SIUE vehicle hits and runs

Student hit in crosswalk, university vehicle leaves scene

BRIAN WALLHEIMER
NEWS REPORTER

SIUE police are looking for a university vehicle and its driver that struck a student in a crosswalk and drove away.

Capt. Gina Hays said a 20-year-old female student was crossing North Circle Drive at University Drive near Founders and Alumni halls about 4 p.m. Tuesday when a white Dodge extended-cab pickup truck with a black lift gate and SIUE decals on its doors struck her and left the scene. The victim and a witness got a partial license plate number and a description of the driver.

The student, who was not seriously injured, received bruises on a shoulder and did not require medical assistance.

Hays said police will contact university departments that use the type of truck involved in the hit-and-run to see which ones were being used at the time. She said many workers are finished with jobs before 4 p.m. and would have already returned vehicles to their parking lots.

"We're going to talk to departments that have those license plate numbers and that type of vehicle," Hays said. "At four o'clock they should know if their vehicle was out."

Student battered on jogging trail

BRIAN WALLHEIMER
NEWS REPORTER

Police are looking for a man who allegedly punched a jogger and ran away.

Capt. Gina Hays said a 19-year-old male student was jogging on the trail between Cougar Lake and the Alpha Phi Alpha house at 10 p.m. Tuesday when a man in a black leather jacket and Adidas pants punched him in the mouth. The victim said he punched the man back and the attacker fled.

Hays said the victim didn't have any visible signs of bruising and did not need medical attention.

Police checked the area but couldn't find anyone matching the description. Hays said police are hoping another jogger might have seen and recognized the attacker on the trail Tuesday night.

Anyone with information should call SIUE police at 650-3324.

SIUE, Red Cross train in CPR

BRIAN WALLHEIMER
NEWS REPORTER

The ability to save a life could be just a class away.

SIUE's Environmental Health and Safety Department holds monthly cardiopulmonary resuscitation and first aid classes for faculty and staff. Many SIUE employees are required to take the classes, but other employees are welcome to attend.

Jim Hiatt, a safety officer with Environmental Health and Safety, said employees who work near someone who could be injured, such as a grounds worker or an electrician, are required to be certified. Certification in CPR lasts for one year.

"It's one of those things you can't train for too often or too much," Hiatt said. "It's like riding a bicycle - you never forget all of it but it's good to refresh yourself."

Classes cover CPR and first aid, including fractures, lacerations, bleeding, splinting, heat- and cold-related emergencies and sudden illness emergencies. Instructors are Environmental Health and Safety Department employees who have been certified by the Red Cross.

Hiatt said classes are limited to the first 10 employees to sign up, so instructors can be sure everyone is learning the information properly.

Out-of-service elevators have their ups and downs

BRIAN WALLHEIMER
NEWS REPORTER

Elevators in Rendleman Hall, the Science Building and Lovejoy Library are expected to be up and running again by the end of February.

The buildings that have elevators out of service now have others that can be used until the work is done.

Assistant Facilities Management Director Jack Butler said the work includes putting in new controls, safeties, hydraulic power units and cables.

Many of the improvements won't be visible to occupants of the elevators, except infrared sensors that will keep doors open when someone is coming through them. Currently, there are bars that must be pushed in to keep the doors from closing on people.

Butler said the elevators were breaking down frequently and maintenance was getting costly. Many of them were installed in the 1960s.

"We're just trying to change with the times," Butler said. "There wasn't any danger. We were just experiencing several outages."

Buildings with single elevators are scheduled to be worked on during the break between the spring and summer semesters.

Butler said elevators in Alumni and Founders halls will be upgraded separately so access to the buildings is not limited.

One elevator can serve two floors of the other building.

"I hope to have them back up before the summer semester but that is a fine line and that's just a goal," Butler said.

Students, faculty and staff can use the elevator in one building to go to the third floor and cross the skywalk to get to the other. They can also go to the basement and use the underground passage to access the other building's basement.

"If it comes down to it, we just find a way to manually get (disabled) students from the ground floor to the second floor," Butler said.

Miller Elevator of St. Louis is doing the upgrade at a cost of $600,000.

Put old cell phones to good use

NICOLE GAUDREAU
MANAGING EDITOR

Anyone who has an old cellular phone lying around can now put it to use thanks to the Telecommunications Office and Facilities Management.

Alicia Wainright, business manager of Facilities Management, started the program with hopes of helping those in need.

"I thought it would be a good way to do something good," Wainright said.

Cell phones with terminated

SIUE contracts or upgraded service in which the phone can no longer be used can now be recycled and used to help women in crisis.

Cell phones are reprogrammed to dial 911 and can be used for emergencies only.

"There is a continuous need for cell phones at the university. Phones are a part of a service contract and when they are terminated the phone isn't used anymore," Wainright said.

Donated phones will be sent to the Oasis Women's Center in Alton and Phoenix House in Granite City to help victims of domestic violence.

The first delivery produced eight phones and some accessories, which were collected within two to three weeks.

"We are more than happy to take anybody's old cell phone," Wainright said.

Terry Meredith, business manager of Information Technology, will coordinate collection of the phones, which can be dropped off in Room 0210 in the basement of Dunham Hall.

Collection will continue throughout the year.

