

General Education could see reforms

ALESTLE STAFF REPORT

SIUE is about to begin its first overhaul of the General Education program in more than 20 years, according to an e-mail sent by Faculty Senate President Joel Hardman and Historical Studies professor Eric Ruckh.

The General Education program was last reviewed in 1982. Hardman and Ruckh will lead the current effort.

The original General Education program, put in place in 1982, is still followed, but has changed with modifications in 1993 and 1999 adding requirements, making the program complex and confusing, the e-mail said.

Hardman pointed out in the e-mail that the faculty generally agrees the program needs to be simplified.

Another reason for reform relates to faculty ownership. More than 60 percent of SIUE's full-time instructional faculty has been on campus for less than a decade. Because of faculty turnover, there is little ownership for the conceptualization, design and implementation of the program as a whole, Hardman said.

To begin the reform, SIUE's provost and the Faculty Senate formed the Objectives Steering Committee to review the university's statement of objectives for general education and the baccalaureate degree.

The Objectives Steering Committee held three open meetings that allowed faculty members to offer and discuss their views on general education objectives.

Faculty concerns included particular general education courses, the disjointed relationship between general education courses and the courses for a student's major or minor and the frequent lack of communication between teachers of general education instruction and teachers of upper-division courses.

Grad school names acting associate dean

GAVIN HAMILTON NEWS STRINGER

English professor Ron Schaefer has been named Graduate School acting associate dean for research.

Schaeffer will start his job in the fall semester while a committee conducts a national search to fill the job permanently.

"Ron's experience will bring an invaluable perspective to the Graduate School in assisting faculty with grants," Dean of Graduate Studies and Research Stephen Hansen said. "He is willing to assume responsibility for the fall semester to help the Graduate School while we conduct our search."

Hansen said he hopes to fill the job by January.

Schaefer is the 2001 recipient of the Hoppe Research Professor Award for his research on Nigeria's Northern Edo language studies.

Schaefer is in Nigeria and could not be reached for comment.

According to the SIUE Office of Research and Projects Web site, the Hoppe Research

Professor Awards are "made to SIUE faculty members in order to recognize and support individual programs of research or creative activities." The awards "recognize faculty members whose research or creative activities have the promise of making significant contributions to their fields of study."

Hansen added that if Schaefer would be interested in applying for the permanent position, he is "more than welcome to apply."

Schaefer earned his doctorate from the University of Kansas in 1980 and joined the SIUE faculty in 1986.

Schaefer replaces Jerry Pogatshnik as of Friday. Pogatshnik, a professor in the Physics Department, served for four years. He resigned to join the faculty of Eastern Kentucky University.

The SIUE Graduate School offers 34 master's degree programs, plus specialist degrees, post-baccalaureate certificates and several cooperative doctoral programs. There are 2,500 students in the program.

Raise your voice with new organization

ALESTLE STAFF REPORT

A new campus organization hopes to help members of the community raise their voices this fall.

Leah Orwig, a first-year graduate student in the Social Work Department, hopes to bring a chapter of the Raise Your Voice Campaign to SIUE.

"Raise Your Voice is a volunteer-based organization to get students and community members involved in finding struggles and concerns within their campus and community, and then working with local leaders to find ways to fix them," Orwig said.

"We want to get students over being apathetic and make them care about an issue so that they can get involved toward the betterment of that issue," she added.

Orwig said the group has contacted more than 80 students on campus to see what their needs and concerns are.

"The students we've talked to are concerned about a basic lack of communication between departments and their students," Orwig said. "Some of them were thanking us for allowing them to voice their concerns."

Orwig said the SIUE Raise Your Voice students have been working closely with the United SIUE have attended Raise Your Voice conferences throughout the Midwest at a national and regional meeting level.

"We are currently working over the summer to get a feel for the campus, to boost group involvement and hopefully enrollment in the fall," Orwig said.

The group currently has five students, but Orwig said she hopes

Assistant Director of Student Organization and Development for the Kimmel Leadership Center Cheryl Heard said the organization would "be a good thing to give students, as well as the rest of the university community, the opportunity to just share their views of issues that concern us."

Patricia Kessen, secretary III for the TRIO programs of the East St. Louis Center, received the June employee of the month award.

"It was very unexpected," Kessen said. "I feel very honored."

The TRIO program is dedicated to motivating and supporting students from low-income households and first-generation college students. According to Kessen, the program, which targets area high school students, is an education opportunity outreach program.

Kessen's co-worker Sherri Keys and supervisor Richard Binder, director of the TRIO program, nominated Kessen.

