Sorority dance winds up in a brawl

ANTHONY WATT
ASSISTANT NEWS EDITOR

The SIUE police are investigating a brawl at a dance sponsored by the Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority in the Meridian Ballroom.

Police Chief Richard Harrison said the fight started at about 2:15 a.m. Saturday.

"We had two officers working the dance outside the Meridian when a girl came out and told them a fight had started," he said.

AKA President Tanetshia Gearlds said she did not see the fight because she was staffing the doors of the Meridian Ballroom when it started.

"Around 2:00, people started running out saying there was a fight," she said.

Harrison said the officers saw about 20 men fighting in the center of the ballroom.

When they tried to break it up, the combatants spread to other parts of the Meridian Ballroom and continued fighting.

SIUE Coordinator of Greek life John Davenport saw the fight and said he didn't think SIUE students were involved and that the men fighting were from other schools.

Harrison said four SIUE police officers and one Edwardsville officer were eventually involved.

Officers sprayed Mace on 15 men fighting in a corner to stop the brawl.

Gearlds said she and the members of her sorority helped evacuate people.

"I saw people coming out with blood on their backs and shirts," Gearlds said.

No one was seriously injured during the fight.

No arrests had been made as of Wednesday afternoon.

2+2 nursing plan

KENT HIGHSMITH
NEWS STRINGER

The SIUE School of Nursing has announced a joint venture with the Lewis and Clark Community College nursing program called the 2 Plus 2 RN to BS Program.

The registered nurse to bachelor of science program is designed to help LCCC students pursue a four-year baccalaureate nursing degree at SIUE upon completion of their two-year associate's degree. The part-time program also helps meet the needs of working nurses who wish to advance. "This program is designed to help the working nurse," said Donna Meyer, LCCC nursing program coordinator. Meyer said the majority of the classes will be on the LCCC campus in Godfrey but will be taught by SIUE faculty.

There will be some classes on the SIUE campus because they require use of the state-of-the-art facilities not available at LCCC.

These facilities include the psychomotor skills lab and its computerized human patient simulator.

SIUE is the only baccalaureate nursing program in the Midwest that offers the patient simulator experience.

"This is a plus for everyone," said Felissa Lashley, dean of the SIUE School of Nursing. "At a time when the medical field is suffering a shortage of qualified nurses, the program will help create greater educational opportunities for a wide range of nursing students."

Discussions about the program began more than a year ago. Meyer, who is a graduate of SIUE's School of Nursing, said the faculty at LCCC is very supportive of this new concept. The program is set to launch in the Fall of 2002.

East St. Louis Center gets assistant vice chancellor

KENT HIGHSMITH
NEWS STRINGER

Gloria Atkins has been named assistant vice chancellor of administration for East St. Louis operations at the East St. Louis Higher Education Center.

Atkins will organize building maintenance, custodial care and grounds care on the campus. She will also be the liaison between agencies using the center and SIUE.

"I am excited about the challenges that I'll face with all of the different agencies that will be located in the new center and making things run smoothly," Atkins said.

The Illinois Community College Board has been running the center but SIUE will now take over the everyday operations.

"The biggest challenge will be to take over operation of the center from the Community College Board," Atkins said.

Atkins previously worked at the East St. Louis Center for six months and is familiar with the site and its surroundings. As a result of this experience she is "intimately familiar with the center and the people around it," said Vice Chancellor for Administration Kenneth Neher.

Prior to her new posting, Atkins was an assistant vice chancellor of administration for 12 years at SIUE. She was responsible for the budget of the vice chancellor for administration's office. She also helped plan capital projects such as the Dunham Hall addition and the Student Fitness Center.

She will also be managing the current construction and renovation projects at the East St. Louis Center.

Groundbreaking for the new facilities will be at 1 p.m. Friday, Sept. 28. Construction of the new facilities will take about two years and cost about $27 million. "We need a vice chancellor presence in East St. Louis because we are going from managing one building to being responsible for an entire campus," Neher said.

New major coming to SIUE

MELINDA HAWKINS
LIFESTYLES REPORTER

Beginning in the spring semester, SIUE students will have a new major to consider in the sociology department.

The new major is for careers in criminal justice and related fields.

"The major will primarily take a sociological perspective. Students will not only learn how the criminal justice system works in practice, but also consider its impact on society and on particular populations," said Hugh Barlow, chair of the sociology department and adviser for criminal justice majors.

Advising for the major is already under way and no more than 25 students will be admitted into the program.