Nutrition plans for every lifestyle

PRASAD NAGARAPU
NEWS STRINGER

Healthy nutrition is a very important part of our daily lives. Not many people are aware of good eating habits. Moreover, in today's world, fast food has become a major part of our diet. In such times, it is imperative that we follow a healthy diet.

It becomes easier if someone is there to guide and give healthy tips. Lorraine Huntley is such a guide who has joined the Wellness Center as a registered dietitian. Huntley has more than five years of experience in helping others make improvements to their nutrition, lifestyle and physical well-being.

"What we are trying to do is to include components of a balanced lifestyle. People are here not only to work out and improve their physical appearance and health but also to acquire healthy choices, as well as having a positive attitude. Combining the nutrition component with the exercising component, we are giving the complete packages," Huntley said.

There are three nutrition options available in this program. Option one includes a customized nutrition, health and food diary analysis with computerized nutrition profiles, personalized meal plans and individual recommendations. This program also includes a one-hour follow-up visit. The charge is $20 for students and $40 for nonstudents.

Option two includes customized nutrition, health and food diary analysis with generalized eating guidelines and sample meal plans. The charge is $10 for students and $20 for non-students and includes a half-hour follow-up visit.

The third option has an analysis of food diary with generalized healthy eating guidelines.

The charge for this option is $5 for students and $10 for nonstudents and includes a 15-minute follow-up visit.

"Actually, anybody will most probably select option number one. I think what we are trying to do is to find the big picture and to get an idea where they are, what their eating habits are and then look at their lifestyle. The more information I have the better I'm able to help them in making healthy choices," Huntley said.

"I'm interested in improving my diet and eating habits and I thank Lorraine and Wellness Center for offering the new nutrition program," said marketing management student Joe Mark.

Peri Subramanya, a computer engineering student, said, "I would love to join such a program where you are constantly guided towards improving your fitness and also being motivated to have a balanced diet. There is also a lot of fun involved".

"Exercise and healthy eating habits are truly important for people in maintaining physical fitness. So, I'd like to suggest students and faculty to sign up for the new nutrition program," Kevin M. Hubbard, assistant professor in the industrial and manufacturing department, said.

For more information about this program, call 650-2935.

"We can't have too many because there's personal attention that needs to be paid," Hiatt said. "If we've got too many, it's too hard to evaluate everyone."

Hiatt said university departments pick up the $35 tab for their workers' training. The classes run from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. once per month in Room 1118 at 200 University Park. A list of dates for the classes can be found at www.siu.edu/EHS.

Those interested in the classes should call Shirley Houston, chief clerk of environmental health and safety, at 650-3584.

Even though the classes offered through Environmental Health and Safety are limited to university employees, there are classes available through the Red Cross for everyone.

The Southern Illinois Chapter of the Red Cross is conducting classes in Edwardsville and Alton in February.

The first will be from 6 to 10 p.m. Feb. 3 and 10 at 1121 University Drive in Edwardsville. The second will be from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Feb. 22 at 810 Main St. in Alton.

The classes cover adult, infant and child CPR and first aid. The cost for the classes is $47 but is less if participants only want training in a specific area, such as infant CPR.

Those interested in registering should call 465-7704 and ask for Lois. Registration must be received at least two business days before the class is scheduled. Classes are limited to 10 people.

ACCIDENT

The victim and witness, whose names were not released by police, feel confident they can identify the driver, Hays said.

Police checked the area after the accident but could not find the vehicle or its driver. The only description police had for the driver was a white male with brown hair.

From the Editor

LeBron James may have to go pro

"Mom, I want to go to college," are words every mother wants to hear.

These words are even more heartfelt when they are uttered from the mouths of young African-American males who are the prime at-risk group today, and far too many do not attend institutions of higher learning.

Those seven little words may very well be a disappointment to Gloria James if she hears them from her can't-miss superstar son LeBron.

If he doesn't go pro, how will his mother pay for the $50,000 Hummer she got him for his 18th birthday?

The road to success appears to be paved with hardwood for LeBron James, who is just waiting to graduate high school so he can get paid.

However, James can no longer walk out of his house without people picking at his very soul like a pride of lions on a fresh antelope kill.

Who can he trust? The people who became his friends after he became the first sophomore to be named Mr. Basketball in the state of Ohio? The people who jumped on the bandwagon the next year when he repeated the Mr. Basketball feat for Ohio and was named the USA TODAY national player of the year as a junior? How about the people who have come around this year now that they've heard he is a lock to be the No. 1 pick in the National Basketball Association draft, that is, if he decides to enter the draft.

James has been through much in a relatively short time. According to the Dec. 10 issue of ESPN Magazine, he had little stability in his early years.

"When I was 5, some financial things happened, and I moved seven times in a year," James said.

The James family moved from apartment to apartment, sometimes living with friends.

James said his mother would tell him not to get comfortable as the family may not be in any one location for very long.

According to Akron, Ohio, court records, his mother, who purchased the $50,000 Hummer, has been cited over the years for playing music too loudly, criminal trespassing, contempt of court and disorderly conduct. His father, Anthony McClelland, has been convicted of arson and theft, just to name two of his many transgressions.

James' mother looked for a more stable home environment and found it when he was in fourth grade.

