Women's basketball team falls in first round of GLVC Tourney

Evansville, Ind., Wednesday afternoon.

The Lady Cougars played well in the first half trailing by only four, but they could not play at the same level in the second half.

SIUE shot 60 percent from the field in the first half, but that number dipped to 40 percent in the second. Bellarmine did just the opposite, shooting 40 percent in the first and 56 percent in the second.

SIUE's star player, junior forward Ruth Kipping, did not make an appearance in Wednesday's game. Kipping was out with the flu and was not even on the Lady Cougars' bench during the first half.

"She tried to do shoot around, but she just couldn't do it," assistant coach Roy Gilmore said.

Kipping led the Lady Cougars' regular season with 18.7 points per game and 9.6 rebounds per game.

an early departure in the first round of the Great Lakes Valley Conference Tournament.

The Bellarmine University Lady Knights ended SIUE's season with a 90-79 win in Without Kipping, two other Lady Cougars stepped up their games on the offensive end.

Sophomore guard Jessica Robert led the way for the Lady Cougars, scoring a career-high 26 points. She fouled out with less than five minutes left in the game, committing her last three fouls in a minute and a half.

Junior forward Liz DeShasier also racked up career-high points, scoring 14, but Bellarmine was just too much.

Lady Knight junior center Shanta Bowens posted 25 points in the game to lead all scorers and junior guard Nickie Randall scored 23.

While SIUE was down only four points after the first half, Bellarmine ran away with the game to start the second. The Lady Knights opened up in the second half on a 10-2 run.

The Lady Cougars were down 14 with 4:57 left in the game and started to mount a comeback.

With about a minute left in the game, the Lady Cougars found themselves down only seven points. The rest of the game came down to the charity stripe.

Prairie floods by accident

BRIAN WALLHEIMER
EDITOR IN CHIEF

Students were forced to evacuate Prairie Hall Tuesday night after a sprinkler head was broken on the third floor, triggering the hall's fire alarm.

University Housing Director Michael Schultz said a student had hung clothes on a sprinkler head in the third-floor room and when the student removed the clothes, the head broke.

Water came gushing from the sprinkler, flooding the room and sending water into 13 other rooms at 8:30 p.m. Schultz said water seeped through walls and under doors into rooms on all floors. He said since the room was at the end of the hall, much of the water went down a stairwell.

Schultz said a building engineer had the water turned off quickly, but he did not know how long before the water was shut off.

Financial aid deadline soon

JESSICA MULLEN
NEWS STRINGER

March 1 is the preferred filing date for 2002-03 financial aid applications.

Students are encouraged to apply for financial aid online by going to www.fafsa.ed.gov or clicking on FAFSA on the Web at www.finaid.siu.edu. FAFSA stands for Free Application For Student Aid.

Completing the online application is faster and easier than the paper application, according to the SIUE Financial Aid Office. The paper application takes four to six weeks to process, while the online application takes two to three weeks. Because the online application is typed there is less chance of error.

According to the Financial Aid Office, students should first try to complete the online application.

If a paper application is needed, students must go to the Financial Aid Office and ask for an application.

If students have any questions, they should call the Financial Aid Office at 650-3880 to speak to a financial aid adviser.

Foreign Languages and Literature Department secretary Sherry Venturelli received the Employee Recognition Award for February.

The award was presented to her Feb. 12. Employees are nominated and selected from a pool of hopefuls each month.

Geert Pallenmans, chair of the Foreign Languages and Literature Department, nominated Venturelli for the award.

"Her personality and interest in foreign language are bonuses (to the department)," Pallenmans

Sherry Venturelli

said. Venturelli received her bachelor of arts degree in Spanish during her 14 years as secretary with the department.

"She takes a personal interest in the faculty members' well-being," Pallenmans said.

Venturelli received a plaque, a $25 gift certificate to the University Bookstore and a parking space next to the University Center for one month.

"It is nice, I'm going to enjoy the parking," Venturelli said.

The first day of her parking award she was ticketed. The fine was $30.

"That (the ticket) put me $5 in the hole," Venturelli said.

Parking services waived the fine.

Only two students chose to return to their rooms; others found dry places for the night.

Dehumidifiers and fans are being used to dry the rooms, and Schultz said the rooms should be dry by Thursday.

Schultz said he did not know how many students were in Prairie Hall when the sprinkler head was broken, but students did evacuate and spent around 10 minutes outside in below-freezing temperatures.

Schultz said the water did not damage the hall's walls or floors and did little damage to the ceiling where the sprinkler broke.

"It doesn't look significant," he said Wednesday. "We had a bit of damage to drywall where the head broke."

He said most of the damage was to students' personal property.

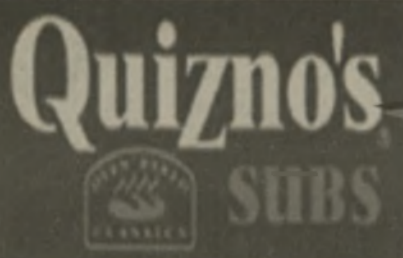

The worst damage to students' property was in the room where the sprinkler was broken.

Schultz said students who had property damaged by the water must bear the cost.

"They are responsible for their own insurance; either renter's or under their parents," he said.

Schultz would not release the name of the student who caused the sprinkler to break, but said the student would go through disciplinary procedures.

"They're not supposed to tamper with fire equipment," he

ERs are some people's last resort

There have been a number of stories lately on the health care crisis caused by overcrowded emergency rooms throughout the United States. However, network news programs have managed to avoid discussion of a fundamental reason for this problem: the vast number of Americans without health insurance.

More than 43 million people are without health insurance in the United States today. Walk-in health clinics, supposedly designed to treat low-income patients, can refuse treatment to people unable to pay cash at the time of service. The need for billing arrangements often forces the uninsured to seek treatment in emergency rooms.

The need for health care, especially for those who can't afford insurance, was largely ignored in the "60 Minutes II" segment Jan. 23 on overcrowded emergency rooms called "No Vacancy."

Instead, "60 Minutes II" implied that uninsured people are partially to blame for the overcrowding. The program referred briefly to the "43 million uninsured Americans whose main access to health care is through the emergency room," and then said, "The result: Most ERs are so overwhelmed they routinely turn away ambulances."