The criminal justice curriculum will explore the issues and critical reforms of the criminal justice system. The major will offer some new classes in the spring, with a full curriculum to be developed next year.

Students seeking a degree in criminal justice are advised to take the prerequisite courses presently offered in the areas of crime, delinquency and criminal justice issues.

"We're very concerned with making this major attractive to individuals who live and work in the area with associate's degrees in criminal justice, or who are working in these fields, so that they would be able to complete a four year degree," Barlow said.

Three new faculty members are being hired by the sociology department to begin next fall. A fourth will enter the department in 2003.

According to Barlow, the new faculty members will be expected to maintain an active research agenda.

Barlow said the next challenge facing the administration is the development of internship opportunities for seniors in the criminal justice program. He said many local criminal justice organizations have already expressed an interest in providing these opportunities.

Some of the local organizations interested in participating in the internship program include the St. Clair and Madison County sheriff departments, the U.S. District Court, the Madison County Probation and Court Services,

Terrorism should not tear us apart

The airplane hijackings and the destruction they caused are horrific, but we have to begin picking up the pieces and looking to the future.

There are many important things to remember after Tuesday's terrible events. First and foremost is to stay calm.

This seems like ordinary information, but it is necessary to the situation.

Right now, emotions are running high and some people are letting anger get the best of them. It is a common reaction. Everywhere you turn, people are talking about retaliation and finding who is responsible. The just resolution of this great American tragedy is vital.

But, we should not let our emotions cause further injustices.

International students are just as much a part of SIUE as anyone else and I feel sure that no SIUE students had anything to do with the devastation Tuesday. Rumors are flying around campus about harassment from and toward international students. I have not heard solid evidence of this, but I hope it is not true.

We have to pull together as a community at a time such as this. There is no need to alienate students of different ethnicity or backgrounds. They are as innocent as anyone else on this campus of the terrorism that occurred in New York and Washington, D.C.

Students should be aware that SIUE is prepared to deal with problems stemming from Tuesday's incidents. Counseling Services is available and ready to talk about whatever may be troubling anyone. There is no shame in being upset or frightened. I can say that I was frightened when I found out what had happened on U.S. soil.

Action will be taken and someone will pay for what happened to our people. The president promised that. Just remember that action is not our personal responsibility and no people in our area should be mistreated because of their background. As I am writing this Wednesday, we don't know who is to blame for this great tragedy.

My prayers go out to all those affected by the terrorism. I cannot fathom how families and friends of victims feel right now. I just hope that they can pull through with the help of their friends and the rest of the country.

The best thing we can do to help at this time is to donate blood. There are several blood drives set up for the coming week. If at all possible, please find the time to help the victims of terrorism.

Again, stay calm and pull together. Everyone helping each other will make this difficult situation a little easier.

Brian Wallheimer
Editor in Chief

Letters to the Editor

Dear Students:

No words can clearly express the horror and shock we have felt today following the attacks on New York and Washington, D.C. In the aftermath of these tragic events, our campus community, as well as our nation, will face difficult days ahead as we encounter the grief and sorrow resulting from this tremendous loss of life. No one can be untouched by these events.

In order to ensure the ongoing safety and welfare of our campus community, the University Police have been asked to increase campus patrols, and every individual should continue to behave in positive and constructive ways as we deal with the complex feelings and issues engendered by these acts.

In the very near future, our campus will be organizing blood drives so that there will be sufficient supplies to meet the medical needs of the injured. Your participation in this effort is one way to make a very real and important contribution to the recovery effort.

For those who may have been directly touched by this tragic situation, Counseling Service and the Resident Life staff will be available to assist those who are in need.

The coming days will be difficult and will test the bonds that hold our community together. However, the strength, courage and wisdom that have built our country will sustain us in this time of tragedy, and the SIUE community will continue to demonstrate that compassion and civility can overcome any tragedy.

Dear Editor:

I am the president of Indian Student Association at SIUE.

As a student and student leader of an International Student Organization, I feel the need to express the Indian Student Association's concern over Tuesday's dastardly attacks on United States.

Our own country being a target for many a terrorist attacks, we understand what America is going through at this point in time. We can tell you that every Indian student on this campus and our fellow Indians back home feel like Americans in this hour of pain and distress.

Our hearts go out to those families who have suffered losses in these acts of stupidity.

We are here for you if you need us. Just let us know what we can do.

The International Student Council held its elections on Wednesday at an open meeting.

