I know the Wellness Center will reply that picking up drunks will encourage binge drinking. However, people do not need encouragement to binge drink because the good times from drinking alcohol sell themselves.

In conclusion, students who drink every night and students who never drink find themselves in the minority. The students who study hard during the week and like to relax with drinks on the weekend are the "most of us." Cheers!

WELCOME BACK, BLOTTER

Dear Alestle editor,

As a reader of this newspaper and a student of this university, I feel compelled to express my thoughts on the police blotter issue.

I've noticed a number of letters to the editor complaining about the blotter actually being printed. To those of you who are distressed about the blotter being a part of the Alestle, why? Did you know that all police reports are a part of the public record? Being a part of the public record means that everyone has the right to read or have access to these reports, all of them. They can include traffic citations, arrests and anything that is filed in a police report.

Broadcast and print media do, however, as courtesy to those listed in the blotter, leave out addresses, phone numbers and other irrelevant information.

So, as much as some of you dislike seeing the police blotter printed in the Alestle, the paper has the right to continue printing it, and the rest of us have a right to continue reading it. So, you can keep complaining about it, writing letters to the editor that nobody cares to read and taking up space that can be used for other valuable material, or you can stop complaining and deal with it.

Letters from home, a humorous look at hometown relatives

This is the ninth "letter from home" in a series of 10. Each letter is published on Tuesday.

Annie Scaggs thought she escaped from her kinfolk deep in the hills. She fled north, married for a little love, a lot of money and became Ayn Fortesque. But her backwoods family never lost a relative, and when they heard she had been hospitalized, they decided to pay her a visit. Her cousin Priney wrote several letters explaining their progress.

Dear cousin Annie,

We are just fine, and we made a stop here in Wide Gap, Missouri to visit with cousin Buford Purdy. You will note he is Paw's cousin twice removed on grandmaw Purdy's side. Well, when we got here Buford was so depressed we had to stay and help. Maw allowed that Buford's condition was nothing to amaze because all the Purdy's was a bit strange ever since Edna Purdy married her cousin Angus Purdy back in 1903 and sired a passel of Purdys.

But poor Buford had ample reason. He had married Delphine Hemp 20 years younger than him who you don't know because she was a Wide Gap girl.

Now Buford made delphine quit her job at the K mart and stay home as Buford said he could right afford to support a wife being as well fixed as he was down to Lenny's garage. And besides he wanted three sumptious meals a day. Well, what Buford didn't know was that Delphine couldn't cook, and for a time, she was bringing him chicken and vittles from the Kentucky Colonels and roast beef from the Hardees. Be seein as how he didn't get no greens, Buford got suspicious and bought Delphine a 25-inch TV and told her to watch the cooking programs. Which she did for a spell but the directions was too fast for her and she didn't have half the stuff in her kitchen that went into the recipies, nor the pot to put it in.

So, she switched to the shopping channels. Well shortly the house filled up with china dogs, wall pictures, rings, fancy dolls and a closet full of clothes that didn't fit. And the UPS man was coming to the house every other day.

Well one thing led to another. Delphine and the UPS man struck up friendly. And one day, that UPS man just left his truck with all his parcels, took Delphine and all her dolls and they drove off in Buford's Oldsmobile. They ain't been heard from since.

So, you can see why we have to stay and cheer up Buford.

Your cousin,

Priney

Faculty to vote on proposal

BY ERIC BATCHELDER
NEWS STRINGER

The Rules and Procedures Council met Friday afternoon to review the request to reorganize the School of Business.

According to Graduate Program Director for Educational Administration Dr. John Borsa, two proposals were made to restructure the School of Business.

The first proposal was that the current department of management and the department of marketing be combined to form a single department called marketing and management.

The other proposal was that the two current departments of economics and finance be combined to form one department called economics and finance.

"According to the proposals, the two departments won't be changed other than becoming one department," Borsa said.

Before the meeting began, Borsa made sure to remind those who attended that the meeting was to be informational.

"Rules and Procedures has a format of open discussion and is not a debate," Borsa said.