His peewee league football coach, Frankie Walker, volunteered to take him in and give him a taste of what family life was like.

Why am I hating on James' mother? I'm not, but I do think what he needs is someone to protect him from the vultures, not someone like the birds of prey.

Nevertheless, we as a society have all but ruined the last pure innocence we have of high school sports. We seem to forget that for every Tracy McGrady, Kobe Bryant or Kevin Garnett who are NBA stars now, there is a Leon Smith, Korleone Young and Taj McDavid, who are no longer in the league and, in Smith's case, in prison for life.

Pike's tripe -- not quite up to snuff

Dear Editor,

I have never been one to enjoy Mr. Pike's articles, but the loosely organized piece that he put forth Thursday, Jan. 23, was well below par, even by his standards.

First of all, may I point out that Mr. Pike's article was harder to read than usual as he skipped around from comments about former Gov. Ryan, Oprah, Oskar Schindler, the DMV and the vast employment opportunities it holds for today's college student.

I would also like to say that I agree that Ryan's crimes were fairly banal and ridiculous for someone of his position. One would think that his abuses of power would correspond with the amount of power he had to abuse.

Secondly, I would like to say that Mr. Pike's comparison of Ryan to Oskar Schindler was laughable at best. It is quite possible that Ryan granted what pardons he did due to a true conviction. However, even if this were true, I still find it hard to equate the two.

Thirdly, Mr. Pike went so far with his prattle about Ryan that he used scripture to make his point. I must say that Mr. Pike was quite brave for quoting the verse that he did. Romans 3:23, see PIKE, page 7

Affirmative action needs reworking

The sadly unsurprising Sen. Trent Lott debacle and the subsequent University of Michigan case have heated up discussions of race and affirmative action. After Lott's comments, politicians and pundits from both sides gradually decided to be offended, or perhaps it just took a week to get the polling from that all-important white supremacist vote.

Decision made, pundits, politicians and laymen of every stripe jumped on the bandwagon to demonize Lott, citing endless incidences of odious race baiting over the years. What this says to me is, in the insular Capitol, these comments and attitudes were perfectly acceptable until televised. It would seem that a blind eye is also non-partisan.

The final lesson? It's OK to lust for segregation, just stay off television.

The U.M. case brings up many memories for me. I have lost count of all the "now I'm not a racist, but ..." people who have told me how they could have gotten into school, received more financial aid, or gotten that job/promotion, if only they were a minority. Yep, if only you were black, the road to success would be paved with gold. Blaming some black female really is undoubtedly easier than asking the hard question: Why isn't there more financial aid or more jobs? That might involve questioning the teachings of Rush.

Affirmative action, while necessary, is at its best inadequate and patronizing at its worst. It's not a perfect system. But no one advocating dismantling it ever suggests a better solution. Plenty of financial aid goes to students who never finish college. Maybe we should stop financial aid. Most new businesses fail. Perhaps banks should just stop lending start-up money. Moreover, when the appeals for a "colorblind society" come from the same general direction of the not so distant "Southern strategy" ...well... color me skeptical.

I am a white Midwestern female who in no way claims to speak for the African-American community. I am certain no single person can. Of course, one crucial point has been lost in this debate - affirmative action has also benefited women of every shade. Most of the girls in college would be in typing school hoping for a good secretarial position without the affirmative action program. Go ahead, ask your mom. However, coming from a staunchly Democratic background, I was distressed to see the party botch several opportunities for progress. Support of affirmative action seems to be their only defense on issues of race.

Where are the new ideas? How much race baiting could be deflected by not making all racial and ethnic groups compete for increasingly scarce economic opportunity? Why can't we talk about a more balanced economic distribution or cracking down on redlining and predatory lending? How about actually fulfilling that promise of equal education and maybe some re-education?

Why can't someone in this party just say the taxpayer-funded sinkhole ($40 billion per year) we call the drug war isn't making drugs scarcer and is only serving to disenfranchise minorities and the poor?

I know politicians will do just about anything not to be perceived as soft on crime. I also know I have actually dared to speak about the giant pink elephants in the center of the room. If you question the drug war or talk about the economic distribution, there might be someone who will leap to call you immoral or try to cast you as a communist, mostly because many people don't differentiate between socialism and communism, or worse yet, a liberal. With the absolute paralysis that this sort of name-calling causes some politicians, it makes you wonder how they ever made it through elementary school.

Call me what you like. Immoral? My religion taught compassion; tenets like feed the hungry and sheltering the homeless. Some would rather use their faith to judge and punish. The Democratic leadership can try to appease that faction in any way they like, but I would argue they would be better off trying to get some of their nonviolent core out of prison and re-establish some voting rights. Let the free-market conservatives choke on the hypocrisy of having to denounce drug sales while they advocate the tobacco industry's right to sell its product. Ask them to explain why Noelle Bush repeatedly gets treatment while the poor and the minorities need prison. States use prisons like public works programs in rural areas at the expense of education. When you think about increases in tuition consider between 1980 and 2000 states raised spending on higher education by 32 percent, versus 189 percent for prisons. Trading colleges for prisons is a self-fulfilling prophecy.