Govinda .Pai, former ISC president, passed the torch to president-elect Deepak Jamakhandimath who set the agenda for the next year.

"We hope to keep our active role in the community and invite other groups to experience our culture," Jamakhandimath said.

The group is best known for its International Week and Night event set to be held at the end of October or beginning of November.

Jamakhandimath hopes to keep the tradition of community service and pride within the unique group.

"It's important to everyone that we keep doing what we are doing," Jamakhandimath said.

The newly elected council includes Vice President Tansu Aksoy, Treasurer Karen Vasquez, Public Relations Officer Ahmedov Akbar, Secretary Justine Sarrot and Jamakhandimath.

the Alton Police Department, the Illinois State Police and the Third Judicial Circuit.

All criminal justice majors will be required to participate in a supervised internship in a criminal justice organization or a related agency.

"This major will not be designed to train police officers or prison guards. It will be oriented toward understanding and explaining crime, the actions and experiences of police, the organization and consequences of punishment, and the public policy implications of what happens to criminals, victims and people working in the field," Barlow said.

The major will be based in liberal arts and sciences, with a variety of elective courses available in sociology, geography, public administration and social work.

When fully developed for the 2002-03 school year, both day and evening courses will be available. Some of the courses to be offered include corrections, policing, rehabilitation, treatment, ethics and community corrections.

Transfer students in Illinois community colleges may be able to receive a total of 15 semester hour transfer credits toward a major in criminal justice. Transfer students seeking a minor, which will consist of at least 21 semester hours of criminal justice electives, may receive up to nine hours of transfer credits.

The development of a major in criminal justice has been part of a four-year effort to expand the department of sociology. The state legislature provided approximately $260,000 to SIUE in additional funds to support the program.

"I want readers to see the state is really supporting this program. The university has also been very supportive from the outset," Barlow said. "This will be great for the university and we're all very proud."

Students interested in this major should contact Barlow at 560-3713.

MORRIS UNIVERSITY CENTER

ALESTLE STAFF REPORT

Arts & Issues will kick off its 17th season Friday with a performance by the Chicago Brass Quintet.

This talented group of musicians has been performing for more than 30 years. Their performances feature the works of Bach, Bernstein, Gabrieli and Gershwin.

The group also combines style, grace and dazzling technique with a touch of humor to bring audiences an evening of great music and entertainment.

The five artists that make up the Chicago Brass Quintet combine their technical and musical talents to perform music of all time periods and styles.

Arts & Issues will feature eight events this season. Season tickets for all events are available for $98; season tickets for students are $49. Individual tickets for the Chicago Brass Quintet performance are $16; student admission is $8.

For more information on the event, call 650-5555, write Arts & Issues, Campus Box 1083 or visit the Arts & Issues Web site at www.siu.edu/ARTS_ISSUES. Free parking will be available in Lot B next to the Morris University Center.

Annual Jazz Supper Dance to feature legendary performer

ALESTLE STAFF REPORT

Guitarist, pianist and songwriter Henry Townsend, known on the St. Louis music scene as the legendary "Dean of the Blues," will be the featured performer at the 13th Annual Friends of Music Jazz Supper Dance.

The event will take place at 5:30 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 30 in the Meridian Ballroom of the Morris University Center.

The Jazz Supper Dance will offer a "southern-style" buffet and dessert with a cash bar throughout the evening. The event will also feature a performance by SIUE's Concert Jazz Band who will play big band music for dancing.

Townsend will be receiving this year's "Outstanding Achievement in Music" Award for his musical career. This 91-year-old musician has recorded in nearly every decade since 1929 and has won numerous awards including a "master artist" designation from the National Endowment for the Arts and a star on the "St. Louis Walk of Fame."

Townsend's musical career has crossed paths with nationally known blues artists such as Robert Johnson, Sonny Boy Williamson and Robert Nighthawk. He has also toured in Europe with Mercer Ellington and Ella Fitzgerald. In St. Louis he made a mark alongside fellow blues legends Roosevelt Sykes and Walter Davis.

Tickets for the Jazz Supper Dance are $40. A table of eight can be reserved for $320.

For more information, call 650-3799 or from St. Louis toll-free at 1-888-328-5168 ext. 3799.

Reservations for the event must be made by Sept. 21. The evening is sponsored by WSIE-FM 88.7, the SIUE Department of Music and the SIUE Friends of Music. Proceeds will benefit the Friends of Music scholarship program for SIUE music students.