"She is very hardworking and conscientious," Binder said. "She hates to sit. She is always active."

Binder added that Kessen helps with several other programs.

"She is always working on something and she thinks ahead," Binder said. "She has taken a lot of responsibility off of me."

Kessen, who has been working in the program for one year, said she is delighted to be working for SIUE.

"I work for a wonderful and exceptional staff and SIUE is one of the best places you could work for. I'm very happy here," Kessen

This past week I have been following a constitutional amendment in the U.S. Congress to ban flag burning. The measure has advanced to the House of Representatives and is now in the Senate for debate. This amendment is intended to stop the desecration of American flags and punish those who commit these acts. Supporters of this amendment believe that the American public is out of touch with patriotism and that we need to be more patriotic by not burning flags. On the other side of the argument, many people, including myself, believe what U.S. Rep. Jerold Nadler, D-N.Y. said of this amendment, "If the flag needs protection at all, it needs protection from members of Congress who value the symbol more than the freedom that the flag represents."

Is our freedom in the flag?

How true is that! The U.S. Congress has debated this issue six times, and every time it has failed to advance to a full vote. Why do you think this is? Probably because many members of Congress know that the American people do not see the flag as their symbol of freedom, but rather the way they live their lives and the honor bestowed on those who have fought, and are fighting now to protect their land.

Now, don't get me wrong, I do not like to see American flags of our freedom, ladies and gentlemen, cannot just be the flag. The symbol of freedom must be how each one of us lives our lives in reflection of that great sacrifice given by so many men and women. Celebrate flag burning along with all the freedoms that are guaranteed to us under the Constitution. I will celebrate that, and I hope you will too. This new generation of Americans will not hide behind a flag, but rather share with the world how we are free, and hopefully one day help them be free. If you are proud to be an American, celebrate our history, culture and what we stand for, and not just the flag!

burning. However, if someone wants to exercise the right to burn an American flag, I will do nothing to stop that person. In fact, I will celebrate the act and give praise to the right I have to express my views in this great country.

Now is the time to get troops out of Iraq

It is time for Congress to stop procrastinating about Iraq. Urge your congressional representatives to sign on to a bipartisan resolution, the Homeward Bound Act, calling for usurper Bush to come up with a plan by the end of this year to withdraw the troops from Iraq, and for the withdrawal to start no later than October 2006. The binding resolution is being sponsored by Reps. Walter B. Jones Jr., R-N.C., Ron Paul, R-Texas, Dennis Kucinich, D-Ohio, and Neil Abercrombie, D-Hawaii.

We do not want this war and occupation to drag on endlessly like the Vietnam War, which lasted 17 years. American public opinion turned against the Vietnam War in 1968 and yet the war went on for seven more years during which time most of the fatalities and casualties occurred. There were always new promises of "light at the end of the tunnel." Elections were held in 1967 in South Vietnam with 80 percent participation, yet the regime was defeated nonetheless. Chicken Little forebodings of the world going Communist should we lose in Vietnam – the infamous Domino Theory – did not come true.

The Vietnam War only ended after Congress voted to cut off funds. Our troops should not have to pay for the maliciousness and bungling of high government officials.

President Jimmy Carter

provoked the December 1979 Soviet intervention in Afghanistan by giving military assistance to the Mujahedeen in a directive signed July 3, 1979. This is documented in former Central Intelligence Agency Director Robert Gates' memoirs and in a French magazine (Le Nouvel Observateur, Paris, 15-21 January 1998) interview with Carter's National Security Adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski. This triggered the whole sad chain of events in Afghanistan. Yet gullible liberals are still suckered by Carter's winning the Nobel Peace Prize!

On the eve of Saddam Hussein's invasion of Kuwait in 1990, U.S. Ambassador to Iraq April Glaspie had a fateful conversation with Saddam Hussein. She gave a clear, diplomatic signal for Iraq to invade, saying: "We have no opinion on the Arab-Arab conflicts, like your border disagreement with Kuwait."

Bald-faced lies have been used in the hate campaign against Saddam Hussein. Gassing the Kurds was done with cyanide-based gas that Iran, but not Iraq, had at the time. This was explained in New York Times Op-Ed article (Jan. 21, 2003) by Stephen C. Pelletiere, senior CIA political analyst on Iraq during the Iran-Iraq war.

CELEBRATE SAFELY

Even legal fireworks can cause serious injury when not used with caution

MINDEE WHITSELL
LIFESTYLES REPORTER

The Madison County Health Department is urging citizens to be safe during their Independence Day festivities.

