Speeders watch out

BY BRIAN WALLHEIMER
NEWS REPORTER

Campus police are cracking down on speeders.

With two months left in 1999, SIUE police have issued 331 speeding tickets for the year. In 1998, police issued 440 speeding citations.

"I imagine that we will exceed what we had last year," Police Chief Richard Harrison said.

The chief noted that the vehicles speeding and failing to yield to pedestrians.

"If you come through the academic area too fast, you have an excellent chance of receiving a speeding citation," Harrison said.

Harrison said officers are stepping up efforts near parking lots and campus entrances, the high accident areas.

The department has a standing order that if officers are not on a call between 7:30 and 9 a.m. or between 4 and 5 p.m., they are to be looking for speeders using a radar gun.

A ticket is not usually issued if a driver is only 5 mph over the limit. Many of the tickets issued are for much higher speeds, Harrison said.

The fine for speeding at SIUE is the same as anywhere else in the state of Illinois. Any speeding offense up to 20 mph over the limit is a $75 fine. More than 20 mph over the limit requires a court appearance and a fine set by a judge.

Officers do not have quotas to meet, Harrison added.

Moses tells tales on campus

BY ALEX MILLER

Johnny Moses, a Northwest coast Native American teacher and storyteller, will be at the Religious Center from 1 to 7 p.m. Saturday with stories, songs and dances for all ages.

Moses, a member of the Nootka and Tulalip Nations, will host the event in the SiSiWiss (sacred breath) tradition, a tradition he said is available to everybody.

"It can be used to help anyone in need, anyone who is having a hard time, anyone who wants to change their life or who wants to use healing. If they want to use it in their artwork or music, or hands-on healing, or visiting people, they learn this type of medicine that we are sharing today," Moses said.

Moses was raised in a remote Nuu-chah-nulth village of Ohiat on the west coast of Vancouver Island, Canada. Moses said he was raised by his grandparents and elders to be a "memorizer" of their people's history and tradition. Growing up in the Northwest coast Native American tradition, Moses said he was also introduced to many other societies.

"There are so many types of medicine circles or societies. When I was growing up, I was raised in many different types of societies. A lot of them I'm not allowed to talk about because of tradition," Moses said.

Moses later received a bachelor of arts in education from the University of British Columbia, Vancouver. Today Moses serves as an ambassador for Northwest coast cultures and shares his spiritual and cultural traditions with people across North America through storytelling, lectures and workshops.

For more information about Moses and his southwest Illinois tour, visit his Web site at <http://www.johnnymoses.com>.

State grant program assists faculty projects

BY NEAL HAMM
NEWS STRINGER

The Illinois Campus Compact for Community Service is offering its Learn and Serve Scholarship of Engagement Mini Grants.

This opportunity provides faculty members financial support to integrate community service into at least one aspect of their professional development.

"We invite proposals from faculty in collaboration with community-based organizations for projects that connect faculty professional life to the communities in which they live," said Shawn Sweeny, executive director of the ICCCS.

Faculty members can choose to design a project in teaching, research or professional service.

The scholarships, which range from $1,000 to $2,000 each, will fund the development of academic courses, research projects or professional service activities that involve faculty with the community.

Each grantee will also be responsible for providing a match of 50 percent of the funding requested.

The ICCCS said any faculty member of an Illinois Campus Compact school is eligible to receive the scholarship.

Funding for the scholarship is made possible through the Corporation for National Service under the Learn and Serve America: Higher Education program.

For further information, criteria and applications, contact the College of Arts and Sciences dean's office in Room 3409 of Peck Hall or by phone at 650-5058, or call Shawn Sweeny at (309) 438-8123.

A Web site giving information on local speed traps is giving the police a helping hand, Harrison said.

The Going Places Forum on <http://www.postnet.com/leiser> gives locations of speed traps. The St. Louis Post-Dispatch also reported the information.

Harrison said he appreciates the publicity. Newspaper articles and Web sites that tell people where to slow down make the campus safer and easier to protect, he said.