Liberal? I grew up with the Democratic Party because my dad was a Catholic union man with a healthy stockpile of firearms...not a hippie. Having been raised in a very rural area, I can remember the race baiting of the Reagan-era drug war. I see AFFIRMATIVE, page 7

remember the almost exclusive coverage of crack and urban gangs on local TV stations nowhere near a city. It really helped convince rural voters to build prisons and vote for harsh sentencing. I am betting if the focus had been on my cousin Dave and his pot patch, mandatory minimums wouldn't have had quite the same appeal. Sadly, meth labs might actually be turning the tide out in rural areas. No one realized the link between drugs and lack of economic opportunity when the problem was in the inner city, but they are waking up now. In fact, I heard someone down home advocating for treatment ... gasp! Now comes my chance to be labeled a "communist."

According to the Oct. 20th edition of the New York Times, "Over the past 30 years, most people have seen only modest salary increases: the average annual salary in America, expressed in 1998 dollars, that is, adjusted for inflation, rose from $32,522 in 1970 to $35,864 in 1999. That's about a 10 percent increase over 29 years - progress, but not much. Over the same period, however, according to Fortune magazine, the average real annual compensation of the top 100 C.E.O.'s went from $1.3 million - 39 times the pay of an average worker - to $37.5 million, more than 1,000 times the pay of ordinary workers."

Finding an article to illustrate the increase in wage and/or wealth disparity is heartbreakingly easy. I am not advocating we all make the same amount of money. I really believe my bosses should make more money than I...capitalism equals a better mousetrap, yada, yada, yada. However, you can exploit my labor as easily if you make 50 times more than me as you can with 1,000 times more, I promise.

I won't pretend I have some astounding understanding of economic policy. I do not. I do believe 1 percent of the population making more than 80 percent of campaign contributions isn't helping to further democracy much. If the estimates of price-fixing and predatory pricing I've read are anywhere near correct it is probably safe to say that this system isn't helping capitalism much either.

This started out to be a rant about dismantling affirmative action, but I just can't seem to leave it at that. It sometimes strikes me that people spend so much time fighting for table scraps that they never bother to demand a place at the table.

Surprisingly, the class warfare appeals of the Democratic hopefuls have left me pretty cold. The drug war raged and the economic disparity widened as much during deficit-slashing Clinton as it did during trickling-down Reagan. I've looked at the information both parties have put out - party professionals discussing how each party can tweak its values to get more power. It's actually quite revolting.

In closing, Black America: Stop holding us down. We will overcome this insidious reverse-racism. It takes ...oh...um...13 percent? Yes, 13 percent of a nation to hold us back.

Democrats: I would submit that if a rather conservative female raised in rural Southern Illinois has become too radical for you, you have truly abandoned your base.

Republicans: If you and your Democratic brethren are going to continue to take money from the majority of citizens and give it to the rich, you might want to rethink leaving the masses so heavily armed.

Next time we're going to look up "inalienable."

There are not many who would use such a verse that blatantly points out the innate shortcomings that make us human, yet Mr. Pike took this point further than it needed to go.

He stated that we may find redemption by placing our faith in doing good works.

Now, how faith can be placed in a work that is beyond me and my limited theological studies; however, I would like to point out that it was just a week ago that Mr. Pike, in his article on Dr. King, spoke of redemption through works as a tenet of Christianity.

Not to get into a theological debate, but Paul also makes the comment in Ephesians 2:8-9, "For by grace you have been saved through faith, and that not of yourselves; it is the gift of God, not of works, lest anyone should boast."

This would go to say that Mr. Pike's previous arguments about affirmative action being an act working towards the redemption of, I suppose, white males for crimes of neglect and prejudice against minorities committed by our fathers and grandfather are nothing but pseudo-theological fluff.

Mr. Pike, I find you to be insightful and intelligent, though wrong in many if not all of your opinions.

Regardless of politics, I admire you for the way that your column has "always been about pushing the envelope."

However, for my peace of mind, please leave theology to the theologians and stick to mass communications.

I have come to expect better out of you, and I do not believe that your past two articles have been your best work. I'm sure you can do better.

Sincerely,

Phil Schneider

Latest 'Destination' is a horrific good time New film short on scares at times but still entertaining to watch

"Final Destination" was a surprise hit in 2000, with its unique and suspenseful story line about a group of friends who cheat death and avoid a plane crash.

Before they know it, each is being killed in mysterious fashion. In order to survive, they must cheat first "Destination" began with a horrific plane crash, which was difficult to watch because it was so graphic.

The second film begins with a horrendous car crash, which was also tough to watch due to graphic nature.

As for the ending of the second film, it ends with a bang.

There may not be as many scares or nerve-jumping scenes in the latest death once again to avoid the killing cycle.

The sequel, "Final Destination 2," brings nothing new to the screen the second time around, but that doesn't mean the film is all that bad.

The entire original cast is gone, except for Ali Larter, who also starred in "Varsity Blues" and "Jay and Silent Bob Strike Back." Larter returns to help a cast of unknown actors overcome death.

Alex, played by Devon Sawa, survived the first time around, but in this film the audience is told of his death but does not witness it on screen.

The second film begins and ends just like the first one did, with a bang. The installment of the film, but there is plenty of gore to go around.