The reporter went on to reproach the uninsured, saying, "the responsibility for solving the problem must be shared by everyone—the hospitals have to give their ERs greater resources. The ERs themselves must run more efficiently. And finally, patients have to stop using the ER for nonemergencies."

This statement is particularly fascinating because it seems to put uninsured patients on the same level of responsibility as hospital administrators. This is a rather heavy burden to put on the 43 million people so impoverished they can't afford health insurance.

Since "60 Minutes II" acknowledged that the emergency room was often the only way for the uninsured to get health care, it's quite a stretch to place blame for a faulty health care system on such an utterly powerless group.

This unsubtle finger-pointing at the poor doesn't ask, let alone attempt to answer, the underlying question: Where are the uninsured supposed to go for care when they are denied affordable treatment?

One thing almost never mentioned when network news programs discuss problems with the health care system is the debate over the need for universal health care. Although news pundits excel at avoiding the debate about the United States' uninsured, they seem to find plenty of time to disparage the health care systems of countries throughout the developed world that offer health care coverage to all citizens.

According to the World Health Organization, the United States is the only developed country to deny its citizens health care, making a trip to the doctor for a check-up a luxury that many simply can't afford.

Sadly, this causes the kind of medical neglect that allows preventable illness to become chronic.

According to consumer activist Ralph Nader, the only presidential candidate in the last election to demand universal health care coverage, the U.S. health care system is a disgrace.

In Nader's call for a patients' bill of rights he wrote, "We spend more on health care per capita than any other nation in the world, often double that of nations in Western Europe which cover all their people. Yet, the World Health Organization ranks the United States as 37th in overall quality of health care."

So while U.S. media pundits make smug comments about the horrors of socialized medicine, the American poor languish in the richest country in the world that refuses to offer such a basic human right as access to health care.

Maybe "60 Minutes II" should do a story about that.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

This letter is in reply to Melinda Hawkins' column about focusing on the wrong issues in the Feb. 21 Alestle.

As a former commercial broadcast worker, having worked at radio stations owned by individuals rather than greedy corporations, I can see why the broadcast networks aren't devoting as much coverage to the trial of Slobodan Milosevic as the foreign media. They're preoccupied with trying to meet unrealistic profit margins every month. Corporate media's bottom line has been terrible. Viacom, the parent company of CBS, lost nearly $2 billion last year.

And it doesn't stop there. News coverage on commercial radio has been decimated as well. The worst example is Clear Channel Communications, which has slashed news operations to the bone in an attempt to meet unrealistic profit margins. The owner of more than 1,200 radio stations and 19 television stations lost more than $1 billion last year. Who do we have to thank for this?

Blame it on Congress, the National Association of Broadcasters and President Clinton. The Telecommunications Act of 1996 brought the American media into this mess.

A lot of news has covered the collapse of Enron. Not only have the broadcast networks run with this story like it was the end of the world, but the cable networks devoted to news, such as CNN, MSNBC

Dear Editor:

I would like to apologize to anyone I might have offended in my last letter to the editor. I would like to say I am sorry. I did not mean to insult any race, religion or ethnicity when I said "ticket Nazis."

It has been brought to my attention that there are graphic vulgar fliers circulating on campus. I did not have anything to do with the fliers. I have yet to see one, but I have heard they are graphic. The whole reason behind my first letter was to hopefully get the tickets removed from the students who received them. I did not think this situation would get this out of hand, nor did I intend it to. I still ask the student government to try and get the $25 dollar charges dropped from the students that received tickets.

Brad Voelkerding
Junior

and the Fox News Channel, have covered Enron ad nauseam.

Now, Congress is investigating this corporate entity. If the American media isn't careful, corporate entities like Viacom and Clear Channel Communications may suffer the same fate as Enron. I, for one, might care about an Olympic scandal, but I really don't want to hear about cloned cats.

Commercial radio is even worse. Nobody wants to hear the filth from the mouths of charlatans like Howard Stern or M.J. While I still respect a number of commercial broadcast journalists like Dan Rather at CBS, Julius Hunter at KMOV or Brit Hume at the Fox News Channel, commercial radio has lost my respect.

Upon leaving KDNL several years ago, former St. Louis television news anchor Don Marsh called the news business "more glamour than grit."

This is so true of not only radio and television news, but the commercial broadcast business in the United States in general. Unless they return to covering hard news and important issues, as Walter Cronkite did, the radio and television news business will continue to lose respectability among the American public.

Student of the week

JANELLE LOHMAN
NEWS REPORTER

Rather than fight authority, student of the week Rob Old has decided he would like to be the authority.

Old, a 22-year-old senior, decided early in life to pursue a career in law enforcement.

"There's just something about having a badge and a gun that I like," Old said.

He said he is learning a lot about different areas of law enforcement during his internship with Illinois State Police. Though he is only two weeks into his internship, he has already been on a marijuana raid in St. Louis with six U.S. marshals and three undercover agents.

"There's not too many internships where you can do that sort of thing," Old said.

Rather than becoming a beat officer, Old said he would like to be a detective or special agent. He said he did not realize all the opportunities in law enforcement until he started his internship.

Old plans to graduate in May with a speech communications degree with an emphasis on public relations.

Although he'll be graduating before the criminal justice program at SIUE begins, he said he likes the education he's getting from the speech communications department.

Local senator and community get involved to help book campaign

RICHARD A. KOERPER II
NEWS STRINGER

Students and faculty have the chance to donate books for a good cause.

The "A Book in Every Home" campaign is in its sixth year at SIUE. During its first four years, the campaign was a joint venture between SIUE and Southern Illinois University Carbondale. Beverly Sanders, wife of the SIU's former president, Ted Sanders, started the program to provide books for children of ages six months to five years old.

Within the past two years there have been several changes to the program. The first change was the dissolution of the joint campaign. Now each campus has an individual program.

Another change was the expansion into the local area.

"Originally we worked in the St. Clair County at their Head Start, but we've expanded to the Madison County to the Head Start Program," said Kay Werner, manager of information technology at the East St. Louis Center. "Also by widening to the Madison County we have expanded from the Child Development Center in East St. Louis to add the Early Child Development Center in Edwardsville and the Early Explorations center in the University Research Park."

Other changes include more community involvement. There has been a request to the community to help with either financial donations or donations of books so more children can become involved with the program.