SIUE police expect the number of tickets to rise, especially with winter approaching. Harrison said many tickets are written for frosted, uncleared windshields that might cause an accident.

The police are looking forward to the addition of a new laser gun that will enable them to pinpoint speeding cars in a group. The current radar guns have a hard time reading the speed of one car if it is in a cluster.

The approximate cost of the new laser gun is $4,500 and is being funded through the parking and traffic committee with money from parking stickers and parking tickets.

Harrison stressed that SIUE does not receive any money from speeding fines. "There is no revenue basis for us to write speeding tickets," Harrison said. "It's strictly safety."

Once the laser gun is installed in a police car, Harrison said, the car will remain stationary, gauge motorists' speed and have chase cars ahead to issue tickets.

The Alestle

Campus Box 1167

Edwardsville, Ill. 62026-1167

The Alestle is for news, not public relations

This paper is not a public relations monkey. There seems to be a fundamental misunderstanding of the role of this newspaper and the press in general.

A newspaper has many functions, chief among them to inform, entertain and educate. A good newspaper is a reflection of the community it serves. This means that every aspect of the community should be represented in the paper's coverage. If someone screws up, it will be reported. If someone does something extraordinary, it will be reported. Simply put, the paper is a record of the daily actions, events and commentary of the citizens of the community.

The paper does not exist to report only the good news, nor does it exist to report only the bad. It simply reports.

The Alestle strives to mirror the SIUE campus. This means that if student government screws up, we'll report it. If the administration screws up, we'll report it. If the government or the administration does something good, we'll report that as well. However, keep in mind that this is a newspaper and the quick and dirty definition of news is the abnormal. If something goes against what is expected, it is generally of higher news value than the expected, everyday outcome. This means the bad stuff is generally what is reported as news because it is not what is expected.

I'd also like to state, for the record, we are not a public relations vehicle for any organization on this campus. The Alestle is a newspaper, a real newspaper. We serve a community of 14,000 students, faculty and staff.

Being a newspaper means that the editorial staff has final say over what is printed, covered and ignored. If an organization has something it would like covered, it is more than welcome to send us a press release. Keep in mind, however, that the editorial staff makes the decision to cover or not cover the event. That decision is determined by the events of the day, and if there are more pressing and important stories that need to be told.

As a policy we try to cover as many campus events as possible, and at the very least advance them in the Campus Scanner, usually found on Page 2.

Groups that complain the Alestle does not cover their events, more than likely, have only themselves to blame. It never fails to amaze me how many events are planned and carried out on this campus that no one knows about. No one knows about the events because the planners and organizers simply forget to publicize them.

On the rare occasion we receive a press release from a campus organization, it is generally received a mere one or two days in advance. We are a part-time staff and we need lead time to plan coverage. A press release sent the day before the event will generally be lost to the events already planned for coverage.

So, if you want your organization and events covered, let us know you exist and when you plan to have events. We are the campus paper and we try to cover and promote campus events as much as possible. However, we aren't mind readers. Let the campus members know their world, send the Alestle a press release.

Letters to the Editor

EVERYONE'S PROBLEM

Dear Alestle editor,

Steps are being taken and eyes are being opened. Society has a newfound respect for people of other races. Why, then, are so many students at Southern Illinois University Edwardsville ignoring these advancements?

As a student at SIUE, I do see positive situations where people of different races are interacting every day. Unfortunately, these instances are not enough to overshadow the negative situations that I encounter just as often. I notice things happening and hear things being said that make me forget about the steps our campus is taking in the right direction. Racism is not just a black and white issue.

The main conflict at this university seems to be between black and white individuals and groups.

I notice the racial segregation in the cafeteria, at campus-sponsored events and even in classroom settings. I hear derogatory phrases directed toward certain groups when I am passing through the university center, the quad and in the residence halls. Organizations at SIUE are trying to close the gap, and they should be recognized for their efforts to promote diversity, but action needs to be taken by individual students.

I do not expect everyone to get along and love each other, but general courtesy could do a lot to change our current situation. Students at this university should be more open-minded, receptive to change and willing to go out of their comfort zone if anything is to change.