Several death scenes are so unrealistic and over the top that they are almost laughable instead of scary. Like most sequels to horror films, the gore factor was definitely topped in the second film.

While there are not as many chills and thrills this time around, the gory scenes are enough to make any viewer cringe, and fans of gory horror movies will not be disappointed.

Anyone who wants to see a realistic or serious film will be out of luck with "Final Destination 2." This movie is all about freaking out the audience out and it succeeds.

Spring semester is in full swing. Homework has begun to pile up, and research papers are in the foreseeable future. Add jobs, family and friends to the equation, and the pressure is multiplied.

Wouldn't it be nice to have a quiet, peaceful place to turn for guidance? Look no further; the door to SIUE's Religious Center is always open.

mission statement: “The center is dedicated to providing spiritual and emotional care to people of all faiths and cultural and ethnic backgrounds.”

The Religious Center is open to students, faculty and community members, offering a variety of services and events for several religious denominations.

Tiffini Rushing, university religious council administrator, said, “Not only do students come here for religious purposes, they come to study, meditate and enjoy the peaceful surroundings.”

Located on the south side of campus, the Religious Center is home to three ministries: the Shurtleff Baptist Campus Ministry, the Catholic Campus Ministry and the United Campus Ministry.

One of the founding ministries of the Religious Center is the Shurtleff Baptist Campus Ministry, led by the Rev. Paul Burden. Throughout the school year, the Baptist Campus Ministry sponsors several programs to help meet the spiritual needs of SIUE students, faculty and staff.

At 6 p.m. every Tuesday, members of the Baptist community provide dinner and an evening of Bible study and praise in the Bonhoeffer Room of the Religious Center.

as well as the guidance they receive through the Shurtleff Baptist Campus Ministry.

“We have a good group of students who really care about each other,” he said.

The Catholic Campus Ministry, directed by Sister Claudia Calzetta, fills the dome each Sunday with more than 100 students, faculty and community members who gather for the 10:30 a.m. or 8 p.m. Mass. Affiliated with the Catholic Newman Student Union, members of the ministry participate in prayer services, retreats and charity projects.

In addition, the Catholic Campus Ministry sponsors Catholic Enrichments every Wednesday evening, providing an informal environment to learn more about Roman Catholicism.

Offering a diversified approach to religious studies, the United Campus Ministry represents five religious dominations: the United Church of Christ, the Church of the Brethren, the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), the United Methodist Church and the Presbyterian Church.

Led by the Rev. Cherie Hambleton, the United Campus Ministry sponsors the Spiritual Growth Group, focusing on spiritual outlets and innovators who have done great things, at 7:30 p.m. Tuesdays.

Weekend is packed full of options to keep busy

Three new movies will keep movie fans occupied this weekend

Winding down after last weekend's Super Bowl Sunday is a must. Opportunities to get out of the house and into the streets will be plenty.

For the active and athletic, 50 Tucker Drive in Caseyville, is home to the newly opened Lazer Tag Zone, just three minutes from St. Clair Square Mall and 10 minutes from St. Louis Lazer Tag is billed as the "ultimate lazer tag adventure." The zone offers arcade games, private-party rooms, and food and beverages for patrons. For directions and more information, call 397-0667, or check out the Web site at www.lazerforce.com.

Not to be outdone, three highly anticipated films opening this weekend will attempt to make the thriller "Darkness Falls" tumble from the number one spot in the box office.

"Final Destination 2," the sequel to the 2000 box office smash, opens in theaters this weekend.

The film finds Clear Rivers, played by Ali Larter, as the only survivor from the first film to make it to the second film. She must now save a group others who cheated death as she tries to save her own life.

