Student elections continue

BROOK BERTELS/ALESTLE

Students vote in the student government elections Monday in Goshen Lounge of the Morris University Center. Voting will continue through Tuesday.

Complaints filed in student election

TRAVIS L. ROSS
NEWS REPORTER

The "good and clean" election sought by Election Commissioner Jeff Twardowski held true until the last minute.

According to Student Body President Dwayne Bess, presidential candidate Michelle King filed three grievances Friday.

"I asked for a good clean election," Twardowski said. "Right now that's in question."

According to King, one of the grievances deals with a potential violation of the 2002 Election Manual, which says, "Student fee money cannot be used by student organizations that endorse candidates."

King would not comment on the incident beyond citing the violation in the Election Manual, but did say that a serious investigation should be held.

"I think the grievances are fairly serious and should require further inspection," King said. "I hope that some criteria above a warning will be issued."

Twardowski said the Election Commission has two to five days to reach a conclusion about the grievances.

"The Election Commission will start investigation immediately," Bess said. "Depending on the harshness of what happened, there will be repercussions."

The Election Commission consists of Twardowski, Student Trustee Jason Holzum and two students at large.

According to King, the students at large will be determined at Friday's student government meeting, seven days after the grievances were filed.

The three grievances filed by King make a total of four grievances this election. The other grievance was filed against senate candidate Anthony Albertina for posting materials not approved by election officials. The grievance against Albertina was retracted.

Voting took place Saturday and Monday. Students will have one last chance to vote from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Tuesday in Peck Hall, the Morris University Center, Woodland Hall, Prairie Hall and the Skywalk Cafe.

The unofficial results of the election will be posted Wednesday.

Tuition increase is on the table

RICHARD A. KOERPER II
NEWS STRINGER

The Southern Illinois University board of trustees will consider Thursday whether tuition will increase almost 11 percent next school year.

Gov. George Ryan has proposed cuts in higher education and is asking public universities to reimburse the state for increases in health care costs. Under Ryan's proposal, SIUE could lose about $4.3 million, or 5.8 percent less than the budget for the current fiscal year, which began July 1.

If this recommendation is accepted by Legislature, tuition will rise and there could be program cuts.

"Currently we are looking at the positions that are open to see what can be eliminated, delayed in being filled or reorganized in some manner to reduce cost," Chancellor David Werner said.

Also, some maintenance projects such as road and building repairs will be postponed.

So far there are no plans to let any faculty go due to the loss of funds.

"These are difficult times," Werner said, "but we're going to do whatever we need to do to make sure we weather this storm, and we're going to get through and we're going to become better than we were before."

Werner added that the university intends to "preserve our academic programs." Although faculty searches are continuing, Werner said administrators are reviewing openings to see if hirings can be delayed or eliminated.

Mass Comm Week offers fun for all

Mass Comm Week 2002 will give students the opportunity to learn from the pros as well as find an internship.

Activities are planned for Tuesday through Friday and feature a professor from Mexico, St. Louis Post-Dispatch columnist Bill McClellan and a film made more than 50 years ago about a man who should not be on Illinois' death row.

At 12:30 p.m. Tuesday in Room 1015 of Dunham Hall, the SIUE Chapter of Society of Professional Journalists will show "Call Northside 777," a 1948 black-and-white film about a Chicago reporter freeing a wrongfully convicted man from death row. Free popcorn will be provided and there will be a round-table discussion afterward.

At 2 p.m. Tuesday, Hector Sanchez from the Monterrey Institute of Technology in Toluca, Mexico, will discuss media and democracy in Mexico in Room 2039 of Dunham Hall.

Finance board boosts cash for organizations

TRAVIS L. ROSS
NEWS REPORTER

At Friday's finance board meeting some organizations asked board members to revisit their decisions on annual allocations.

The Student Art Therapy Association received $500, the Turkish American Students and Friends Association was granted $200 and the Society of Professional Journalists was approved for $425. These were all increases from what the board approved in March.

SATA Co-President Tracy Warnecke said her organization would use the funds to replace some of the older materials the organization uses.

Allocations go for office supplies, mailings and printing costs for a year.

Requests for allocations would have been complete two weeks ago, but three groups' requests for allocations were tabled until Friday's meeting.

The Black Student Association was allocated $250, the Institute of Industrial Engineers received $100 and Chi Epsilon was given nothing.

Chi Epsilon and IIE did not have representatives at the meeting.