Courtney Goodson
SIUE student

Through the years

1972: Nixon is drafted, says campus newspaper

BY DAVID TATUM
ALESTLE COLUMNIST

This university was a different place 27 years ago, but some things never change.

The Alestle staff beat campus radio station WSIE in an exhibition basketball game 94-70. Alestle reporter Willie Riddle scored 52 points. The Alestle used only four players against the five who played for WSIE.

It was reported in the Alestle that this university had lost 95 percent of its fiscal budget for 1973. The school had planned on receiving $10,700,570 from the state and federal governments, but got $471,675 instead.

This university used to get all kinds of nationally known personalities and political activists to appear on campus. Miles Davis played here in 1972. William Kunstler, Dick Gregory and Ralph Nader all came to speak. Jane Fonda also came to voice her opposition to the Vietnam War. A lot of students were unhappy with Fonda's appearance on campus, calling her a traitor to her nation. The actress had paid a visit to North Vietnam only months before to pledge her support for the North Vietnamese army. She had gone so far as to sit on one of the anti-aircraft guns that shot down US planes. A letter to the editor ran in the Alestle with the headline "Try Fonda for treason."

University Hair used to be a quite different place than it is now. In 1972, it was simply called the Barber Shop and was staffed by four, burly guys. If students wanted reading material while they waited, piles of Playboy magazines had thoughtfully been provided by the barbers.

Of course, 1972 was an election year, and SIUE's candidate for president was the school mascot, Chimega the cougar. The feline did not win. Another cougar, named Mai Tai, was brought in to mate with our campus feline, but their coupling must not have been productive because no cougar kittens were reported in the paper that year.

The school also had an unofficial mascot in 1972 named Stanley the sparrow. The bird was allowed to fly free in the library.

Richard Nixon was president in 1972, and everyone on campus had something to say about the guy. A humorous column ran a fictional scenario in the Feb. 11 Alestle reporting that Nixon had been drafted. Nixon said he didn't want to serve and, after all, he was the president so he shouldn't have to. Members of the Cabinet said "rules are rules" and sent the chief executive packing for boot camp.

If there was a bone to pick, this is it

BY ANDREW LEHMAN
LIFESTYLE REPORTER

A serial killer is walking the streets of Manhattan, leaving cryptic and often times satanic messages hidden at crime scenes.

This is the premise of Phillip Noyce's new film "The Bone Collector." Noyce, who directed the suspense thrillers "Dead Calm," "Clear and Present Danger" and "Patriot Games," adds another thriller notch to his belt. The film has been compared to 1991's "The Silence of the Lambs" and 1995's "Seven."

The cast features Academy Award-winning actor Denzel Washington as Lincoln Rhyme. Washington is a very diverse actor who has starred in such films as "Glory," "Philadelphia," Spike Lee's "Malcolm X," "Crimson Tide" and Kenneth Branagh's "Much Ado About Nothing."

Angelina Jolie plays street-smart policewoman Amelia Donaghy, Lincoln Rhyme's reluctant new partner. Jolie's most recent credits include starring opposite Sean Connery in "Playing by Heart," "Pushing Tin" and opposite David Duchovny and Timothy Hutton in "Playing God."

The cast also includes Queen Latifah who plays Thelma. Queen Latifah most recently starred with Danny DeVito and Holly Hunter in "Living Out Loud." Michael Rooker, star of Renny Harlin's "Cliffhanger," plays Capt. Howard Cheney. Ed O'Neill, best known for his role in television's "Married With Children," is Detective Paulie Sellito.

The film centers around Washington's character, Lincoln Rhyme, a former New York City detective specializing in forensics and once one of the nation's leading criminologists. After a near-fatal injury in the line of duty, Rhyme is left bedridden without the use of his arms and legs.

On the eve of being transferred to a desk job, police officer Amelia Donaghy answers her last call as a street cop. The call leads her to the gruesome crime scene where the victim has been horribly mutilated.