Last year's celebrations resulted in 186 firework injuries significant enough to require treatment. Bottle rockets and sparklers were the leading cause of injuries.

Bottle rockets are illegal in the state of Illinois, but sparklers are not.

Madison County Health Department Health Educator Jill Heuchert said that many people do not realize how dangerous sparklers can be.

"People consider it to be safe because it's not a Roman candle, it's not a skyrocket," Heuchert said. "A lot of times what they're not understanding is that the sparklers can reach temperatures of 1,200 degrees. Steel will warp or melt or sag when heated to 1,100 degrees."

"If you do choose to use legal fireworks, please think safety first."

~ Jill Heuchert, health educator

Other than sparklers, the only other fireworks legal in this state are smoke devices, noisemakers and snake or glow worm pellets. Firecrackers, torpedoes, Roman candles and bombs are all prohibited.

"If you do choose to use legal fireworks, please think safety first," Heuchert said in a press release.

She added that children should never be allowed to play with or ignite fireworks.

If a firework doesn't detonate on its first attempt, it should not be relit.

Hauchert stressed precaution as the key to firework safety. She recommended keeping a bucket of water close by in case of a fire. Also, call 911 immediately if you are injured by a firework.

Additional information on fireworks and firework safety can be found by contacting the local fire department or the Office of the Illinois State Fire Marshal in Springfield.

The SIUE Cricket Club is looking for members to play on its new field.

Club President Srinvas Rao Sambaraju said the money the team raised through students and sponsors helped in getting the field finalized. The field is near the Korte Stadium, and will be completed by late July.

Until now, the team has had to find other fields to play on.