But even with Borsa's warning, the meeting took on the tone of a debate.

M. Robert Carver, dean of the School of Business, proposed that since enrollment is up in the business department, restructuring is needed.

According to Carver, 100 percent of the business department members voted on the restructuring proposal, and the vote came up as 44 out of 53 members voting in favor of the proposed changes.

Carver was met, however, with strong opposition from Jacky So, department of finance chair, who argued that the procedures were moving too fast.

"Our main concern," So said, "is that there is not enough time to know the impact of these new changes."

So believed that there needs to be more discussions before mistakes are made.

"We are not against reorganization," So said. "We are against no organization and bad organization."

So ended his statement with one view that was mutually agreed upon by the entire forum.

"We only want to make sure that this reorganization will benefit the students, which should be our ultimate goal," So said.

The proposed changes now move to faculty senate members, who will meet at 2:30 p.m. Thursday in the Hickory Room of the University Center, to be voted upon for approval.

SIUE students pitch in at Fairmont Family Day

BY ANTHONY WATT
NEWS REPORTER

Students of SIUE continue to make their presence felt through volunteer service.

On Saturday, approximately 70 students participated in the Fairmont Family Day at the Holy Rosary Catholic School in Fairmont City.

Among the groups that participated were the School of Nursing, the School of Dental Medicine, the department of special education and communication disorders, the Wellness Center, the Latin Awareness Student Organization and the Student Leadership Development Program.

Fairmont City has a population of 2,300 people, 92 percent of which are Mexican immigrants.

Students played games with children, helped set up tables for the various organizations, translated between Spanish and English and helped provide free medical examinations and information to members of the community.

"They are going to find out about health care available to them," Violetta Garza, president of LASO, said.

Services included dental checkups; breast examinations; flu shots; prostate examinations; physical therapy; and testing for hearing problems, lead poisoning and blood pressure.

"We are definitely teaching the Fairmont City community about flu shots and vaccines," Sonia Deal, a senior in the School of Nursing, said. "We have immunized some of the children, and we will come back and finish."

Booths were also set up to provide information about child and spouse abuse counseling, how to quit smoking, and the results of alcoholism.

"I think this is great," Vicki Garcia, a member of the school board, said. "I am amazed at all of the stuff that is here. People from Fairmont City will definitely benefit from this program.

"I have medical insurance on my kids," she said. "I don't have any on myself at all."

Holy Rosary has been part of Fairmont City for approximately 80 years. The school has students from kindergarten to the eighth grade. Of the 128 students, 112 are bilingual.

"Twenty-five or thirty years ago, we had all ethnic groups, Spanish, Mexican, Polish and Lithuanian. No one group was dominate," Shirley Kurre, principal of Holy Rosary, said. "Now in the last six years it has become largely a Mexican community."

"It is real typical of any community where people are immigrating," she said. "They come because of jobs and family. Children may come, then grandma may come and then cousins. It kind of grows that way."

The panelists include Dr. Narbeth Emmanuel, vice chancellor for student affairs; Randy Rock, dean of students; Christine Durbin, a lecturer for the nursing school; Malcolm Goldsmith, an associate professor in health education; Lt. Tony Bennett of the SIUE Police Department; John Davenport, coordinator of greek life; Michael Schultz, director of housing; Mary Robinson, director of the MUC; Amy Klueter, president of honorary health science organization Eta Sigma Gamma; and a representative of student government to be determined later.

The forum is designed to encourage students to participate in wellness programs and safety awareness, according to Baya. She said that more students need to take advantage of the Wellness Center services.

"We need to hear from you all to find solutions to problems dealing with health and safety," Baya said. "Hopefully the solutions will be implemented to better service the needs of students at SIUE."

According to Baya, the forum will expand next year to include other universities and community colleges.

If you have not registered with the Career Development Center, now is the time.

Employers from eight area companies will be on campus this week to interview students for both co-op and full-time positions. However, students are not eligible for these interviews if they have not completed the online registration process in the CDC.

The registration requires students to submit a resume, their major and their grade point average to be made available to prospective employers. The system then matches companies with students who meet their qualifications.