In other business, the board reviewed travel requests.

Alpha Kappa Lambda was approved for $425 to aid in attending its national convention.

Dental School ranked No. 4

RICHARD A. KOERPER II
NEWS STRINGER

The SIUE Dental School is No. 4 in the nation thanks to the scores posted by seniors taking their national board test.

Every senior passed the board test in December.

The American Dental Association requires passing a two-part test before anyone can practice dentistry in the United States. The first part tests students on foundation knowledge in biomedical science and on some dental knowledge. This test is given the students' second year in school.

The second part is given in the fall of their senior year. This part tests knowledge and understanding in all aspects of clinical dentistry.

The average score for the test was 82 percent.

"There are two major reasons for our success," Associate Dean of the Dental School Ann Boyle said. "First, the students work very hard in our curriculum and study hard for the examination. Second, the faculty do a great job of instruction in all areas of the curriculum."

The fourth place national ranking is among the 52 schools that took part in the test.

Smoke in Prairie trips alarm

CALLIE STILWELL
ASSISTANT NEWS EDITOR

Prairie Hall residents had a cold start to their weekend as they waited outside for police and firefighters after an alarm sounded Friday.

SIUE Police Chief Richard Harrison said there was smoke, but no flames in the hall and students were evacuated at 10:34 p.m.

"Somebody had taken a light bulb from the third-floor hallway and put it in the microwave,"

Harrison said.

The incident happened in the east wing social lounge.

Students were able to return once the building was cleared.

Harrison said the police are investigating, but had no suspects as of Monday afternoon.

Resident assistants get honors

NICOLE BROWN
NEWS REPORTER

SIUE resident assistants received awards at the annual Illinois State Resident Assistant Association conference at North Central College in Naperville.

This annual conference last month gathered resident assistants from all over Illinois to share ideas about their roles in colleges and universities.

Resident assistant for 2 West in Bluff Hall, Chelsey McGuire, and resident assistant for 1 East in Prairie Hall, Barbara Burgess, were both chosen as Most Outstanding Leader for the Month.

The entire resident assistant staff received a special leadership award for their joint efforts during the February fire at Cougar Village.

SIUE was also chosen as School of the Year. Tonni Forbes, Brian Hinterscher, Caryn Lewis and Akbar Ahmedov composed the SIUE delegation.

"We are also having an end-of-the-year banquet in which we nominate staff for awards," Bluff Hall Director Julie Wright said.

years past, there was a special decal for the VC lot.

Students were put first but with negative consequences. Ever since that lot was changed to red, the lot is so full that students wanting to work out in the Student Fitness Center or go to athletic events find they have to park in the back section of the lot.

What students don't realize is that the VC lot is about the same distance from buildings as the fan lots, unless you're going to the Science Building. It may seem like the VC lot is closer to the core of the campus because it is right next to a building, but it really isn't. So, while students were given consideration when the lot was changed to red, students should be given the same consideration and the lot should be changed back.

The VC lot was opened to all students and then closed on them for outside interests that brought in money for the Athletic Department. It may be only a few days of inconvenience for students but I don't think Neher really understands the situation. I doubt his parking space has ever been taken away from him.

The chancellor and vice chancellors park in the service spaces in the metered lot behind Rendleman Hall. The walk from the lot to their building is less than 100 feet and there is little chance the university will profit by taking their spaces away for a few days.

I appreciate that the VC lot being closed only affects students a few days out of the year, but administrators can't put themselves in our shoes.

Neher also said that lots were constructed for Prairie and Bluff halls and additional parking is being constructed at Prairie and Cougar Village. That's great. Once that is finished, maybe the administration can do something about the problems students are having now.

Neher also said he spoke with the parking and traffic committee and it is working on how to handle event parking and working to have Illinois High School basketball games next spring break. I hope he is sincere in his efforts to fix the problem. Neher hasn't given me reason to doubt him in the past, so I hope I see something concrete come out of his discussions with the parking and traffic committee.

I applaud Neher for responding to my column. I take it that he cares enough to let students know what is being done about problems on campus. I can't say that any other administrators have found the time to reassure students that they are the top priority at SIUE.

I also want to comment on what Neher said about the use of the word "Nazi" when referring to the parking service agents. It is uncalled for. I think as college students we should be above name-calling, especially when that name can dredge up so much hate.

Brian Wallheimer
Editor in Chief

Administrators may finally be hearing the complaints of students on campus.