Users find Internet to be helpful social tool

ALEXIS GROSCH LIFESTYLES STRINGER

Dating can be one of the greatest learning experiences for college students.

Many people these days go to bars, parties and clubs hoping to meet that special someone. Now the Internet has become a source beyond these conventional methods to meet new people.

People are visiting chat rooms and using instant messages to broaden their social lives. Many Internet servers such as America Online, Yahoo! and Microsoft Network offer specific chat rooms under a romance category. There are also places on the Internet where users can sign up for matchmaking services and tell personal stories of successes and failures with this new dating trend.

The chances of having a successful meeting are about the same as having a successful blind date. Getting to know someone over the Internet can be challenging. Online communication makes it easy for users to be deceitful. Some people who have tried this method have had awkward or even frightening experiences. There are many successful stories however, and they are becoming more common. The Internet has become a valid way to have fun and meet new people.

Jenni Davis, a junior, shared an experience that proves the Internet can be a positive way to meet new people.

"I wasn't surfing the Internet to meet someone, I was just looking to make new friends because I had just started a new school," Davis said.

She soon met David in a chat room and discovered they had things in common. They continued to e-mail each other and correspond through instant messaging.

"I could tell that he was a great guy right away. He didn't ask me anything too personal and he never said anything rude or indecent," Davis said.

After a year, the two met in person.

"I thought it was going to be awkward, but after awhile it was like we had known each other forever," Davis said.

After a three-year friendship and several more visits, the two became a couple and eventually became engaged.

Success stories of Internet romance are not uncommon on campus. Although users are encouraged to be cautious with Internet communication, something special may be found at the click of a mouse.

Study targets male eating disorders

SARAH KANE
THE MIAMI STUDENT

OXFORD, Ohio (U-WIRE) - Eating disorders are almost never expected to be associated with males, but a new study released by the American Journal of Psychiatry is hoping to understand and increase the awareness of male eating disorders.

Socially, eating disorders are mostly associated with females, leaving less understanding and fewer options for men dealing with an eating disorder.

The lead doctor and author of the study, Blake Woodside of Toronto Hospital, explained that after studying 62 men and 212 women known to have eating disorders, many similarities were found except when it came to seeking treatment.

Jeanette Buller, a nurse at Miami University Health Center for 20 years, said that at Miami, male eating disorders were far less common compared to the large number of female eating disorders reported, but the possibly detrimental results are equally threatening.

"I have only seen five male eating disorders in my 20 years at Miami, but in both male and female cases, the health suffers," Buller said.

Buller also agreed with the study that men and women shared many of the same issues causing the eating disorders, but the extremely lower rate of afflicted men seems to be because there is not as much attention and social pressure on men as women.

"Eating disorders in men seem to be more personalized compared to a greater socialized effect on women," Buller said.

The men that have reported to Miami's health center for eating disorders did not come in on their own. They were persuaded by friends and family, and according to Buller, all had much faster recovery times.

Junior Grant Crosswaithe said that it is obvious when an eating disorder begins to affect a man, explaining how he watched a friend from high school shed more than 100 pounds in one summer by compulsive twice-a-day workouts and a small-portion, no-carbohydrate diet.

"He gained some weight freshman year in college and by the end of the summer after freshman year, he was obsessed with exercise and had drastically lost weight," Crosswaithe said.

Crosswaithe also explained that the men he knew with eating disorders all seem to use dietary supplements like General Nutrition Center's Xenedrine, which are referred to as fuel-burners, promising to burn fat three times as fast and simultaneously help build muscle.

J.C. Tibbits, a junior at Miami, also agreed that a problem is signaled when dependent use of fuel-burners and compulsive working out becomes common.

"You can tell when a guy becomes preoccupied with taking fat burning powders and pills," Tibbits said.

Unhealthy weight loss and exercise in men is still almost always overlooked, Crosswaithe said.

"People don't look for an eating disorder in guys. It is thought to be a girl problem, so there is a lot more room for weight fluctuation with guys without everyone thinking he has an eating disorder," Crosswaithe said. He said his friend from high school continues to lose weight in unhealthy ways without alarming most people.

Woodside believes that because eating disorders are socialized as female problems, many men with eating disorders and those around them are much less likely to recognize the disease and its potentially fatal effects.

Students react to terrorist attacks

ANTHONY WATT
ASSISTANT NEWS EDITOR

Emotions are running high on campus as students cope with Tuesday's attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon.