Student workers and interns are available to assist in the registration process, and a resume critique session is offered by appointment.

Once registered, a student needs only to log on to the CDC Web site, enter their student identification number and a three-digit personal identification number. Job listings, interview schedules and referrals are available.

Hyperlinks for matching companies provides students with company information, desired qualifications, major requirements and job descriptions. If the student is interested, a link provides the opportunity to schedule an on-campus interview.

According to Yasmine Koss, associate director of employment relations, students may be hesitant to register because they believe the process to be much more difficult than it really is.

Koss adds that the company response has been much more positive. "Companies can view resumes of students who have been pre-selected by the system," Koss said. "This cuts down on time and money previously spent on faxes and phone calls. It's much more efficient."

This service is open to anyone and no appointment is necessary.

The following companies will be on campus this week to interview:

Tuesday

—Mance Leahy Group (accounting, management information systems; career, co-op positions)

—KJWW Engineering (electrical and computer engineering; career positions)

—Laclede Gas (accounting, business economics, finance; career positions)

Wednesday

—National Imagery and Mapping Agency (geography-geographic information systems required; career positions)

Thursday

—Sigma Chemical (biology, chemistry; career, co-op positions)

—Wal-Mart/Sam's Club (all business, arts and science majors; career, co-op positions)

Friday

—Anheuser-Busch (MIS, computer information systems, computer science; career, co-op positions)

—Kerber, Eck and Braeckel (accounting; career positions)

For further information call the CDC at 650-3708.

SICK

According to Health Services, an infected person can carry the disease for two weeks before any symptoms occur. Within 24 hours of the onset of symptoms, the condition becomes severe.

Early symptoms are similar to a mild flu. The infected person may experience sore throat, fever, a stiff neck and an increased sensitivity to light. Medical attention should be sought immediately if symptoms occur.

Bacterial meningitis requires medical attention by a physician and can be treated with a number of antibiotics. Antibiotic treatment of most common types of bacterial meningitis should reduce the fatality rate to less than 10 percent, though the fatality rate is higher in infants and the elderly.

The diagnosis is usually made by growing bacteria from a sample of spinal fluid. The fluid is obtained by performing a spinal tap, in which a needle is inserted into an area in the lower back where fluid in the spinal canal is readily accessible. Identification of the type of bacteria responsible for the illness is important for selecting the effective antibiotics.

In cases of viral meningitis, treatment is usually limited to keeping the patient hydrated and reducing fever.

Even though the type B meningococcal virus is responsible for half of the reports of university meningitis in the country, there is no available vaccine.

A little slice of American Pie

BY TOM KENNEDY
LIFESTYLE STRINGER

The Fox Theatre in St. Louis is continuing its main performance series with a production of the musical "Ragtime."

Put simply, "Ragtime" is a slice of American history.

It was written by Tony Award-winning author Terrence McNally, who shows what America was like at the turn of the 20th century.

"Ragtime" weaves together seemingly separate pieces of history until the recognizable quilt of American life appears.

Characters from Henry Ford to Harry Houdini are represented. Eric Olsen, who plays Harry Houdini, said the show has been playing from Cincinnati to Houston with a "great reception" everywhere it goes.

Names like Houdini are embedded into every American's subconscious. Houdini, who was a popular vaudeville entertainer, has become an American social icon such as Babe Ruth or Alfred Hitchcock. Houdini's influence and legend seemed to grow after his death much like that of Ruth or Hitchcock.

Olsen, who considers himself a "borderline-obsessive Houdini fan," said the way in which the historical figures, such as Ford, Houdini and Roosevelt, are portrayed in "Ragtime" has more to do with their social impact than with their private lives.

Olsen said the goal of the production is to show how "these great figures were perceived and what they meant to the people of this time."

When asked if portraying such a revolutionary character caused any pressure or called for any extra preparation, Olsen said he "had already played Houdini in another show." This previous experience, along with his long acquaintance with Houdini's life, tends to ease the strain put on him by playing a man so widely known and idealized.