Rhyme dismisses the case at first, but when he starts to notice subtle details in the pictures that Donaghy took at the scene, Rhyme signs back on. He enlists the help of Donaghy, who is reluctant to work on the case. The two soon form a partnership, and Donaghy becomes Rhyme's eyes, ears and legs. Together the two hope to prevent the hideous serial killer from striking again.

Much of the film's action takes place in the apartment of Lincoln Rhyme. Director Noyce and cinematographer Dean Semler, who won the Academy Award for cinematography for Kevin Costner's "Dancing With Wolves," faced a tough challenge in filming the static apartment in a visually striking manner.

The screenplay was written by Jeremy Iacone who most recently wrote "One Tough Cop" and co-wrote the critically acclaimed "Bound by Honor." He enjoyed a career in theater before writing screenplays for Sylvester Stallone and Kevin Costner. Iacone adapted the screenplay for "The Bone Collector" from Jeffery Deaver's best-selling novel of the same name.

"The Bone Collector" is rated R due to violent and adult content and will be released tomorrow in theaters everywhere.

FREE COMPUTERS

Can it be true or is it rumor?

BY MARK HOWELL
TECHNOLOGY EDITOR

Can you get a computer and then be reimbursed by financial aid?

This rumor has been circulating on campus. Rumors have ranged from getting a free computer to buying one and being reimbursed by financial aid.

If you are a naturally skeptical person, then you probably are thinking that sounds too good to be true. For the most part, you are correct.

In the last several years, Congress changed regulations on the country's Student Financial Assistance Programs. Congress made it possible for someone to take out extra money from financial aid to purchase a computer and software.

When the program began only select students with special needs could use it. In the fall of 1998, Congress reworked the SFA Programs to allow for anyone to take advantage of the program. Yes, anyone!

Even students who have received their maximum loan amount for the year can use the program. The program allows a student who has taken out the maximum to take out an additional $1,500. Still confused?

Then, imagine a fictional freshman named Joe. Joe is not on financial aid but would like to get a computer. Joe has three choices.

First, Joe can just buy the computer himself without any help from financial aid. Joe may get rebates and the store may be able to finance the computer for him.

Joe's second choice is buying a computer for up to $1,500. After buying the computer, Joe can attempt to get a loan through financial aid. This option is a bit more risky because Joe has spent his money before being guaranteed the loan. Provided, if he gets the loan, he will get his money back and pay for the loan over time.

The third choice is that Joe can go to the Office of Student Financial Aid. Joe can find out if he is eligible for the loan. If it looks likely, then Joe can fill out some paperwork and get up to a $1,500 loan toward a new computer. Joe will repay the loan over time.

That is basically how this financing option works. If you are interested in this program, then you should check with Financial Aid before buying the computer to make sure you are eligible.

There are many restrictions and rules that Student Financial Aid must follow so there is a chance that you may not get the loan. But should you get the loan, it is a great way to get a computer now, and then pay for it in the future.

SHADOW MAN FAILS TO ENTERTAIN OR SCARE

BY MATT BLIND
TECHNOLOGY STRINGER

Acclaim's Shadow Man, a feeble attempt at a more adult Super Mario-like game, has cast a permanent shadow on the shelf of any video store suckered into stocking it.

The game is played over the shoulder of Mike LeRoi, the main character in Shadow Man. The game alternates between the worlds of the living, Liveside, and the dead, Deadside. Mike LeRoi's alter ego, the Shadow Man, has to defend the Liveside from five serial killers who are attempting to round up some ghouls and take over the living world.

As dark souls - little hearts along the paths - collected, more levels become available, heightening the possibility for suspense. If a gamer advances to the next level and finds that something vital was not collected in the previous level, it is possible to travel back to find what is needed. Unfortunately, if it is necessary to travel backward, all enemies that have been killed previously must be fought again. This limits extra exploration of the game.

The graphics are horrendous. They bring back memories from the days of Pac Man. Jerky movements and an uncomfortable layout of the controls make it hard to enjoy. And, making my way through the restricted number of levels, I couldn't keep from laughing at the Halloween costumes and Skeletor-looking creatures.