Sen. Evelyn Bowles, D-Edwardsville, has become very involved in the campaign and has been named honorary chair.

The last change was the decision to move the campaign to spring rather than winter, as it was before.

"Too many children were confusing this campaign with Christmas, and we didn't want that to happen," Werner said.

The campaign, which started Jan. 15, will end March 15. Students or faculty who wish to make donations can make checks payable to "SIUE Foundation" with the memo, "A Book In Every Home," which can be mailed to Campus Box 1058. There is also a box for books at the University Bookstore in the Morris University Center.

Anyone choosing to purchase a book for donation at the bookstore can tell the clerk before purchase and receive a 20 percent discount.

Women's History Month offers look at different eras

AMY WINKLER
NEWS STRINGER

Women will have the opportunity to learn history about their predecessors during Women's History Month.

During March, SIUE is sponsoring several events. There will be a luncheon forum with Layli Miller, co-author of "Do They Hear You When You Cry?"

A theatrical performance of "Rosie the Riveter: Women at Work in WW II" will be presented.

The documentary "When the Bough Breaks: Children of Women in Prison" is also on the month's schedule.

The luncheon forum with Layli Miller will be from noon to 1 p.m. Thursday, March 7, in the Morris University Center in the University Club.

Her book, "Do They Hear You When You Cry?" tells the true story of Fauziya Kassindja, a woman from Togo who sought asylum in the United States because female genital mutilation is practiced in her home country. Miller served as Kassindja's lawyer in court proceedings to determine whether to grant asylum to Kassindja. She won the case.

Kassindja's was the first case to recognize female genital mutilation as grounds for asylum. Miller will discuss her book as well as her experiences as a lawyer concerned with women's issues.

"Rosie the Riveter: Women at Work in WW II" will be presented at 3 p.m. Sunday, March 9, in Dunham Hall Theater.

The Historyonics Theatre Company of the Missouri Historical Society will perform. The show explores the effect of World War II on women in America.

With men leaving the job market and joining the war effort in Europe, women began to fill in the gaps on the home front.

The play also depicts the conflicts that arose when men returned from war.

For more information on the performance, call the Historyonics Theatre Company at (314) 361-5858 or visit its Web site at www.historyonics.org.

The documentary "When the Bough Breaks: Children of Women in Prison" will be presented at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, March 21, in Peck Hall room 2304.

The documentary looks at the lives of three Missouri families with mothers in prison. The question that ultimately arises in these cases is who is really punished: the mothers or the children?

Jill Petzall, director of the documentary, will discuss her film as well as showing the 57-minute documentary.

For more information, call Petzall at (314) 725-1196 or e-mail jill@beacondocs.com.

Students get opportunity to speak with chancellor

CALLIE STILWELL
ASSISTANT NEWS EDITOR

Students leaving evening classes Wednesday were greeted by Chancellor David Werner and numerous deans and directors.

Dialogue with the Chancellor gave students a chance to talk one on one with Werner.

"It's a special time to get to students who don't have access," Werner said as he stood in the second-floor lobby of Peck Hall. The hour-long dialogue began at 7 p.m.

Werner said daytime students have more opportunity to talk to deans and other directors because their office hours are during the day.

"Most of us aren't here at their time. It shows we support them and want to address their concerns," Morris University Center Associate Director Tom Viel said.

Werner said it is good to hear about problems students are having because if one student is experiencing something, then others are also. One of the goals of the program is to talk with students and find areas for improvement.

Some students came with complaints and concerns, but many just wanted to meet administrators.

"It was nice to be able to walk out of class and meet the people who run this school," graduate student Lena Dye said.

Granite City teacher Amy Heath said, "I like the fact that they are more visible, out where classes are going on."

"I think it is excellent. We're going to hear it straight from the students," Curriculum and Instruction Chairman Randy Smith said. "We're opening up all of the avenues."

'Fool for Love'

Small cast stars in production in Metcalf

JEREMY HOUSEWRIGHT
LIFESTYLE STRINGER

"Fool For Love," by Sam Shepard, will be performed at Metcalf Theater.

Shepard, an award-winning playwright and famous actor, can be seen in the film "Black Hawk Down."

The play takes place in a Mohave Desert hotel room. The four characters in the play are May, played by Kristin Mefford; Eddie, played by Shane Signorino; Martin, played by Tim Eaker; and The Old Man, played by Brock Hill.

"May is a 30-year-old lovesick woman, who is insecure with herself and longs to be loved," Wendy Greenwood, director of the play, said.

"Eddie, 33, is a male domineering character and the sexual dominate figure in the play," Greenwood said.

"Martin is a small-town guy and a hard worker. He is just a simple guy looking for love," Eaker said.

"The Old Man is the reason that Eddie and May met each other, he enjoys them suffering," Greenwood said.

Eddie and May have a cyclical on-again, off-again relationship.

"Martin is very much like the audience because he walks into May and Eddie's life. He is supposed to take May on a date and hopes she will fall in love with him. It's as if he walks into a typhoon or a horrible storm," Greenwood said.

The audience gets to see one cycle in the lives of people torn apart by love.

Greenwood said the underlying theme of the play is "can't live with you, can't live without you."

"The play is trying to say that you can't help who you fall in love with. You never get over love, it is the overall conquering emotion. Everyone has experienced some form of love in their lives," Greenwood said.