I asked for a response from the administration and I got it. I appreciate the fact that someone responded, but I think there are a few misconceptions that need to be cleared up.

Vice Chancellor for Administration Kenneth Neher wrote a letter to the editor that ran in the April 4 Alestle. He said the only reason there has been a problem with parking at the Vadalabene Center is because students were put first. This is the first year students with a red hangtag could park in that lot. Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I was sitting here at 2 a.m. talking to a buddy of mine who recently dropped out of college to pursue other interests. We had a conversation, and he mentioned he was going to read before going to bed.

I laughed at him because this kid never did homework and never did his schoolwork, but he brought up an interesting point. He was a smart kid, but he liked to read on his own time. He loved to read, but many of the professors expected him to read books and articles that either did not pertain to the class or were so lengthy he was distracted by his other subjects and he never quite got around to them.

This brings me to a solution. I agree reading is an integral part of learning in a classroom environment, but how about making some reading optional and don't quiz us on it.

I also like the idea of having a broad range of ideas for a class. I think there should be some classes where the students get to choose the readings so there is no bias given by a certain teacher.

On a final note, I would like to say I think reading is quite important but there comes a time when too much is too much.

Dear Editor:

SIUE should bring back the Mississippi River Festival.

This school once had the best bands in the world, including Bob Dylan, The Doobie Brothers, The Band, The Grateful Dead, Iron Butterfly, Janis Joplin, Arlo Guthrie and The Who.

I understand the reasons why the festival was ended; the death of the major force behind it, John Rendleman, and the cost and the time it took to plan. But if there ever was a time to bring it back, this is it.

This would breathe life back to the dying student community and bring recognition back to our school. Bob Dylan playing here put SIUE in Newsweek.

If you want one simple but definite reason for bringing back the MRF, just look at the picture of the students on the hillside during The Who's performance here.

If the administration needs dedication before it will commit, so be it. I pledge hours of every day from now until I graduate to the MRF revival. I am sure that there are many who would be with me.

Let's change something. Let's be able to look back at this 20 years from now and say, "We did that." Let's bring back the MRF!

Wired trekkers search for utilities

JESSICA MULLEN
NEWS STRINGER

The men wondering around the campus with a backpack straight from "Star Wars" are actually mapping the university's underground utilities.

Since February, Don Anderson and Jack Butler of Facilities Management have been trekking about the campus using the latest technology to plot locations of underground utilities.

Using a global positioning device linked to as many as nine satellites, the instruments measure and record the locations of phone lines, power lines and steam and cooling lines.

The equipment being used is the Trimble System.

"We are trying to record as accurately as we can where all underground utilities are located and what condition they are in. The system bounces off between five and nine satellites and a Coast Guard station," Anderson said.

After the data is gathered, the information is put into a computer system that maps out the campus.

The information will be used to track and maintain campus utilities.

New director named for education alums

AMY WINKLER
NEWS STRINGER

The School of Education has appointed a new director to take charge of fund raising and alumni events within the school.

Julie S. Babington, who assumed the position at the beginning of the spring semester, already has her hands full. One of her tasks is to begin a newsletter, which will serve as a direct connection to the alumni and external community about the latest programs and departmental news.

Babington is also responsible for developing a funding advisory board for the dean.

In addition, she will be working closely with the SIUE Foundation on the annual School of Education fund drive.

"My role will include major gift solicitation, cultivation of donors, potential donors, relationship building with our alumni and various other fund-raising initiatives," Babington said.

Babington previously served as the associate development director for intercollegiate athletics at Eastern Michigan University.

Babington said her new job at SIUE serves the same fundamental purpose as her position at Eastern Michigan but the environments for fund raising are very different.

"The main difference is that, at my previous position, fund-raising events usually centered around sports games," she said.

According to Elliott Lessen, dean of the School of Education, Babington has been welcomed with open arms.

"We're very pleased to have Julie join us as our director of development," Lessen said. "She has an impressive history as a fund-raising professional and we are confident of her continued success at SIUE."

The Legislature will meet in mid-May to decide the amount to be distributed by the Illinois Board of Higher Education. That decision will then be signed or vetoed by Ryan.

In the mean time, the board of trustees will meet Thursday to consider a proposal to increase tuition 10.8 percent for

If approved there would also be 6.7 percent increase for undergraduate students and a 7.2

How to build a resume and nail the interview

ELIZABETH A. LEHNERER
ASSISTANT LIFESTYLE EDITOR

With a long summer just around the corner, many students are beginning to consider applying for summer jobs.