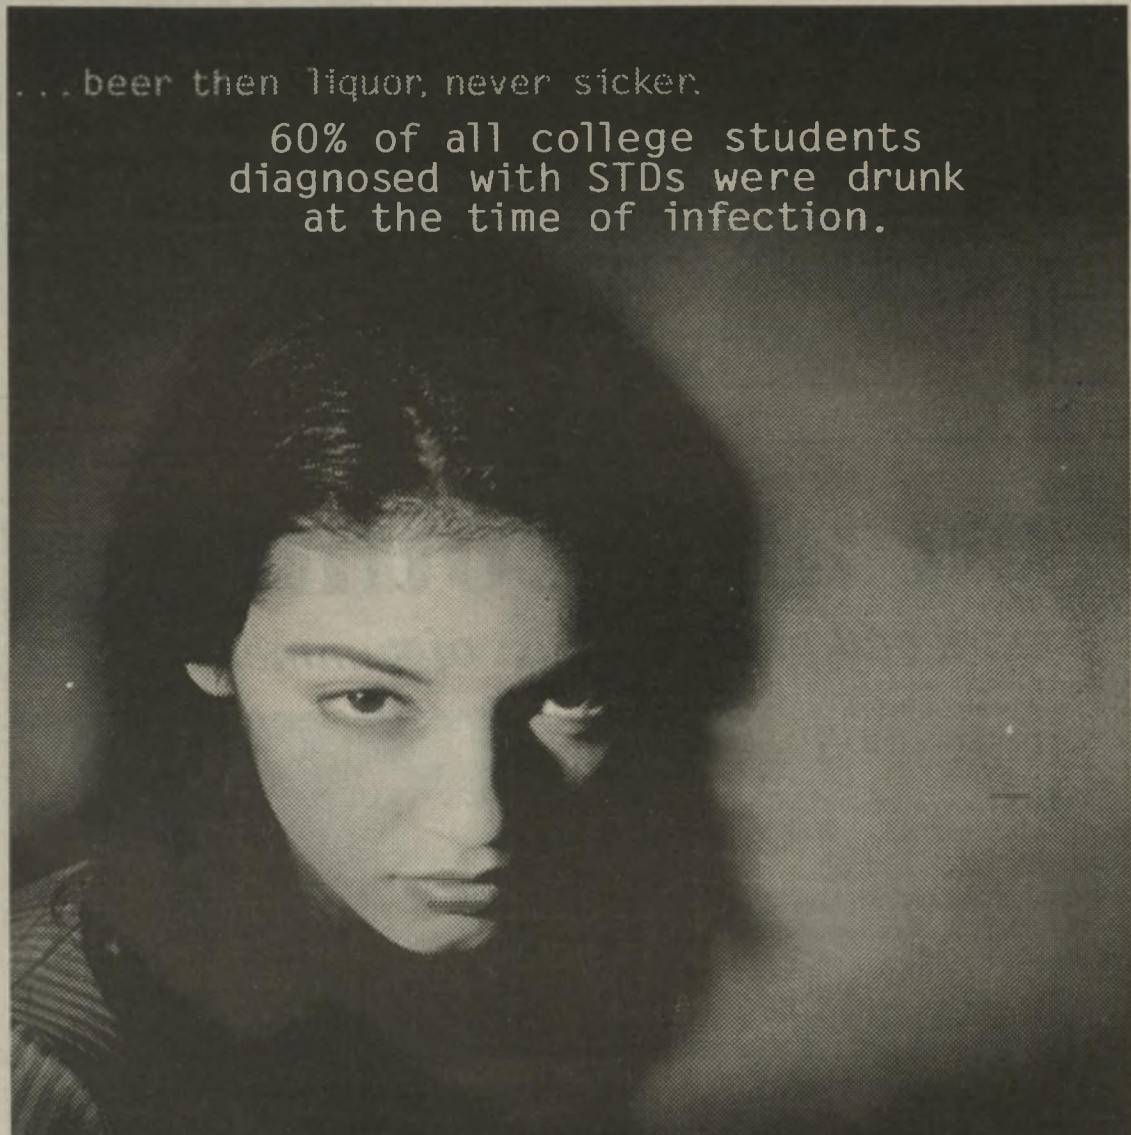

"We travel to nearby places like Springfield, Hazelwood, Collinsville and Carbondale," Sambaraju said.

Since the team did not have its own field, it was unable to join a local league. Now it will be able to play more regularly.

Ten and counting
Cougars add pitcher to list of summer recruits

MATTHEW BRUCE
SPORTS EDITOR

It's been a busy offseason for the SIUE baseball team. With enough new players to fill a starting lineup, head coach Gary Collins has signed more recruits over the summer than any other SIUE team.

The latest addition Thursday made Mike White the Cougars' 10th recruit of the offseason.

"I'd say it's a rather large recruiting class," assistant coach Tony Stoecklin said. "We're a little different than other sports in that we have a 27-man roster. But we have brought in more players than usual."

White, a transfer student from Illinois Central College in East Peoria, joins former teammates Cameron Cheek, Jake Smith and Brian Newby, who came to Edwardsville from ICC last season. White also joins former ICC infielder and high school teammate Dan Fletcher, who signed on to play with SIUE earlier this summer.

Cheek and Fletcher were both named Collegiate Conference of Central Illinois Player of the Year while in East Peoria, with Cheek winning the award in 2004 and Fletcher capturing the award last season.

"It's a relationship that's come about in the last couple of years with (head coach Brett) Kelley. He and I became friends," Stoecklin said of SIUE's connection with the ICC program, whose mascot is also the Cougars. "He's got a good program up there. They've got a lot of talented players, and we love having them here. They seem to like playing for us."

There may be a new commotion behind the SIUE Recreation Complex softball field this fall. That's because the Tackle Football Club is working hard to bring a taste of gridiron competition to SIUE.

"Right now, we're in the middle of fundraising," Club President Jon Shumaker said. "We're trying to get the word out."

Shumaker, who joined the club in late February, said he's been trying to raise money by pitching the idea to SIUE faculty members, alumni and local businesses.

So far, with the help of Disability Support Services Director Jane Floyd-Hendey and her husband, William, Shumaker and company have been able to set up Friends of Football.

"We're just really trying to do what we can," he added. "It's going to take a lot of effort."

Shumaker said the team needs to raise a little more than $25,000 to buy the necessary gear to start a football club. So far the club has raised about $4,000.

"It's one of those sports where you can't skimp on equipment," he said. "You want to be safe."

Shumaker has three games scheduled for the club this fall, including a possible matchup against Blackburn College's junior varsity team at SIUE.

"We're hoping to get them to come for Homecoming," Shumaker said. "It will be the first football game at SIUE ever."

The club came to life during the spring semester when Shumaker and senior Brian Bechtel held tryouts in the Student Fitness Center. The response has been overwhelming

Kids weather heat and compete in sun at softball camps full of fun

JANELLE DOBSON
SPORTS REPORTER

Softball players are stepping up to the plate thanks to SIUE's summer camp.

"It's an instructional camp," SIUE softball head coach Sandy Montgomery said. "There are kids from all over the Metro area."

About 50 players participated in the camp June 22, 23 and 24. Coach Montgomery, SIUE assistant coach Valerie McCoy, one former SIUE player and four players from the SIUE softball team, instructed the campers.