The game does feature a good menu function that can be accessed at any time by pushing the arrow button. The menu function provides biographies of the serial killers and a mission page like that of Golden Eye. It also includes an inventory page that details the number of weapons and collectibles belonging to the gamer.

Players are heavily armed. However, it is likely gamers will laugh at the pitiful collection of items, such as skulls that power up the voodoo weapons, dark souls which allow one to go further into other levels, and gift offerings for Queen Loa.

For a game that emphasizes horror, Shadow Man does not spark a bit of fear in even the youngest souls. It seems that Acclaim expects gamers to be scared of all of the pints of blood lying on the ground or maybe the skeletons are supposed to be scary. Neither the graphics nor the annoying cries of women and children ever frightened this gamer. Let's hope that Acclaim can come up with something scarier than Shadow Man before the year is over.

RealNetworks spying on users

RealNetworks may be in some trouble. The company's digital music program RealJukebox has been sending information about music files on users' computers to the company. This is done without users' knowledge, as it is left out of the privacy agreement that is agreed to before installing the program.

Company officials claim the information is used for monitoring listening habits. However, security experts and privacy advocates such as Junkbusters Inc. are claiming that RealNetworks has violated the privacy rights of the 13.5 million registered users of the program.

Because of the controversy, RealNetworks has added three paragraphs to its privacy statement about the issue and also released a patch for the program to disable the transmission of information. (ZDNET)

*Great Lakes Valley Conference Game (HOME GAMES in caps)

Women's team ready to roll

BY TONY AMMANN
SPORTS EDITOR

The latest edition of the SIUE women's basketball team has a new look and could possibly perform better than last year's team.

Last year the Lady Cougars advanced all the way to the National Collegiate Athletic Association Regionals, only to lose to Michigan Tech University in the semifinal game.

The Lady Cougars rode on the backs of Kim Lowe and Misi Clark throughout most of the year. Both Lowe and Clark were First Team All-Great Lakes Valley Conference selections.

Lowe will not be a part of the equation for the Lady Cougars' success this year though. Lowe, who led SIUE in rebounding and scoring last season, graduated in the spring.

Now that Lowe is gone, Clark will most likely be the dominating player for SIUE this season. Head coach Wendy Hedberg thinks Clark will not change her style of play just because Lowe will be absent.

"I think she plays just the way she plays, which is hard," Hedberg said. "I think this year we have a lot more balance than we did last year. I think we have five people on the floor who can score."

Lowe ranks No. 1 all-time at SIUE in rebounding (917) and games played (111). She is the fifth-leading scorer in school history with 1,475 points. But Lowe is likely to be passed by Clark in that category.

Clark, a junior from Paris

High School, ranks 11th in career scoring with 1,099 points. If Clark were to equal that total in her final two seasons, she would break Terri Evans' school record for total points by 549 points. She set the freshman record for scoring at SIUE with 551 points in the 1997-98 season when she was an All-American.

Clark will not be all alone on the court this year. SIUE has filled the vacant spot at center by adding Sarah Cook, a transfer student from the University of Toledo. Hedberg thinks Cook will be an offensive threat, especially underneath the basket.

"I think Sarah Cook is going to step in and give us some of the inside that we lost with Kim Lowe last year," Hedberg said. "I think she's somebody else on the floor who can score for us."

Hedberg thinks Cook is learning plays and gelling with her new team.

"She's catching on to that stuff real quick," Hedberg said. "There doesn't seem to be a problem there at all. In fact she's working real well with Crystal (Gladson). The two of them inside just complement each other."

Gladson, a 6-foot junior from Fairmount, averaged 6.2 points and 6.2 rebounds per game last season. She also led the Lady Cougars and the GLVC in blocked shots with 47.

"She has worked really hard in the preseason," Hedberg said. "She has confidence in her shot and right now she's playing with a lot of confidence, which really makes a big difference."

Rams remember an all-time great

St. Louis players and coaches reflect on the career of the late Walter Payton

BY GEORGE DWYER
SPORTS REPORTER

One of the greatest football players who ever played the game died Monday. Former Chicago Bears running back died of liver disease at age 45.