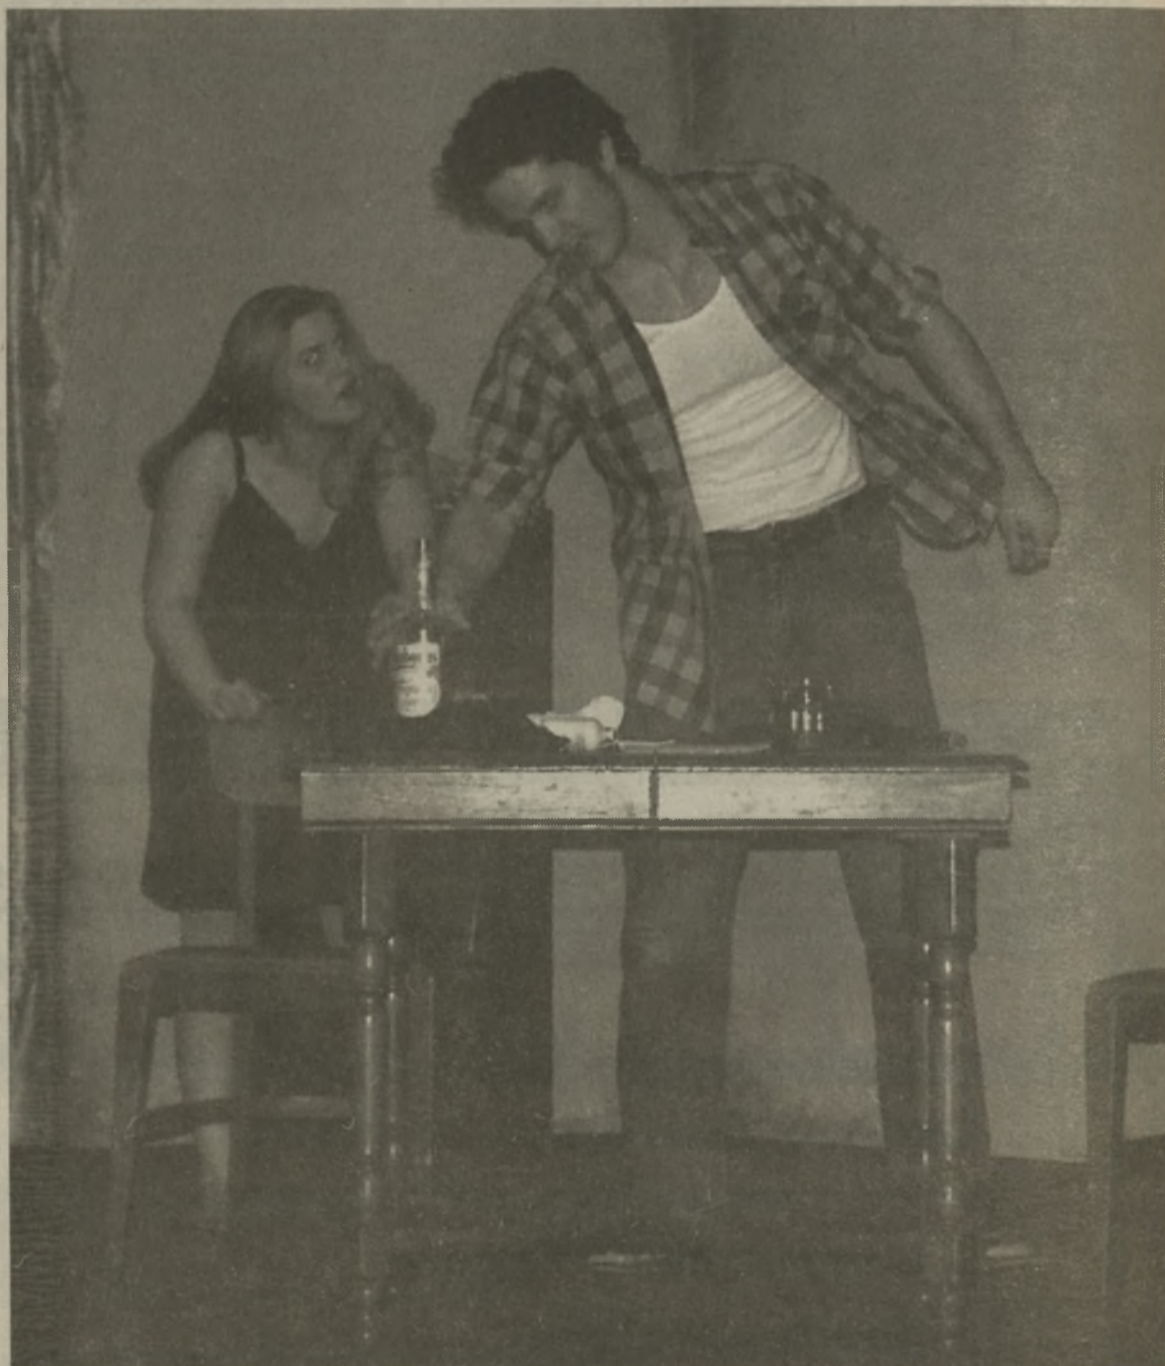

Greenwood said she knows the script like the back of her hand.

"This is such a passionate and powerful piece, it drew me to it and it drew the actors to it," she said.

"The play deals with every emotion and runs the gamut of every emotion love can appeal to," Greenwood said.

"Fool for Love" will run every night at 7:30 p.m. through Saturday and at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Tickets are $4. For more information call 650-2774.

Kristin Mefford and Shane Signorino perform during a dress rehearsal.

The Undergraduate Art Exhibit is on display in the New Wagner Gallery until March 9.

The show was put together by art professor Bill Klingensmith. The show gives art students the opportunity to showcase their talents and eligibility for different awards.

The pieces range from paintings to metalworkings.