The company of the four-time Tony Award-winning musical, "Ragtime."

Those who have seen this play either on television or on stage should expect a few changes. First, the play will have fewer stage effects and therefore be more "emphasizing on the script and the story," Olsen said. "We want to get to the heart of the story."

The reason for this downplay of stage effects is that "Ragtime," during this two year tour, will be showing on many stages that are smaller and more compact than those of Broadway.

Olsen said that this will be his first visit to the Fox Theatre and that he has only previously driven through St. Louis. Olsen said some of the players in this production have played the Fox before. He's looking forward to continuing the tour in St. Louis.

"Ragtime" attempts to address most of the social issues and paranoias of the day. A significant part of the show deals with racism in early 20th-century, American culture. It also deals with the overwhelming obstacles that immigrants faced coming to America and the stereotypes and suspicions that greeted them when they stepped off the boats.

The Fox Theatre has a history of outstanding shows appearing on the marquee. Already this season a terrific production of "Jekyll and Hyde" has graced the stage, and it will be very interesting to see how "Ragtime" follows such a marvelous play.

"Ragtime" will be showing Nov. 9-14. Curtain times for the eight performances are 8 p.m. Tuesday through Friday; 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. on Saturday; and 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. on Sunday.

Tickets for this four-time Tony Award-winning musical are available at the Fox box office, Famous-Barr, Streetside Records and select Schnuck's video clubs, including the Edwardsville store. To charge by phone, call MetroTix at (314) 534-1111. Tickets can also be purchased online at <http://www.metrotix.com> and prices range from $21 to $52.

Never has one's true identity been more prevalent than in Kimberly Pierce's "Boys Don't Cry."

The film, which is based on a true story, centers around a young man named Brandon Teena, played by Hilary Swank. Swank was in the film version of "Buffy the Vampire Slayer" and "The Next Karate Kid."

Brandon Teena was new to the small town of Falls City, Neb. He had a bright future and caught the interest of the small town. All the women in town adored him, and anyone who met him could not help but be impressed by his charm.

However, this charismatic young man was not the person everyone thought he was. Teena had a dark secret that would ultimately lead to his death. It was this secret that drew director/co-writer Kimberly Pierce to the story.

"Here was a character who was already becoming an icon only months after being killed," Pierce said. "Teena represented so many strands of our culture. He was female to male, a petty thief and the victim of a hate crime."

Brandon Teena was in fact not the boy everyone wanted him to be. He was a woman from Lincoln, Neb., named Teena Brandon. While Teena Brandon was a young woman trapped in a world that did not accept her, Brandon Teena was a fun-loving breaker of hearts who was continually adored in public.

"It was the simple fact that this person actually existed that was completely compelling," Pierce said. "Figuring out what was going on inside of him and making sense of how he created himself into his fantasy of a guy was worth as many years as it took to figure it out."

It took five years to gather interviews and information to understand Brandon Teena and turn his story into "Boys Don't Cry."

Teena Brandon was a girl living in a small town with virtually no food or money. She had no role models and no one to love her for her true self. So, she reinvented herself as her fantasy of an ideal man.

"It's such an American thing to be the underdog, to go up against all odds, to reinvent yourself, go out in the world and find the one person who will truly accept you for who you are," Pierce said. "It's a classic myth, yet this was Brandon's life."

Pierce said "At a time when men are trying to define themselves, it's quite remarkable what Brandon did."

"Boys Don't Cry" is rated R and has a running time of 114 minutes. It is currently playing in select cities.

Your art for sale

Students with a creative side can make some money at a local coffee house

BY CHRISTY SCHICKER
LIFESTYLE STRINGER

Nobody said museums are the only venue for art. Art is all around us.

Jennifer Courtney, owner of Sacred Grounds, a coffee house at 223 N. Main St. in Edwardsville, has prepared a wall in her shop for hanging artwork, and she changes the art displays every month.

Photographs, paintings, drawings, prints, wall-hangings and quilts can be displayed on the wall, and sculptures, antiques and pottery can be placed at different spots in the shop.