Though many summer jobs are available, flipping burgers may not appeal to everyone.

Students looking for a full-time job in a professional field are going to need one very important document - a resume.

A resume reflects who a person is, what experience the person has and why he or she should be chosen over other applicants. It is an employer's first impression of the applicant and should not be taken lightly. Producing a successful resume can lead to a successful career.

According to Mass Communications professor Larry Dailey, there are several elements that can be included in a resume.

Resumes should include the applicant's name, address and phone number. Offering an e-mail address is optional, but should only be used if it is professional. An address like HotChick@hotmail.com may sound unprofessional.

All information on a resume should be in chronological order starting with the most recent. The first item on a resume could be an objective. An objective states what the applicant is looking for in the position and what he or she has to offer.

Most employers like to know where an applicant has previously been employed. It is not necessary to list every job. Many people limit work experience to jobs that may relate to the job they are seeking.

An applicant should also list information about education. This may include high school and college education and any honors received at those institutions.

Any experience applicants may have in the jobs they are applying for can be mentioned near the bottom. For a secretarial position, an applicant could mention taking a computer management class, or a marketing class for a sales position. Listing every class isn't necessary, just the classes relevant to that particular job.

Including a list of references is also an option.

A reference should be able to provide information about the applicant's character or work ethic. It could be a professor or former employer. Be sure to ask permission before using someone as a reference.

A reference list should include at least three people with their names, occupations, phone numbers and addresses.

Often, the resume decides whether or not a person will get an interview.

An interview is an opportunity for an employer to sit down and learn more about the person beyond the resume.

They may ask questions concerning the resume and will probably ask why the applicant applied for the position. "To make money," is not the best way to reply. Try answering with, "I am looking for more experience in this field."

Do not lie during the interview, but be professional.

Dress conservatively and answer in polite, full sentences to show confidence and maturity.

It is not a good idea to have prepared answers. An interviewer can tell when a person is not being sincere.

At the end of the interview, ask questions about the position. Some questions may include what the job consists of, what kind of schedule it requires or how long the training period lasts.

SUMMER

JEREMY HOUSEWRIGHT
LIFESTYLE STRINGER

For many college students, hunting season is here - job-hunting that is.

"We usually start getting job applications around the middle to end of March from students looking for summer work," Joe Coppias, owner of Market Place grocery store, said.

With several new businesses and restaurants opening, there seem to be plenty of job opportunities for students looking to make some money this summer.

"I went to apply for a job at Home Depot and was hired right away," Wade Gibbs said.

"I would recommend working here to anyone. The pay is really good," Gibbs said. "I'm making $9 an hour right now and I am supposed to get a raise in a month."

Car dealerships are perfect for students looking to be around new vehicles and make decent money.

"We have stacks of applications that have been handed in from students looking to have a job over the summer," Metro Chrysler sales manager Rich Knoll said.

Knoll said most dealerships hire college students as porters during the summer to clean, gas and prep the sold automobiles.

"A lot of guys love the job," Knoll said. "Unfortunately, most dealerships only need about seven porters and they get around 200 applications."

When looking for a job, the first stop for many is the local mall.

"I really needed a job last summer after graduation, so I came here and have been selling sunglasses ever since," Mark Schueler said. "Working at the mall is really easy. The pay isn't as great as a lot of places, but I pass my time and I see a lot of people I know."

Forever 21 is another store that hires a lot of students during the summer.

"I would say we get at least half of our staff from college in the summer," manager Jessica Fause said. "Girls seem to love working here. I think the fact that they get a 20 percent discount on clothes plays a lot into them choosing here."

For those interested in working at a mall, the easiest way to find out what businesses are hiring is to go to the service desk and ask for the employment book.

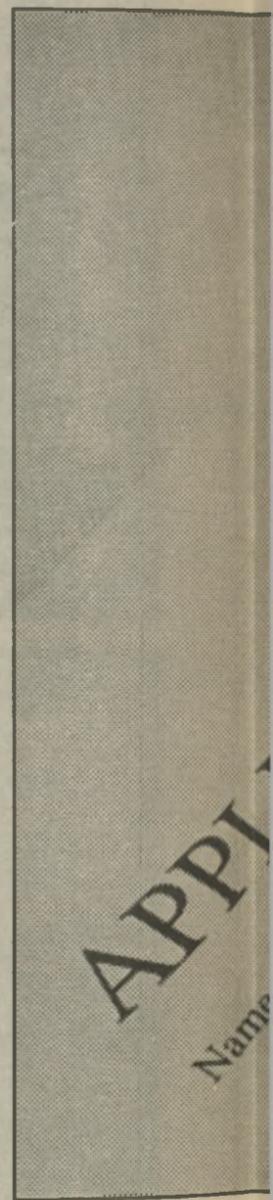

Summer camps are also an option for bored students looking to make some money during the summer.