Juror for the exhibition was Terry

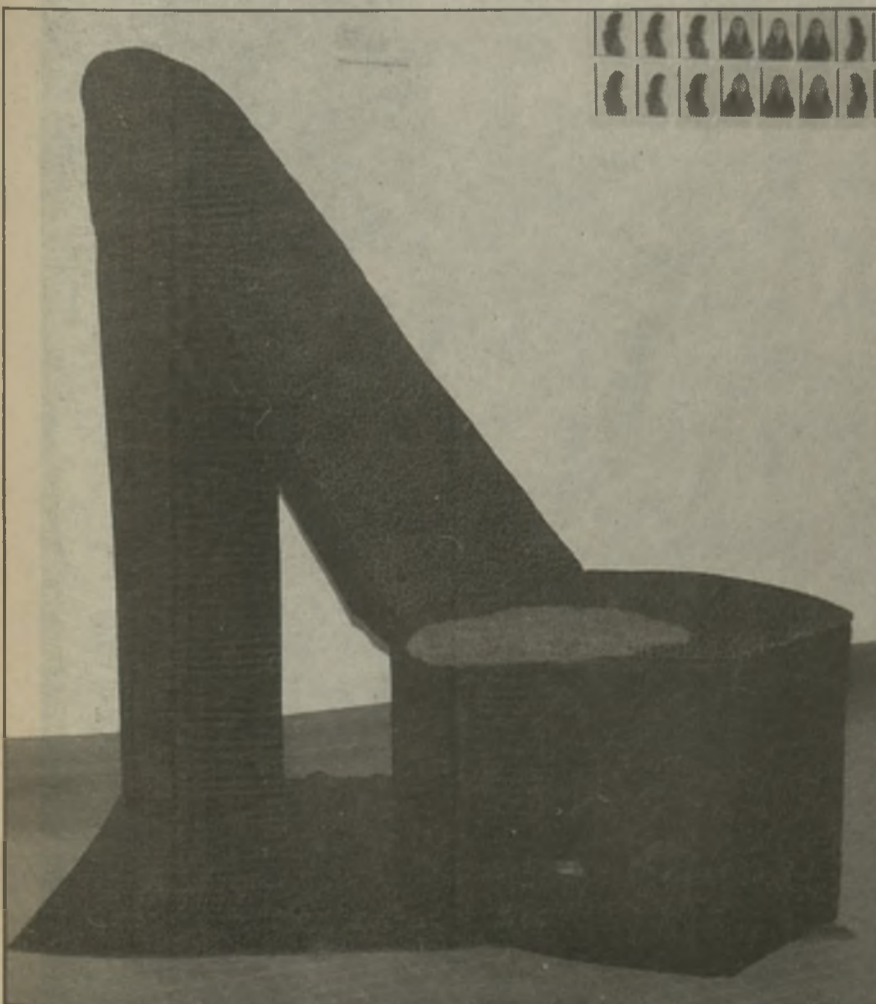

Suhre, director of Gallery 210 at the University of Missouri-St. Louis.

Suhre's criteria for evaluating the artwork varied according to the artist's intent and success in the articulation of an idea.

"As a juror I attempt to be as open and as non-biased as possible to artists who push at the edges of accepted art-making practice and challenge my critical position," Suhre said. "But I must acknowledge that I carry some strong preferences that I have developed over 20-plus years of study and work in the visual arts."

"West," by Michael Trefzger, won a Friends of Art Award.

"Shoe," by Sheri Richter, won a Friends of Art Award.

"The Scope of Things," by Jenece Booker, won a Friends of Art Award.

HELP YOUR DOCTOR HELP YOU IN THREE EASY STEPS.

When you have a chronic illness, there are steps you can take to support your health care team, and help them to do their very best for you.

Ask questions.

There's no faster way to understand your symptoms, your treatment, your dos and don'ts. So ask your doctor, your nurses, your therapists. Ask why, how, and why not. Don't be shy. Remember, they all work for you. They're there to listen and answer your questions.

Educate yourself.

Read up on your illness and your medicines. Your library has a wealth of information. The Internet is another great source. Smart patients stop acting like patients—and become partners in their health care treatment.

Network with others.