Courtney said she wanted to create "a place for local artists to be able to sell their work."

David Sill, provost and vice chancellor at SIUE, was the first artist to put up his photographs at Sacred Grounds four months ago. Since then, other local artists have contributed to the shop's ambiance. Artists wanting to show their work can choose to sell their pieces or simply loan them for display.

Sacred Grounds is currently displaying 21 photographs by local artist Agnes Cates.

Cates is the fourth artist to display her work on the wall. Her photographs are for sale, averaging around $35 to $45, and include images of flowers, landscapes, sunsets, bridges and other nature photography. Cates includes a short-framed biography along with her photographs. Cates is retired and has intensely focused on photography in the past six years.

Photos: Jill Stevens/ Alestle

Cates' photographs of the Alton bridge at sunrise and at night, the Great River Road and other local areas, assert the idea that one doesn't have to travel far to find impressive subject matter.

Images such as the piece entitled "Milkweed Pod," where the pod is caught at the exact moment of bursting open, make the viewer appreciate the beauty of ordinary objects.

Another local artist, Richard Woloszyn, also has his prints for sale at Sacred Grounds. Woloszyn said his prints are "perfect for the dorms." The cost of the prints averages around $20. They include scenes of the four seasons and local scenes, as well as some European scenery.

Metal sculptures by local artist Tom Ohren are also displayed in the shop and are for sale. Ohren has many other pieces available besides those in the shop, and he also makes personal, unique sculptures on commission. Ohren's work ranges from $25 to $100.

Gary Vondrasek, an Edwardsville artist, has photography for sale, with prices ranging from $25 to $40. Vondrasek has his business cards out for those wishing to purchase his work or inquire about other services he performs in areas of art preservation, restoration and innovation.

Besides art, Sacred Grounds specializes in coffee and baked goods. The shop also sells sandwiches, soups and salads. An open mic night is set aside once a month.

Sacred Grounds is open from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. daily. Courtney encourages students and local artists to participate in showing their work. Students wishing to display work at Sacred Grounds should call Jennifer Courtney at 692-4150 or stop by the shop.

Jump, Little Children has hometown appeal like St. Louis' The Urge. See them tomorrow night at Mississippi Nights.

BY JOE HEDEN
LIFESTYLE STRINGER

Jump, Little Children, a band very well-known in the Carolinas, will be making an appearance Wednesday at Mississippi Nights with headlining act, Guster.

The band, which plays a combination of Celtic folk, Delta blues and alternative rock, has been overlooked for years but is finally starting to catch eyes across the nation.

Jump, Little Children started back in the early '90s when the band's core group met at the North Carolina School of Art and played gigs here and there. Then the band members moved to Ireland for a couple of months, where they established a regular session at a local pub.

When returning to the States, they decided to move to Boston to continue their studies of Irish music. During a horrible winter in Bean Town, they decided to make a run for it and ended up in Charleston, S.C. The songs that members of Jump, Little Children wrote really started taking off, and they played a popular street corner where tourists frequented. Playing the street corner paid the band members' rent.

Lady Cougars trade shutouts

SIUE volleyball team bounces back from loss to Fort Wayne

BY TONY AMMANN
SPORTS EDITOR

The stage was set for a dramatic weekend of volleyball for SIUE.

The Lady Cougars faced the first- and third-place teams in the Great Lakes Valley Conference with the home crowd behind them.

SIUE, 9-2 in the GLVC, faced Indiana University Purdue University-Fort Wayne Friday evening in a classic showdown between the top two teams in the Blue Division.

Fort Wayne began the evening 11-1 in the GLVC. The Ladydons were in no mood to stick around and swept the Lady Cougars in three straight games.

In game one, the Lady Cougars jumped out to a 7-4 lead. A hot smash down the line by SIUE's Anne Ulrich and a pinpoint serve by Lindsay Rust gave the Lady Cougars a 10-5 advantage.

Then Fort Wayne team members showed why they have only lost one conference match this year. The Ladydons came roaring back to tie the game at 11. Sarah Calhoun capped off the drive for Fort Wayne with an ace to make it 12-11 in favor of the Ladydons. SIUE head coach Joe Fisher called a timeout.