Summer camps hire a lot of staff, much like amusement parks.

Why is it so hard for a 30-year-old to think about retirement? When you're young, retirement planning is pretty far down on your list of concerns. Say, somewhere between the melting polar ice caps and dishpan hands. And that's completely understandable. But by planning early and sticking to that plan, you can increase the money you'll have to enjoy retirement, and potentially decrease the years you'll spend working. We offer a range of different options, including tax-deferred retirement plans, SRAs, and IRAs, all with low expenses. Now that's something to fall in love with.

"A person can learn a lot about how a business is run and human nature by working at an amusement park," Six Flags employee Jania Getty said.

Advantages of working at summer camps include the chance to travel and the experience of working with kids.

Another summer job option is running a self-owned business, such as lawn mowing, landscaping or house painting.

"I usually hire two guys over the summer to help mow lawns," Adam Linneman said.

Linneman owns a lawn mowing and landscaping business and usually pays his employees around $10 an hour.

"It's not easy work," Linneman said. "We are outside all day five or six days a week, but the pay is pretty good."

There are tons of jobs and internships out there. Students can really find where they want to go and what their interests are, but businesses also know what is in their best interests.

"I won't hire anyone slouch off the street just cause they need a job," Subway manager Barry Pardee said.

Pardee said individuals must be clean cut and willing to work.

"So many times I will see a kid come in here and not really care if he or she gets the job or not," he said. "Well, I won't hire them."

"I am running a business, not a charity. I don't have to hire anyone who applies if they don't fit my idea for a good employee," he said.

Pardee said most of the students who have applied for jobs in the past have done an excellent job.

Attitude seems to be the most important factor that employers look for when hiring for summer jobs.

"I was told that I had to have a good attitude and remain positive even if I was dealing with a difficult person," Getty said.

When looking for a summer job, students need to remember that they have options. Exploring those options may land the perfect summer job.

Questions about pay and benefits should be saved until the applicant gets the job.

After the interview is over, do not just sit and wait for an answer. Send out more resumes and prepare for other interviews. A great interview does not guarantee the job. The employers may find someone more qualified for the position.

Students should check out www.monster.com, a Web site geared toward helping people get their resumes seen by potential employers.

For more help building a resume, Bluff Hall is presenting a Resume Workshop at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the lecture room. The workshop will teach new ways to write resumes and will provide helpful interviewing tips.

SIUE also offers a full-time Career Development Center in Founders Hall designed specifically to help students find jobs. They offer individual counseling, resume development, interviewing techniques and many other services to help students and alumni get the jobs they are looking for.

'Rowing' is global event

Grivna directs his last production for SIUE

William Grivna

A global event will grace the stage in Dunham Hall theater this weekend.

"Rowing to America: The Immigrant Project" is made up of nine one-act plays that take a multicultural look at the immigrant experience. The event is the final project for SIUE director William Grivna.

"These are some interesting pieces," Grivna said. "Some are serious while others are very funny."

Grivna will make his last appearance as director at SIUE after 25 years with the Department of Theater and Dance.

"This play is an interesting and fun final hurrah," Grivna said.

Grivna said he wanted the play to be as authentic as possible, which is why he brought professional actors and directors from China as guest artists.

"I have spent a fair amount of time in China, so I know what it is like to feel like the other person," he said.

Featuring cultures such as Mexican, Irish, Japanese, Afghani, Haitian, Colombian, African and Indian, this play could be considered a global experience.

"There are several characters in the production," Grivna said.

Grivna incorporated theater majors and international students from the culturally diverse campus to give life to the dramas onstage.

The plays have several different viewpoints. Robert Clyman's "Famous Ali" has an Afghan refugee who will do anything to impress the immigration officer so he can stay.

Keith Glover's "A Mule in JFK" shows an immigrant trying to sneak into the United States in a body bag as a corpse.