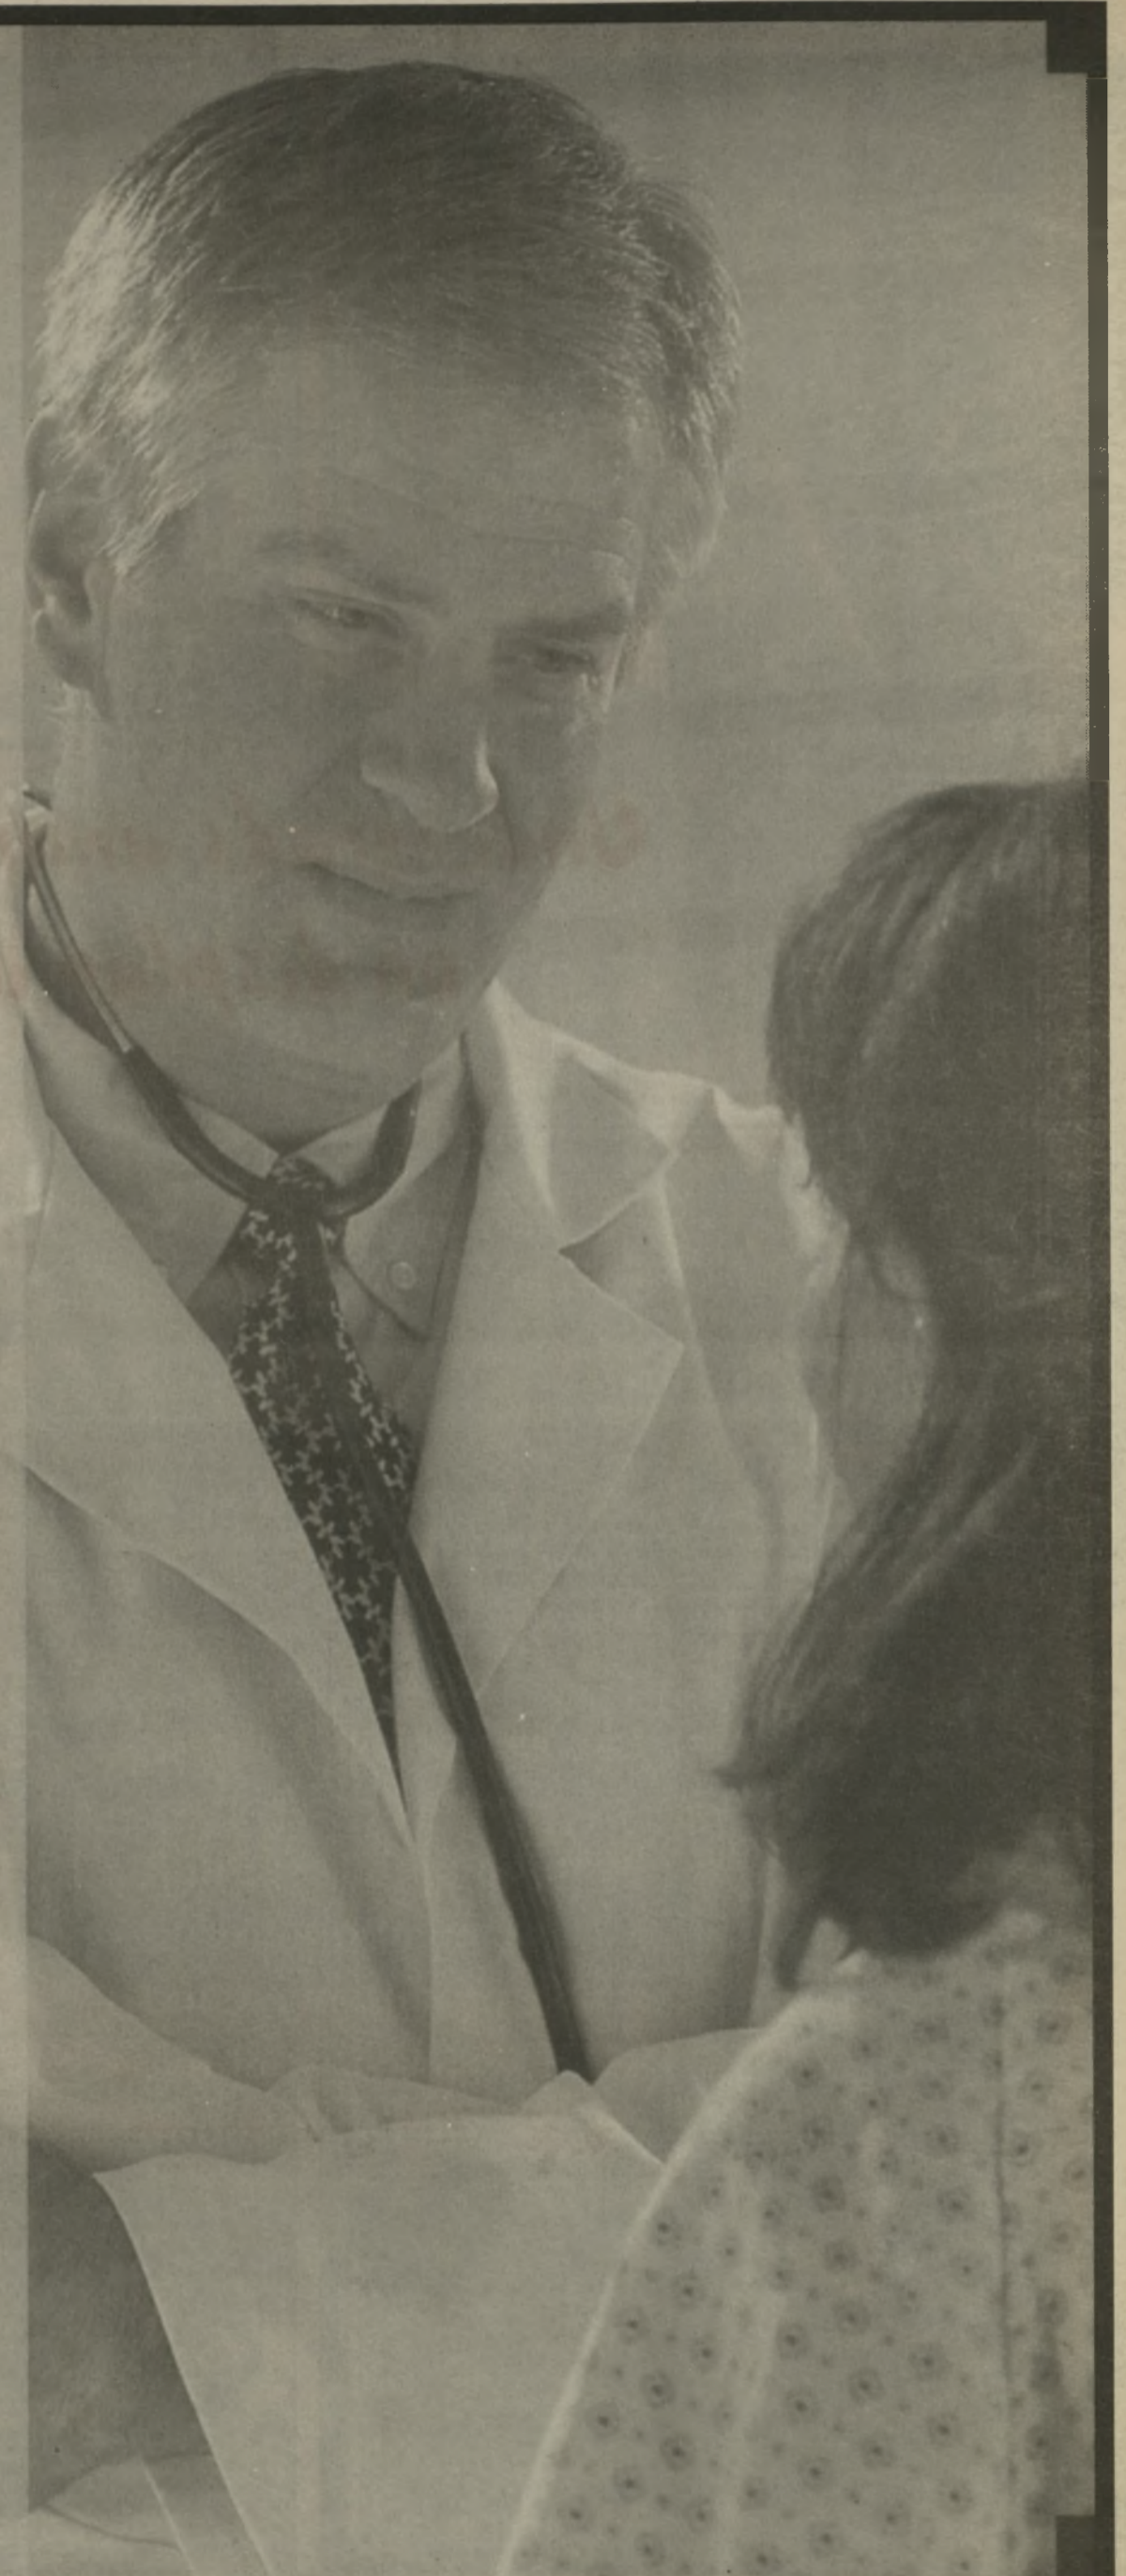

Whatever your illness, there are others out there, just like you. In fact, it's assured there's a national agency to help people with your condition. Groups like the National Osteoporosis Foundation and the American Heart Association can put you in touch with people who know what you're going through. Ask your providers about the organizations that are out there for you.

Cougar baseball starts season off at .500

SIUE will try to go above .500 against Lincoln College and Missouri Southern State

KELI KEENER
SPORTS STRINGER

The Cougar baseball team is off to a .500 start at four wins and four losses in pre-Great Lakes Valley Conference games and will try to improve its record on a road trip across the river.