SIUE's Jennifer Parks made a kill to get the serve back for the Lady Cougars. Then Ulrich got the momentum back for SIUE when she stuffed a kill attempt by Fort Wayne's Courtney Boissenet. But before the Lady Cougars could make a run and take the game, Fort Wayne burned a timeout as well.

Fort Wayne's Rachel Brown made three kills after the timeout, and the Ladydons went on to win 15-13. It was a sign of things to come for the Lady Cougars.

The Lady Cougars played the beginning of the second game as if they had won the first game. SIUE jumped out to a quick 5-2 lead before Fort Wayne was forced to take a timeout. The Ladydons made it a game once again and stormed back to tie the game at 8.

From that point on, it was all Fort Wayne. The Ladydons went on a 6-0 run on the strength of two monster kills and a blocked kill by Boissenet. Fisher was not ready to give up and neither was his team.

"I told them that they were playing well and not to give up,"

Fisher said.

The Lady Cougars took an early lead in the third game, just as they did in the previous two games. The game went back and forth, as neither team could go on a scoring run.

With the game tied at four, the Ladydons took over and scored seven unanswered points to make the score 11-4. Fort Wayne thought the game and match was in hand, but SIUE had different ideas and came back.

The Ladydons made three consecutive unforced errors, and Rust made a kill to close SIUE within four points at 13-9. But right when SIUE started to make a threat, Fort Wayne decided to take the third game 15-9.

"Both teams played well overall," Fisher said. "I told the girls that the only thing I'm disappointed with is the outcome. I'm not disappointed with the way they played. They played well tonight."

Fisher likes to insert Franklin into the lineup when Rust or Ulrich is struggling in the rotation. Franklin was 2-for-2 in attacks against Fort Wayne.

"They made a good run," Fisher said. "Jenny Franklin came in and got us close enough to make a comeback. She does a good job when she comes in."

Rust led the Lady Cougars with 14 kills in the match. Ulrich had a strong game as well, racking up 10 kills for SIUE. Fisher thought his team would be ready for Saturday's match against St. Joseph's.

Women's soccer team ends regular season with victory

Lady Cougars defeat Missouri-Rolla and Minnesota State

BY ANDY LEHMAN
SPORTS REPORTER

The SIUE women's soccer team knocked off two more opponents in preparation for the Great Lakes Valley Conference Tournament, which begins this weekend.

However the Cougars got off to a slow start Friday against the University of Missouri-Rolla. Rolla struck first at 49:47 with a breakaway goal from Lizz Szkrybala.

SIUE rebounded quickly when Colleen Creamer scored at 56:10. That goal gave her an impressive 13 on the season.

As the clock was winding down, it looked as though the game would be heading into overtime. But thanks to swirling wind and an amazing kick by goaltender Beth Louderman, the game would end without overtime. At 89:39, Megan Beagles scored her sixth goal of the season. Louderman notched her first assist of the season on the goal.

"Beth (Louderman) really laid into that kick," head coach Brian Korbemeyer said. "It bounced over the sweeper's head, and Megan (Beagles) caught up with it, dribbled a few times and knocked in the game winner with 0:21 seconds left."

The excitement did not end there. The Cougars played Minnesota State University as a late-season addition to the schedule on Halloween.

The game was not scary, unless you were a Minnesota

State fan. The Cougars could remain undefeated at home with a victory.

At 11:48, Leslie Henigman scored her fifth goal of the season. Marci Stedman added her fourth assist of the season. SIUE led at the half 1-0.

"We played very well on Sunday," Korbemeyer said. "There were several times when Minnesota State could not get any offense going."

Beagles added an insurance goal at 63:19 off a penalty kick.

At the end of the regular season, freshman Creamer leads the Cougars in scoring with 35 points, 13 goals and nine assists. Senior Beagles is second in scoring with 17 points, seven goals and three assists.

"I think they will bounce back tomorrow," Fisher said Friday. "I think they know that they played well."