Kitty Chins' play features a girl rowing to America. It is contrasted by Meg Griffith's "The Apron," in which an older sister tries to keep her younger one from leaving 1870s Ireland.

Sachi Oyama's "Homeland" features a Japanese woman who speaks only in English to please her husband, while J. Rufus Caleb's "Slave Coffle with Observer" explores the anguish of people who were forced into America.

"All the performances feature different styles of acting," Grivna said.

Each night a showcase of international musicians will be featured as pre-show entertainment.

"It will be sort of like a mini-festival with various acts of entertainment," Grivna said.

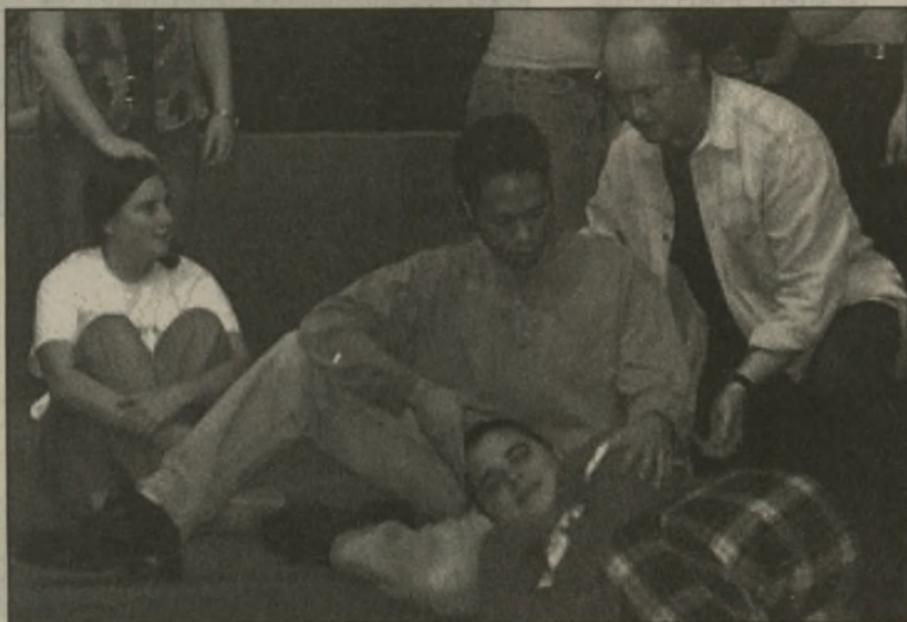

Grivna said he hopes audiences will realize that everyone is part of a common humanity.

"I hope people realize we are all part of the same human race, and I hope they gain an increased understanding of multiculturalism," he said.

"Rowing to America" will be performed at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and again Friday and Saturday, April 19 and 20, in the Katherine Dunham Theatre. There will also be a 2 p.m. matinee Sunday, April 21.

Tickets are $7 for the public and $5 for students. For more information, call 650-5748.

Softball starts new winning streak at home

Lady Cougars lose first Great Lakes Valley Conference game, but rebound to win five straight

AMY GRANT
ASSISTANT SPORTS EDITOR

Even after the softball team suffered its first Great Lakes Valley Conference loss last week, the Lady Cougars continue to dominate the conference finishing the week with an 11-1 record.

SIUE split its games at home against the University of Southern Indiana, of Evansville, Wednesday.

The Lady Cougars then went on to sweep the series against Quincy University on the road Saturday and the University of Missouri-St. Louis at home Sunday.

The Lady Cougars only managed one run in the seventh inning as they suffered their first conference defeat of the season.

SIUE took a 2-1 loss against USI.

Sophomore catcher Kristen Houseworth singled with the bases loaded at the top of the third inning to drive in junior shortstop Jenny Duell and put USI on the board first.

USI increased its lead to 2-0 after a wild pitch by junior RyAnn Spann with the bases loaded again in the fifth inning.

Sophomore designated hitter Missy Koenig hit a sacrifice fly at the bottom of the seventh to drive in freshman utility player Megan Lindmark, but that was all the Lady Cougars could get in the loss. Spann picked up the loss. USI took an early 4-0 lead in the team's second game before SIUE recorded five unanswered runs.

Junior outfielder Koree Claxton doubled and then advanced to third on the throw with the bases loaded to put SIUE to within one, 4-3.

Still trailing in the seventh, senior third baseman Erin Newman hit a double to drive in Lindmark from third base and tie the game.