The camp was divided into two sessions. The first session was designed for girls ranging from kindergarten through fifth grade. Session two was geared toward sixth-graders through 12th-graders.

The younger group went to camp for two hours in the morning, while the older campers worked for two hours in the afternoon. The cost of the camp was $75 per camper.

"It goes right to my program," Montgomery said of the money. "We use it as a fundraiser for travel."

The camp focused on offensive skills such as hitting, base running, bunting, slapping and sliding. The campers also worked on their defense, with the focus on throwing, infield and outfield positions, and catcher instruction, along with game strategies.

"We're just teaching them the game of softball," Montgomery said. "We want to make sure they have a good time."

Montgomery said she holds camps every year, but they are not always the same.

"We change things and do things differently," she said. "We have never had the young kids outside before, but this year we are switching it up."

"We try to get new people interested," she added.

"It's basically like a high school booster program," Shumaker said of the venture. "They love the game of football. They've been helping us to make contacts that we probably wouldn't have made."

The club hustled for bucks during the spring by selling T-shirts, and will do so again in the fall.

Other fund-raising plans include a concert in the Morris University Center and an auction. "We're trying to have maybe four or five bands perform at the Meridian Ballroom, and charge $5 per student," Shumaker said.

"We're also trying to have a slave auction, where some guys on the team are auctioned off. If someone needs some yard work done in Edwardsville and they don't want to do it, they can come down and bid on a player or two."

for a club football team.

"Literally 90 to 95 percent of the people we've talked to have been excited about it," Shumaker said. "You're going to always have naysayers and people saying, 'I'm a senior, and they've been trying to get a team here for the past six years and it hasn't happened yet.' But we always have very positive responses."

There were between 20 and 25 club members when the spring semester ended, and Shumaker hopes to have more in the fall.

"We had a lot of interest from kids who wanted to come out, but said it conflicted with their spring schedules," Shumaker said.

him is that he throws strikes and he doesn't walk a lot of people."

White, an East Peoria High School graduate, is the fourth pitcher the Cougars have signed this summer.

According to Stoecklin, White, who was a starting pitcher at ICC, could start a few games for the Cougars in 2006, and he may also make a few appearances out of the bullpen.

"Right now, he's projected as a starter," Stoecklin said. "But you really don't know until they get down here with the rest of the team. He was guaranteed nothing but a spot in our pitching rotation."

Stoecklin threw out the notion that 2006 would be a rebuilding year for SIUE because the team returns many players from last year's lineup.

The Cougars finished last season with a 28-27 record, and fell one game short of qualifying for the Great Lakes Valley Conference Tournament.

SIUE is scheduled to begin next season in a renovated Roy E. Lee Field, with revamped grandstands, a new concession stand and a refurbished press box.

competition.

"What we're looking to do is kind of like what club hockey has done," he said. "This is their eighth or ninth year. They've established themselves as competitive with Division II schools."

The hockey club gained national recognition by winning its third Mid-Atlantic Collegiate Hockey Association championship for the 2003-2004 season, and has been invited to compete in Division I tournaments.

"I really think we can build a team. I think we can compete with the Division III schools," Shumaker said. "We've got guys that have experience in football, and we've got guys that had never put a helmet on before spring.

"We all know that SIUE right now is predominantly a commuter college," he added. "A football program would bring people to the campus over the weekend."

Shumaker acknowledges that money is probably what has kept SIUE from adding a football program to its bill of varsity athletics in its nearly 50-year existence.

"It's expensive," he said. "If you're going to run a Division II program, you're going to spend at least $5 million, and that might be low."

Shumaker said the club will need the support of SIUE students, faculty, staff and residents to continue moving forward.

"I've heard a lot of people on campus say they really want to see this thing work out," Shumaker said. "We're going to try and do that."

IF YOU'RE CARING FOR ANOTHER FAMILY MEMBER, TRYING YOUR HARDEST AND DOING YOUR BEST ARE TWO DIFFERENT THINGS.

One out of five adults finds themselves as the designated "caregiver" for a loved one who can't manage alone. This role can often snowball, placing more and more demands on the family caregiver. In trying to do it all, you may reach a point of diminishing returns where the level of care - despite your best efforts - may be less than it could or should be. That's where we can help. Visit www.familycaregiving101.org and discover a world of support, answers and advice - for both of you.

From the National Family Caregivers Association and the National Alliance for Caregiving with the generous support of Esai Inc.