He was right. A victory Saturday put the Lady Cougars three victories ahead of St. Joseph's College and in a secure spot for second place in the GLVC.

SIUE jumped out to a quick 5-2 lead Saturday in the first game on the strength of five straight kills by Rust, Parks and Kim Gilman. But St. Joseph's came back and took the lead 7-6.

With the score 9-8 in favor of SIUE, the Lady Cougars tallied five straight points to take a convincing 14-8 lead. Ulrich had two kills in the rally, while Audrey Husk added a kill and a blocked kill for the Lady Cougars. SIUE won the game 15-8.

SIUE took that momentum right into game two and took a 6-0 lead. Husk kept her hot streak going with two kills and a blocked kill in the opening run for the Lady Cougars. Fisher said Friday. "I think they know that they played well."

"I think that got them down and broke their spirits a little bit," Fisher said.

St. Joseph's gave the Lady Cougars a run for their money and tied the score at eight. But SIUE did to the Lady Pumas what Fort Wayne had done to the Lady Cougars the night before. Right when St. Joseph's started to get momentum, the Lady Cougars stopped it.

Despite repeated errant serves, the Lady Cougars took advantage of several mistakes by the Lady Pumas. With the game tied at 11, SIUE went on a 4-0 run and won the game 15-11.

The third game was close in the beginning, but with the score tied at 5, the Lady Cougars went on a 7-0 run to inflate SIUE's lead to 12-5. The run was capped by two serving aces by Ulrich. The Lady Cougars won the game 15-5 to close out the sweep.

"The big thing the entire match for us was to come out and try to play consistent," Fisher said. "We got into a little bit of trouble passing, we needed to push to get ahead, and we ended up doing that."

Fisher believes his team is very good when it comes down to making the big plays late in a match.

"I think one thing that shows that is our record in five-game matches," Fisher said. "You have to push, and every serve is important."

SIUE has a perfect 4-0 record in five-game matches this season. The next match for the Lady Cougars will be at 7 p.m. Thursday against the University of Indianapolis at the Vadalabene Center. The Lady Greyhounds have a record of 4-9 and are in last place in the GLVC Blue Division.

Senior Kristi Stedman is a close third with 13 points.

Louderman recorded 1,484 minutes in the net this season. She played in all 17 games and posted a 0.85 goals against average with six shutouts.

Beagles continued her climb to the top of the SIUE scoring records. She placed third in career scoring with 93 points, third in career goals scored with 37 and fifth in career assists with 19.

The Cougars look for a berth in the National Collegiate Athletic Association Division II Tournament this weekend, when the GLVC Tournament comes to SIUE. If the Cougars would happen to win the GLVC Tournament, they would have a chance at advancing to the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament.

Fun Loving Fools, Wings win games in floor hockey league

Sigma Pi also notches win in league's fourth set of games

BY AARON CLOUSE
SPORTS REPORTER

The fourth set of games of the annual men's and women's floor hockey league was Thursday in the Student Fitness Center.

The first of three games of the night was between the Fun Loving Fools and Sigma Phi Epsilon. The Fun Loving Fools won 14-4 in three periods when the "mercy rule" was invoked.

George Patrylak was the high scorer for the Fun Loving Fools with five goals. James Pipkin and Darryl Frerker each scored four goals and Brad Peterson scored one. Ryan Depoorter scored three of the four Sig Ep goals and John Ogrzewalla scored one.

The second game was between the Wings and Phi Psi. The Wings were ahead of Phi Psi 10-0 when the "mercy rule" was invoked in the second period.

Nick Powers led the attack for the Wings with four goals. Michael Koch and Matthew McCormick each had two goals, while Pat Hill and Jared Rinderer each had one.

The final game of the night was scheduled to be Sigma Pi against Alpha Kappa Lambda. Sigma Pi won by a forfeit since the minimum of three players failed to show for Lambda.

According to league rules, a team is disqualified from the league if it forfeits twice in a season. Lambda has been disqualified from the tournament since this was the fraternity's second forfeit of the season.

The league will play the final games of the regular season 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Student Fitness Center.