Claxton hit a single and added an RBI as freshman outfielder Samantha Easterley scored SIUE's go-ahead run to win the game 5-4.

Koenig took the win for the Lady Cougars.

Spann only allowed one hit in a 7-0 shutout against Quincy in the first game of a doubleheader.

Spann walked three and struck out eight in seven innings as she improved to 17-3 on the season.

SIUE recorded three runs in the third inning, three in the fourth and one in the seventh while out-hitting Quincy 15-1 in the game.

The Lady Cougars' second game against Quincy was just as one-sided.

The Hawks of Quincy University clawed their way past SIUE in both games of Wednesday's doubleheader at Roy E. Lee Field.

SIUE was unable to stop the Hawks' bats in the first game. Juniors Ricky Harbour and Chip Wagner led Quincy in the first game.

Both had three RBIs to account for six of Quincy's 11 runs.

The Cougars worked through three pitchers. Junior Jarrod Peters started and gave up five runs while picking up the loss and senior Mark Quisenberry let six go in relief.

Junior Jeff Ebeler finished the final 2.2 innings. The Cougars lost 11-3.

The Cougars could not make amends in the nightcap.

SIUE scored one run in the fourth inning and one in the seventh, but that was all in the 4-2 loss.

SIUE traveled next to Evansville to meet up with the University of Southern Indiana Saturday.

The Cougars took the victory in the first game 7-4.

Junior catcher Justin Baecht recorded two RBIs for SIUE in the win.

In his six innings, Spurgeon allowed seven hits and walked two batters while striking out four to move his record to 3-1.

Senior pitcher Eric Meyer picked up his third save on the season.

SIUE took the second game 4-2.

Junior lefty Mike Bowen started for the Cougars and pitched three innings.

The Anthropology Club Presents

Dr. Michael L. Blakey

Friday, April 12, 2002 at 7:30p.m.

SL 3114 in the Science Building

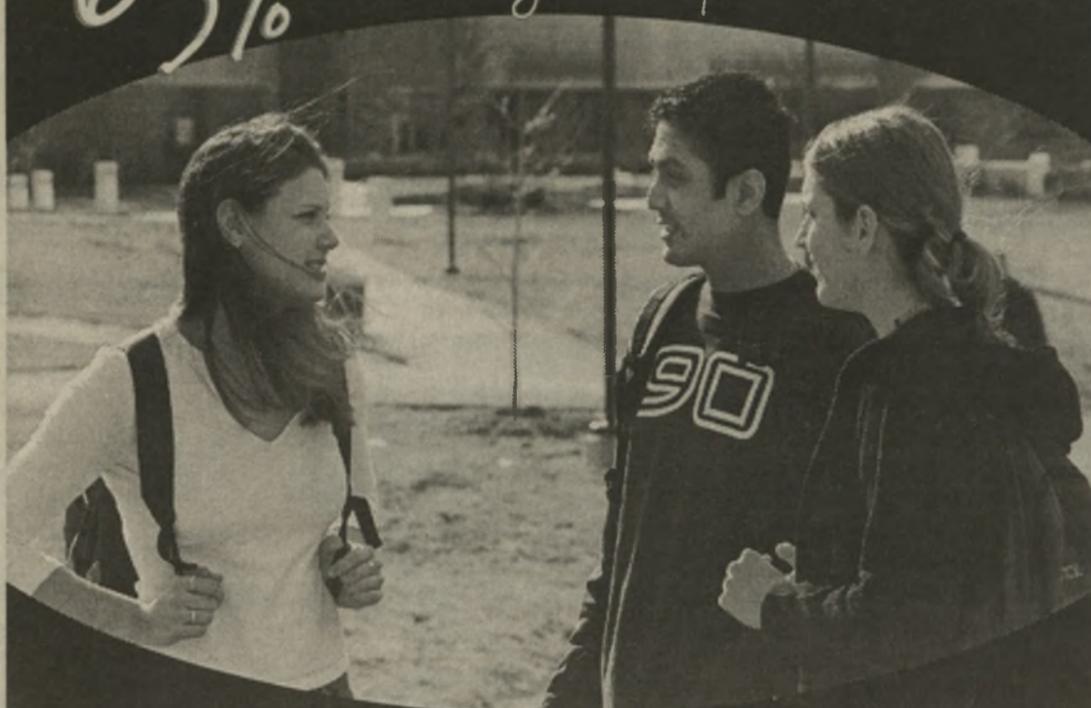

Far beneath the busy cityscape of New York's lower Manhattan lies a centuries-old cemetery. The burial ground, discovered in 1991 by construction workers, contains more than 400 remains of what is believed to be the first group of African slaves brought to the city. It also tells a little-known story of early New York. The bones, almost pristine despite being buried for more than 200 years, reveal a great deal about who the slaves were and offer hints of where they came from. Dr. Michael Blakey, Current Director of the New York African Burial Ground Project and a biological anthropologist from William and Mary College, will be lecturing on his work and discoveries at the archeological site.