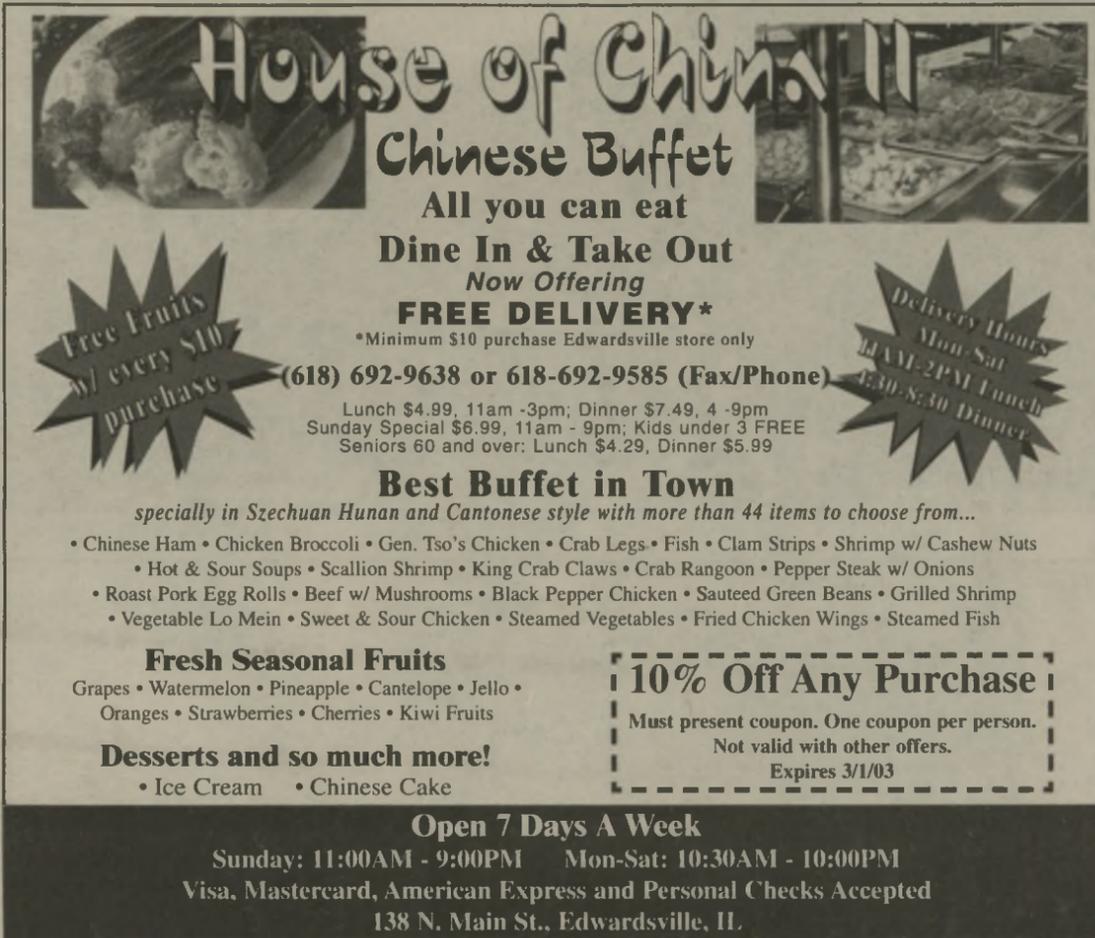

The movie offers an almost entirely new cast of characters and a twist ending that will surprise many viewers. The film is rated R for strong violence, gruesome accidents and nudity, with a running time of one hour and 40 minutes.

For viewers more interested in action than accidental death, "Biker Boyz" and

"The Recruit" also hits theaters Friday. "Boyz" features Laurence Fishburne as motorcycle-racer Smoke, who clashes with a young upstart dubbed Kid, played by Derek Luke. Although the movie features a short running time of 90 minutes, an all-star cast, including Kadeem Hardison, Eriq La Salle, Lisa Bonet and rap-rocker Kid Rock, this film could have viewers racing to theaters. The film is rated PG-13 for some sexual content and mild violence and language.

The Colin Farrell and Al Pacino action vehicle "The Recruit" casts Farrell as a highly intelligent college student recruited by a CIA agent (Pacino) to join the agency.

The film is complete with plot twists, romance and espionage at every turn. Clocking in at one hour and 45 minutes with a rating of PG-13 for sexuality and violence, "The Recruit" is looking for box-office gold as well.

Theater and Dance Department will offer great variety this semester

Laura Griffith
Lifestyle Stringer

Nightmares, love, comedy and drama are among the dominant themes of the Theater and Dance Department's projects this semester.

The original play "Demons" will open Feb. 5 in the Metcalf Theater. The show will run through the Feb. 8, starting each night at 7:30 p.m. and ending with a 2 p.m. matinee Feb. 9. The production is Director Nathan Ellsworth's take on what life would be like if dreams and nightmares were to become reality.

The Metcalf Theater will also be the setting for the Black Theatre Workshop Feb. 27 and 28. For more information, contact Greg Carr at 650-2436.

Neil Simon's "Brighton Beach Memoirs" will take the stage beginning Feb. 14 at Dunham Hall Theater. The first of the three parts of Simon's autobiography is set in 1937 and deals with his life as a Brooklyn teenager living in a crowded house with his extended Jewish family. As the family awaits the coming war, he has girls and baseball on his mind, like any other boy his age. The production will run 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Feb. 14, 15, 21, 22 and 23.

"Brighton Beach Memoirs" has a serious side but is not without humor. The characters in the story are easy to relate to because, as a student body, "we are all awaiting a war."

Director Lana Hagan said. Junior Jeff Saunders, who plays the lead character, Eugene, has something in common with his character. Saunders, a member of the Air Force Reserves has to be ready to be called to duty if war breaks out, much like Eugene in the play.

According to senior Brad Snyder, who plays Stanley, the cast grew close while making the production.

"We've grown together as a cast into a family," Snyder said.

Friends of Theater and Dance, along with the Imaginary Theater Company, will present "Puss 'n' Boots" as a part of Season for the Child in March.

"Puss 'n' Boots" is a children's story about a poor boy whose father died and left him a cat. Worried about how he would make a living, the boy is disappointed because he thinks the cat is useless. However, Puss used his clever ways to convince the king that his owner was a nobleman and had acquired a castle and land for the boy to rule over.

The play will run from 7 to 8 p.m. March 8 in the Dunham Hall Theater.

Dunham Hall Theater will also be the scene for Tennessee Williams' play "Summer and Smoke," in April.

The show will open at 7:30 p.m. April 18, 19, 25 and 26. A matinee will be from 2 to 4:15 p.m. April 27.