Payton set rushing records in the National Football League that stand today - all-time leading rusher with more than 16,000 yards; most yards in one game set in 1977 in a 10-7 victory against the Minnesota Vikings.

Fans and players alike fondly recall the man known to millions "Sweetness."

Rams head coach Dick Vermeil coached against Payton a few times. Vermeil even got to face Payton in a 1979 wild card game when his Eagles knocked off the Bears 27-17. Vermeil felt that there will never be another running back like Payton.

"He was no Jim Brown or Gale Sayers, but he was without a doubt the hardest-working football player I have ever seen," Vermeil said. "He got to play for some pretty bad Bears teams, and I am sure he would have won more Super Bowls if he had been on a winner."

Payton was a member of the 1985 Bears championship team. Some say the Bears could have been the single, greatest football team for one season. Part of that was the leadership of Payton and his hunger to win.

"He was a great part of that 1985 team, and they would not have gone as far as they did without his leadership," assistant Rams coach Jim Hanifan said. "The thing I guess we will miss the most is his smile."

Even some players today have to be impressed by what Payton did on the football field. He was a throwback player who didn't run out of bounds with a tackler bearing down on him. Instead, he would take that tackler head on. In most cases it was the defender who would feel the blow of the hit.

"He is what many backs today should try to emulate," running back Marshall Faulk said.

Starting at the other guard position next to Clark this year will be sophomore Kristi Eller. Eller was a spot starter last year, averaging 4.3 points per game and added 12 steals.

"She's a good ball handler and a very good spot-up shooter," Hedberg said. "She has a good court sense, too. She usually doesn't turn the ball over too much."

Sarah Sollberger will dedicate her senior year solely to basketball. Sollberger played softball in her first three years at SIUE but will give it up this year and focus on hoops. Hedberg looks to use her at the small forward or off-guard positions.

"She's had a great preseason," Hedberg said. "Even last year right around the last month, she picked up her game. I think right now she could very easily start off at that point."

The Lady Cougars welcome five freshmen to the team this season. Megan Grizzle will see a little time as a substitute for Gladson at the forward position. According to Hedberg, Grizzle didn't start getting into basketball until her junior year in high school.

"She still has a few years ahead of her to play, but we're very happy as far as where she is right now," Hedberg said. Grizzle was named honorable mention All-State last year for Salem. She averaged 12 points and 9.7 rebounds per game for a Salem team that reached the Elite Eight in the state tournament.

Sarah Larson, a 5-foot-10 forward, will also see her first action at SIUE this season. Larson averaged 22.8 points per game last year at Galesburg and earned First Team All-State honors. Galesburg advanced to the state championship tournament in each of the four years that Larson played.

"She does a great job of going to the offensive boards," Hedberg said. "She doesn't mind mixing it up. She'll get in there and bang with people. She has a really nice outside shot, but she can also take it to the basket."

Another new face on the team is Liz DeShasier. DeShasier, a 5-foot-11 forward from Carrollton, earned First Team All-State honors last year. She averaged 13.7 points and 6.7 rebounds per game and was also named Alton Telegraph Player of the Year twice in her career.

"Liz just brings a great leadership even as a freshman," Hedberg said. "She just works hard at the game, doesn't make too many mistakes and isn't real flashy. She's kind of the one that nobody will notice, but she'll get the job done for us."

Melissa Schneider and Sarah Schweers are the other freshmen. Hedberg believes Schneider and Schweers will see time according to how the games play out. Sophomore Jill Johnson should see playing time this year as well. Johnson was an outstanding rebounder in her high school years at Highland. Hedberg has been not only impressed with her athletic ability, but her dedication to improve as well.

"She's really gotten herself in shape to play," Hedberg said. "She's spent a lot of time in the gym working on moves and shots and that kind of thing."

Rounding out the rest of the SIUE team will be sophomore forward Heather Hillebrenner, sophomore forward Amanda Buldman and junior guard Erica Cory.

Hillebrenner played in 14 games last year for the Lady Cougars and had a .417 field goal percentage. Buldman played in 19 games and made better than 44 percent of her shots. Cory's 25 steals were third best on the team last year and her 57 assists ranked fourth highest for the 1998-99 squad.