SIUE will head to Jefferson City, Mo., to face Lincoln College at 2 p.m. Friday.

The Cougars are then scheduled to travel to Joplin, Mo., this weekend to play Missouri Southern State University, Washburn University, of Topeka, Kan., and North Dakota State University, of Fargo.

SIUE will start off with a game against MSSU at 10 a.m. Saturday.

The team will then take on Washburn at 12:30 p.m.

Sunday, the Cougars are slated to play NDSU at 10 a.m. and then MSSU again at 12:30 p.m.

SIUE is coming off a series of games last week in Florence, Ala., where the team lost to Southern Arkansas University 8-2 and 7-4 and picked up a win against Northern Alabama University, 9-1.

In their first loss to Southern, the Cougars gave away the game in the first inning of play, allowing Southern to score six runs.

The game was scoreless until the top of the fifth inning when the Cougars scored two runs.

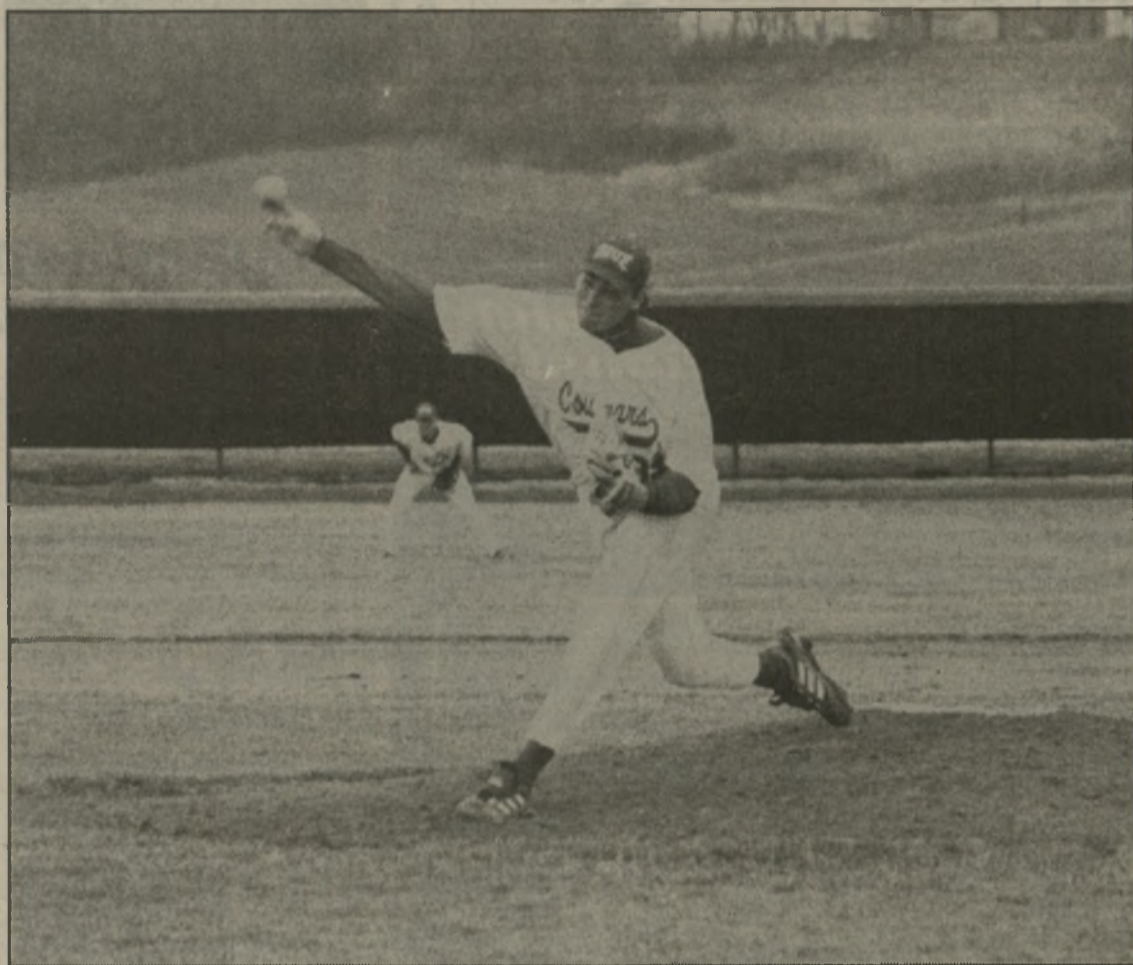

Southern would score two more in the bottom of the sixth, sealing the win.

Junior second baseman Justin McBride and senior shortstop Chad Opel led the Cougars offensively, each recording one hit and driving in one run.

Junior pitcher Jarrod Peters picked up the Cougar loss.

In game two against Southern, the Cougars made a charge in the final inning, scoring three runs, but it wasn't enough as they lost 7-4.

SIUE softball ready to pounce on Catawba Tourney

Lady Cougars travel to Salisbury, N.C., with hopes to improve on their quick 9-1 start in 2002

AMY GRANT
ASSISTANT SPORTS EDITOR

The Lady Cougar softball team will play its third consecutive tournament on the road this weekend with hopes of encountering the same success it has had in the last two tournaments.

The Lady Cougars will travel to Catawba College in Salisbury, N.C., for the Catawba Tournament.

SIUE went 5-0 in the Delta State Tournament in Cleveland, Miss., two weeks ago and 4-1 at the Kennesaw State Tournament in Kennesaw, Ga., last weekend.

Due to their play in the tournament, SIUE junior outfielder Koree Claxton and junior pitcher RyAnn Spann have been named Great Lakes Valley Conference Players of the Week.

Claxton is leading the team with a .455 batting average, 15 hits, 13 RBIs and 28 total bases. She also has four doubles and three home runs in 10 games this season.

Spann has put together a 5-0 record with a 0.97 ERA, giving up only 21 hits and five earned runs while striking out 42 batters.

"The pitchers are throwing well right now," head coach Sandy Montgomery said. "They're doing a good job of shutting teams down and giving our offense a chance to score some runs."

The Catawba Tournament consists of three games Saturday and one game Sunday before bracket play.

SIUE's first scheduled matchup is against the Barton College Lady Bulldogs, of Wilson, N.C. Barton opened its season Feb. 17 with a doubleheader against the University of North Carolina-Pembroke. The Lady Bulldogs won the first game 4-1, but lost the second game 8-4 after Pembroke recorded seven runs in the second inning.