Set in 1914, "Summer and Smoke" is the story of two star-crossed lovers: a Southern preacher's daughter and a childhood friend-turned-doctor who live completely different lives. They gradually realize they love one another, but because of bad timing and differences in their personalities, nothing ever works out.

Senior Shane Signorino and junior Wendy Renee Greenwood will play the lead roles. The cast also includes Peter Cocuzza, the director of performance.

SIUE's Theater and Dance Department's Chuck Harper will be directing the play. There will be some elements of humor, but the play is not categorized as a comedy. Instead, Williams' plays tend to involve focused character study. "It's much like his other plays," Harper said.

Williams also wrote the popular play "A Streetcar Named Desire."

The last FOTAD production of the semester will be at 7 p.m. May 3 in Dunham Hall Theater.

The play, "The Honest-To-Goodness Truth," is also part of Season for the Child.

The play, "The Honest-To-Goodness Truth," is also part of Season for the Child.

It is based on a children's book written by Patricia C. McKissack. "The Honest-to-Goodness Truth" is the story of a young girl who gets caught in a lie and decides to tell only the truth from then on. In the process, she loses all her friends because she says things that are true but also hurtful and unnecessary. She learns her lesson when a truthful but hurtful statement about her horse angers her.

Wrestling team packs the gym against Lindenwood

Cougar fans support struggling team

HEATHER KLOTZ

Local high schools and wrestling clubs had the chance to experience wrestling at the college level Tuesday night as the SIUE wrestling team took on Lindenwood University.

The Cougars fell to the Lions 38-6 but made the match exciting for the fans who came out to support SIUE wrestling on Pack the Gym night.

The teams were also there to show support as the SIUE wrestling team continues to fight the decision to eliminate the sport at the end of the season.

"The wrestling community is very close," Lindenwood head coach Joe Parisi said. "SIUE has been a vital asset to the wrestling community for many years, and we want to show our support."

"I hope it shows (SIUE) administration that the wrestling community can really come together as a group," SIUE head coach Booker Benford said. "I hope it shows them that people care about wrestling. There were around 1,000 fans there. We hoped for more, but we understood it was a weekday where a lot of area high schools had meets themselves."

The support was greatly appreciated by the SIUE wrestlers.

"It was great to see so many fans here supporting wrestling," sophomore wrestler Matt Warren said. "It made a difference to have such a big crowd here."

"A good crowd always helps, especially in tough matches," junior wrestler Aaron Wiens said.

"It doesn't guarantee a win, but it sure helps out."

Unfortunately, the extra support from the crowd wasn't enough for the Cougars to pull out a victory.

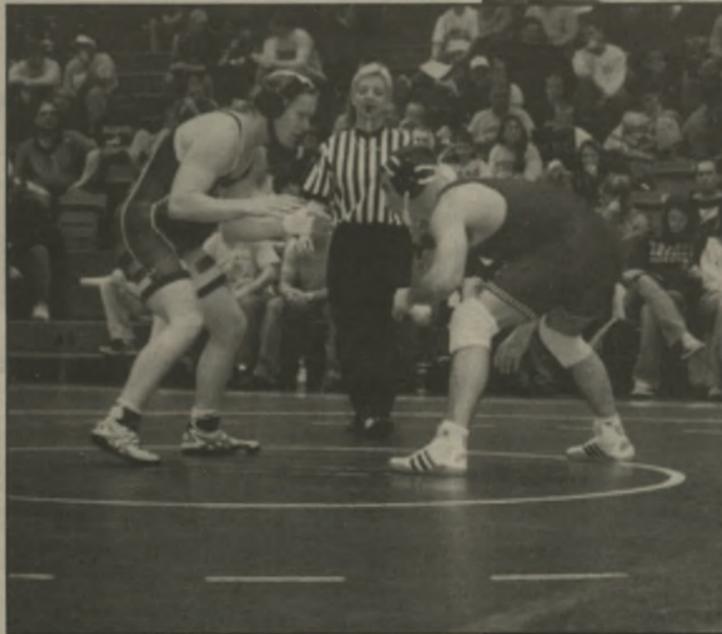

Lindenwood, the reigning National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics wrestling champion, dominated all but one win.

Still, Parisi was impressed with the effort by the Cougars.

"They (SIUE) came in and competed well against really top-quality wrestlers," Parisi said. "They shouldn't be disappointed with the loss. They should have really high expectations for the end of the season and regionals."

Collecting the sole victory for SIUE was senior Zach Stephens, who pinned Lindenwood's Brian Holt in the 174-pound weight division. Stephens is now ranked fourth nationally in the National Collegiate Athletic Association Division II.

AUBREY WILLIAMS/ALESTIE

"I feel like my wrestling is getting better and better as the season goes along," Stephens said. "I am wrestling more aggressively and executing more moves."

SIUE will return to the mats at 7 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 8, for the Central Missouri State University Dual Jamboree in Warrensburg, Mo.

Cougar track teams begin indoor schedule of meets

Milleville qualifies for NCAA Tournament

HEATHER KLOTZ
SPORTS STRINGER

Not one, not two, but three school records were broken by the SIUE men's track team at the Stan Lyons Open in Indianapolis, Ind., Saturday.