Last year the Lady Cougars out-rebounded their opponents by 27 boards. SIUE had 22 more blocked shots than the opposition, as well. Hedberg believes a strong defense will be key to SIUE's success this year.

"I thought we did a great job last year on defense, and we hope to carry that into this year," Hedberg said. "I think we just have to go out every night and play like it's the NCAA Championship."

Many coaches have a goal of playing about .500 ball on the road and taking advantage of the home court whenever possible. The Lady Cougars did just that last year, going 6-5 away from SIUE and 10-1 at the Vadalabene Center. Hedberg believes a few breaks never hurt a team's chances of winning, either.

"We just have to go out and play our game," Hedberg said. "If we do that, we can be successful."

Hedberg also believes that the GLVC is strong from top to bottom.

"Our conference really is very competitive. There are so many teams in the top eight that went to the conference (tournament) last year."

Northern Kentucky, SIUE, Southern Indiana, Lewis University and the University of Missouri-St. Louis were all ranked in the top 10 in the Great Lakes Region last year.

SIUE's first game will be an exhibition game at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 10, against Ukrainian Nationals at the Vadalabene Center. The Lady Cougars' first regular season game will be at 5:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 20, against McKendree College.

Second dose of bowling leagues is forming at MUC rec center

Day and night leagues will offer cash prizes at end of year

BY JULIE RANDLE
SPORTS STRINGER

Morris University Center Recreation is offering a striking winter sport: bowling leagues.

Day and night leagues are currently forming at the recreation center on the lower level of the Morris University Center. Leagues began at 7:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, and there will also be sessions at 12 p.m. Friday and 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

The bowling leagues will last five weeks and cost a one-time fee of $5 per student. Each team will have two players, playing two games a week. In most cases, games will take less than an hour to play.

In order for leagues to offer fair competition, there is a 100 percent handicap for all skill levels. Therefore, any bowling level is perfect for the leagues, from beginner to pro. Last year's winning scores averaged from 103 to 198.

SIUE bowling leagues offer cash prizes to the winning teams that place first through fourth in the tournament at the end of the year.

The tournament for the prize money will be at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 12. The first-place team will receive $50; the second-place team, $25; the third-place team, $15; and the fourth-place team, $10.

The first session of bowling leagues appeared to be very successful.

The 7:30 p.m. team winners were Salt-n-Pepa and Moore or Less.

Courtney Luster's average of 119 and Derrick Tower's average of 114 compiled a winning record of 12-3 for Salt-n-Pepa.

Placing second was Moore or Less with a record of 9.5 - 4.5. Tony Moore's average was 164, and Diana Moore's average was 116.

The 8:30 p.m. team winners were Team Three and Team Six. Team Three's record of 12-3 took first with William Siple averaging 140 and Kevin Howell averaging 133.

Bob Stansberry's average of 168 and Steve Reins' average of 154 gave Team Six a record of 9-6.

For further information, call the recreation center at 650-LANE. Bowling leagues must have 12 people for the league to start.

Corey Deist/Aleste

The entry fee for the bowling leagues is a one-time fee of $5.

"You watch video today of him, and you have to stop and just admire what he could do with a football."

Payton's career lasted from 1975 to 1987, 13 NFL seasons. During that time he only missed one game. When he played he just wanted to go out and hit someone.

"He was a very conditioned athlete, and I don't think we will see another player who was as durable as him to only miss one game," Vermeil said.

On a personal note, Payton is without a doubt my favorite athlete of all time. He is the reason why I am a huge Bears and football fan today. I had the pleasure to meet Payton back in my senior year of high school. The thing that I will treasure during that 10-minute conversation is that he always tried to be friendly. His infectious smile will forever be in my memory.

Now to get to the Rams. They played a tough game Sunday and made some huge mistakes but managed to put themselves in a position to tie the football game. I think that loss will be good for the Rams because they saw how they came together as a team. They have another tough test this Sunday against the Detroit Lions. Look for the Rams to rebound in this one.