Cosponsored by Phi Alpha Theta and Lambda Alpha.

Bowen struck out three USI batters while allowing two runs and issuing six walks.

He faced two batters in the fourth inning before being relieved.

Junior hurler Brad Hinton picked up the slack in the following six innings to take the victory.

The Cougars returned home Sunday to play the Screaming Eagles in a single game.

A second game was scheduled but not played due to rain.

Junior designated hitter Jason Kessler singled home the game-winning run in the bottom of the 12th inning to lead SIUE to a 9-8 extra-inning victory.

The Cougars were led by the hot bats of Kessler and senior shortstop Chad Opel.

Kessler finished the game going 4-for-7 with two runs scored and three RBIs.

Opel went 4-for-6 with a double and three runs scored. Junior catcher Justing Baecht also contributed to the cause with three RBIs.

The game was tied 6-6 when SIUE grabbed the lead in the fourth inning on a ball that slipped past the infield.

Junior first baseman Josh Hanewinkel scored from third base to put the Cougars up 7-6.

Southern Indiana tied the game in the seventh inning when senior infielder Brian Branson ripped a solo shot to left field for the game's only home run.

Pitching shut both teams down until the top of the 12th when freshman outfielder Noah Wetzel scored from third base for the Screaming Eagles on a sacrifice fly.

SIUE got fired up in the bottom of the 12th inning when sophomore third baseman Wes Pickering reached first base after being hit by a pitch.

Opel then advanced on a walk.

Senior outfielder Josh Cate reached first base on a fielder's choice as the pitcher unsuccessfully tried to catch the lead runner at third base.

With the bases loaded, Kessler followed up with a two-run single to end the game.

"We've had troubles with left-handers the whole year," SIUE head coach Gary Collins said. "I feel good about our wins, but I don't feel we played very good baseball even though we won all three games."

With the losses, the Screaming Eagles moved to 7-9 in the Great Lakes Valley Conference and 14-18 overall, placing them seventh in the conference standings.

The Cougars upped their record to 6-5 in the GLVC and 18-15 overall, moving them up to fifth in the conference.

SIUE will travel next to Owensboro, Ky., to face Kentucky Wesleyan College Wednesday for a noon doubleheader.

In the meantime, senior pitcher and outfielder Nick Seibert remains sidelined due to a wrist injury.

Seibert was hit by a pitch on his throwing arm in a game against Lewis University in late March. Seibert is in a cast but said that he is scheduled to get it off in a week and then begin the rehabilitation process.

"The plan is to start rehab then and hopefully be able to get back with these guys later in the season," Seibert said.

Seibert is switching his duties with the team. Now he is a motivator from the dugout.

"I've been getting more of a coach's perspective being in the dugout watching," he said. "I'm seeing what they see and how we play and certain things that happen. It looks like we're starting to get things together."

Collins said that he hopes for the swift recovery of his top hurler.

Seibert was working a 1.09 ERA with a 3-0 start before the injury.

Have you thought about the salaries in California?

California already has the second-highest beginning teacher salaries in the nation, and new legislation is pushing salaries even higher.

Over 85% of California school districts have raised starting teacher salaries to the recommended statewide minimum of $34,000.

California's teachers are treated very well. Last year, the California public school system began implementing a $34,000 statewide minimum salary for beginning teachers – and some districts pay as much as $44,000 for first-year teachers.

Higher salaries are just one of the ways California demonstrates the great respect we have for our teachers. Other support and incentives – inside and outside the classroom – help you develop within the profession, achieve an advanced degree, and even purchase your first home. We're committed to getting you here and keeping you here.

Bring your teaching degree to California

When you consider California's great starting salaries, and then factor in the reasonable cost-of-living in many of our cities, you'll start to realize what a significant financial advantage you'll have when you begin your teaching career in California.