Sophomore Mark Milleville broke SIUE's weight-throw record for the second time this year, placing second with a 17.12 meter throw in the finals. More importantly, Milleville's new record also qualified him for the National Collegiate Athletic Association National Tournament in March.

"He had the full potential of throwing what he did," head coach Darryl Frerker said. "I think he can still throw even further."

Freshman Steve Landers also turned in a record-breaking performance in the shot put.

His throw of 15.27 meters broke the school record and earned him a fourth-place finish overall.

But, he said, holding the school record is not his priority.

"It would be a downfall if I only thought about beating the school record," Landers said. "I am not looking to hold the school record. I am in a race to beat myself."

Sophomore Taylor Reich set the third record in the pole vault. The new record of 4.40 meters gave Reich a seventh-place finish overall.

Although the other team members did not set any records, Frerker was proud of their performances.

"Across the board, we had a lot of strong performances," Frerker said.

"Each meet helps give us confidence and give us the experience we need."

Junior Richard Skirball's time of 1 minute, 56.3 seconds, earned him third place in the men's 800-meter run.

On the women's side, sophomore Jennifer Jaquez ran well, earning 11th place in the women's 400-meter dash with a time of 1:00.9.

Competing on a track responsible for more than 39 NCAA records helped boost the Cougars' confidence going into the meet.

"There are not many tracks of that quality in the United States," Frerker said.

"You always jump at the opportunity to run on that level of a surface."

The track in Indianapolis was originally built in France and shipped to the United States for the Indoor World Championships.

It was then used for the NCAA Indoor Championships before being acquired by Butler University, host of the Stan Lyons Open, at the beginning of this year.

Both the men's and women's teams will continue to prepare for the upcoming Great Lakes Valley Conference Championships by competing in the Titan Open Saturday, Feb. 8, in Bloomington.

Men's basketball team hopes for success on the road

SIUE prepares for USI and KWC

KELI KEENER
SPORTS EDITOR

The SIUE men's basketball team will hit the road for another two Great Lakes Valley Conference games this weekend.

The Cougars meet with the Screaming Eagles of the University of Southern Indiana Thursday and the Panthers of Kentucky Wesleyan College Saturday.

The Cougars are 7-10 overall, 3-7 in the conference and hold the eighth spot in GLVC standings. Victories will be imperative this week for SIUE, as only the top eight teams will advance to the GLVC Tournament in March.

Southern Indiana is 13-4 overall and holds an 8-3 mark in the conference. The Screaming Eagles are on a six-game winning streak that includes a 90-77 victory over the Cougars Jan. 4.

"We are going to have to take care of the ball against USI," head coach Marty Simmons said in a recent press release. "That has been our Achilles' heel. We also need to be more fundamentally sound in our passing."

Senior forward Diond're Givens leads USI in points per game with 15.9.

The Screaming Eagles are coming off an 80-72 victory against Lewis University where they went a school-record 25-25 from the free throw line.

Women's basketball has hope for tough road trip

Cougars head to Indiana and Kentucky

AMY GRANT
ASSISTANT SPORTS EDITOR

The women's basketball team has another shot to improve in the Great Lakes Valley Conference this weekend with two games on the road.

The Cougars will face the University of Southern Indiana Screaming Eagles Thursday before they conclude with a match against the Kentucky Wesleyan College Panthers Saturday.

USI is 6-12 overall and 4-7 in the GLVC, one spot behind SIUE for eighth place. As a result, the winner will move up in the conference.

"Thursday's game will be huge for both teams," assistant coach Lee Green said. "If we win, we're back in the hunt, but if we lose, we've sunk to eighth place in the conference."

The Screaming Eagles have a winning record of 5-4 at home where they average 78.1 points per game and 60.3 points per game on the road.

In SIUE's last meeting against the Screaming Eagles, junior guard LaKasha Cole scored with less than a second remaining to give the Cougars a 53-51 win.

"We won the last game in the final second so there will be a little bit of revenge involved on their part," Green said. "They're on a three-game losing streak, and they're at home so it's going to be a tough game."

USI boasts senior forward Africa Sherrod in its lineup. Sherrod leads the GLVC in rebounds with an average of 11.1, double-doubles with 14 and is third in the league with 17.4 points per game.

Kentucky Wesleyan is in the cellar of the GLVC with an overall record of 4-13 and a conference record of 1-9. The Panthers are 3-7 at home and collected their only conference win in their own building.

"The coaching staff hasn't looked past Kentucky Wesleyan, but I think the girls may have a little bit," Green said. "With all the emphasis on Southern Indiana, they may have a hard time focusing on Saturday's game. But they also know how important the game is, so they'll be ready."

Freshman guard Holly Mills is one of the Panthers bright spots. She leads the team with a .872 free throw percentage and an average of 11.6 points per game.

SIUE fell to 8-9 overall and 4-6 in the GLVC after losing its last game to the Quincy University Hawks 68-56 over the weekend.

Senior center Ruth Kipping continues to lead the conference with 19 points per game and is SIUE's only player averaging in double figures. She is also leading the Cougars with 7.7 rebounds per game and 15 blocks.

The Cougars will take on USI at 5:15 p.m. Thursday in Evansville, Ind., and Kentucky Wesleyan at 1:15 p.m. Saturday in Owensboro, Ky.