Kutztown University, of Kutztown, Penn., is the Lady Cougars' second opponent. Kutztown finished last season 28-21 overall and 16-8 in the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference, for second place.

The Golden Bears are led by junior pitcher Kellie Evans and junior outfielder Beth Morris.

Evans is a 2001 All-PSAC East first-team selection after finishing 21 games with a 1.81 ERA and 109 strikeouts.

She was also second on the team with a .356 batting average and 32 runs.

Morris batted .286 last season with 12 runs and 16 RBIs.

SIUE will face Catawba in its final game of the day Saturday.

Koree Claxton

RyAnn Spann

The Lady Cougar softball team has jumped out to a quick 9-1 start this season bringing two Lady Cougars some Great Lakes Valley Conference accolades.

Junior outfielder Koree Claxton and junior pitcher RyAnn Spann were named GLVC Players of the Week for their performances in the Kennesaw State Tournament in Kennesaw, Ga.

Like the team, the two Lady Cougars have come out firing early this season with Claxton doing damage at the plate and Spann going to work on the mound.

Claxton, who has started all

10 games for the Lady Cougars this season, leads the team with a .455 batting average, 15 hits and 13 RBIs.

She has an .848 slugging percentage and is second on the team with three home runs.

Spann is off to a similar start from just a year ago, leading the Lady Cougar pitching charge. She has a perfect 5-0 record with an ERA of 0.97.

In 36 innings of work, Spann has struck out 42 batters and only recorded five earned runs.

All five of her wins have been complete games.

The two Lady Cougars will try to continue their early season success in Salisbury, N.C., at the Catawba Tournament this weekend.

Cougar tennis kicks off new season

SIUE tennis starts season off against Wayne State University

KUMAR BHOOSHAN
SPORTS EDITOR

The men's tennis team will travel to King's Point Racquetball Club in Belleville this weekend to go head-to-head with Wayne State University at 1 p.m. Saturday.

This will kick off SIUE's first match of the spring season and coach Bill Logan said his team will anticipate a tough match against Wayne State, of Detroit.

The Cougars have already played fall matches in the the Great Lakes Valley Conference Fall Tournament.

In that tournament, five SIUE members advanced to the second round and freshman Andy Renner advanced to the third round, where he lost.

He went on to win his consolation match.

SIUE will be paced by seniors Francisco Perez and Heath Turpin.

In fall action, Perez had a 2-4 overall record in individual play and a 1-1 overall record in doubles play with Renner.

Turpin led the Cougars last season and will look to do so this year.

In the fall, Turpin went 3-3 in singles play and carried a 1-2 record with teammate Chris Welkner.

SIUE will also look to freshman Chris Rigdon to be a bright spot for the team in the spring season.

In the fall, Rigdon finished with the best record at 5-2 in singles and had a 1-1 doubles record with Renner.

Renner was second on the Cougar squad in the fall with a 4-

Senior Heath Turpin finished the fall season 3-3 in singles play.

2 record in singles play. Logan said he expects big things from his team, which has been practicing hard and raised its level of competition.

After its matchup with Wayne State, the team will travel to Pensacola, Fla., to play four matches against the University of West Florida, of Pensacola, Delta State University of Cleveland, Miss., Dallas Baptist University and Martin Methodist College, of Pulaski, Tenn.

Conference play will not start until March 29 when the Cougars play host to St. Joseph's College.

Catawba is coming off back-to-back 8-2 and 5-3 losses against Belmont Abbey College, of Belmont, N.C., in a doubleheader last week.

With the losses, the Lady Indians fell to 4-3-1 on the season.

The Lady Cougars will play their final game before the bracket competition against Lees McRae College, of Banner Elk, N.C.

Senior shortstop Summer Scott led Lees McRae to a 13-20 record last season with 35 hits, 16 runs and a .389 batting average while going 5-for-5 on stolen bases.

In the Cougars' lone win of the weekend, SIUE put on an offensive clinic, racking up 16 hits.

SIUE looked to junior pitcher Nick Seibert to pitch his way to a Cougar victory.

Seibert went six innings, allowing only four hits and no runs.

McBride again led the way for the Cougars going 3-for-4 with three runs scored.

Opel also went 3-for-4 with two runs scored and one RBI.

The Cougars were scheduled to play host to Lindenwood University, of St. Charles, Mo., Wednesday but the game was canceled due to inclement weather.

So far the highlights of the season have come from Seibert, Opel and McBride.

Seibert has not allowed an earned run in his first 13 innings of work on the mound.

He has a 0.00 ERA and a record of 2-0. In 13 innings, Seibert has struck out 13 and only allowed seven hits.

Opel, who recently moved up to No. 2 on the all-time runs list at SIUE, leads the Cougars early on this season with a .556 batting average.

Collins also commented that he is looking forward to the return of sophomore utility player Wes Pickering this weekend.

Pickering spent the 2001 season sidelined with a knee injury.

He recently finished up his season as a member of the basketball team and is anxious to slip back into the lineup.

SIUE put Bellarmine on the free-throw line several times in the final minute of the game. But Bellarmine would not stumble. The Lady Knights went 30-for-38 from the line.

The Lady Cougars had similar success from the line. SIUE made good on 16 of 20 free throws.

The loss ends the Lady Cougars' season and the careers of three SIUE seniors.

Forward Jill Johnson, guard Heather Hillebrenner and forward Amanda Buldtman ended their SIUE careers Wednesday.

Johnson played most of the game with an injured right leg and needed help leaving the court with four minutes left in the game.

Earlier in the season Johnson had to wear a face mask because of a broken nose she suffered at midseason.

Johnson ended her career with 6.4 points per game and 4.9 rebounds per game in the regular season.

She played in 22 games, starting in 19 of them.

Buldtman racked up 10.2 points per game and 3.2 rebounds per game during her final regular season.

She had to adjust from the previous year when she came into games from the bench.

This year Buldtman started 25 of 26 games for the Lady Cougars and played an average of 34.2 minutes per game, second only to Robert.

Hillebrenner leaves the Lady Cougars as the team's most accurate 3-point shooter. Hillebrenner made 46.7 percent of her shots from behind the arc. She played in all 26 games this season, making four appearances as a starter.