"It's a true tragedy," said Lameshia Sullivan, a sophomore nursing major. "They are shutting down the whole country basically. I feel sorry for everyone who lost their families. People are crazy these days."

When she first heard of the attack Sullivan said, "It felt like the world was going to end."

Throughout the day Tuesday scores of students were glued to television sets in the Morris University Center. They sat silently, in clusters or alone, watching news reports.

"It is unbelievable. It is heartbreaking," Sirak Ambaye, a management information systems major, said as he watched a replay of the attack. "I am very sorry for people who had families in there. A national landmark so important to the United States is gone."

Students are showing anger and sadness in different ways.

"My mom called me at 9 o'clock," Claire Williams, a liberal studies major, said. "My dad was in Newark, New Jersey, and it took us a while to find out he was OK. He saw the towers fall."

"I was in shock," she continued. "I was crying."

Five theater students expressed their grief Tuesday by painting the Rock red, white and blue and posting a sign in memory of the victims of the attacks. The sign reads, "In memory and spirit of the survivors and victims 9/11/01 NYC DC Pittsburgh" on one side. The other side reads, "In memory of 9/11/01 NYC Pittsburgh DC."

Theater student Chris Weaver said he got the idea of adding to the tradition of the Rock.

"We are all a little shocked," said Natasha Baumgardner, who helped paint the Rock. "It is sad and we wanted to let people know we know and that our hearts go out to those that didn't make it."

Students in Prairie Hall have erected a 30-square-foot banner pledging support to America. It is filled with the signatures of Prairie's residents.

One freshman in Center

Court Tuesday, who would only give his first name as Matt, said the events "opened the eyes of our generation, a now-day Kennedy assassination."

Kym Ferris, a 19-year-old on campus to solicit credit card applications, said the tragedy "makes me feel like throwing up."

Asked what she thought about foreigners in the United States, Ferris said she had no bias.

Such thoughts, she said, are "racist, and not what the country needs now."

Jon Ferry, an 18-year-old freshman, said that when it comes to retaliation, he was taking a wait-and-see attitude.

"I don't want to jump to conclusions or point the finger at anyone yet," he said.

Like Ferris, he said there is no reason to immediately be suspicious of foreigners on U.S. soil.

"I have no underlying suspicion, but society might and will," he said.

He also said that "The populace will want death, but all-out war is not good, maybe some form of attack but not all-out war." see STUDENTS, page 10

University taking action

ANTHONY WATT
ASSISTANT NEWS EDITOR

SIUE is trying to change daily operations as little as possible in light of Tuesday's terrorist attacks.

"It will be business as usual," Provost Sharon Hahs said. "We are committed to moving ahead and doing the things we normally do. This is out of respect to our country and those who lost their lives."

SIU President James Walker said the thoughts and prayers of the university are with the victims and families "forever changed by this horrific event."

University Spokesman Keith Nichols said Chancellor David Werner and some staff members who were traveling at the time of the attack are stranded because of the Federal Aviation Administration's lockdown on commercial flights. He said he didn't think there were any faculty traveling who were unable to return.

Although classes went on as usual, the board of trustees meetings scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday were postponed until Thursday, Sept. 20, and Friday, Sept. 21.

Hahs said the university administration is gearing up to help students deal with the aftermath of the attack.

"We are working with every group of students with concerns about what has happened," Hahs said. "Our security is heightened and our counselors are available."

SIUE Police Chief Richard Harrison said he has increased the number of officers and patrols in areas where students gather.

"Especially where we have large groups of foreign students," Harrison said. "We are concerned for them at this point. This is a very emotional time and we don't want our students targeted because of outrage from what happened."

Harrison said officers from other agencies won't be called in unless necessary.

"We don't bring in outside people unless we have a serious breach of the peace," he said. "Our officers are trained to deal with the campus community and we would like to keep it that way. Civility at this point is very important."

"We want to make sure everyone feels safe and secure," he continued. "We really hope everyone maintains the high standard of civility we usually have on this campus."

SIUE Police Capt. Regina Hays said Wednesday that no incidents had been reported.

Area blood drives looking for donors

ALESTLE STAFF REPORT

SIUE will hold three blood drives in the coming week in the wake of the terrorist attacks in New York City and Washington, D.C.

The first drive will be from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday in the Morris University Center's Meridian Ballroom.

Other drives will be from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday and Thursday, Sept. 20. Both will be in the MUC Conference Center.

John Davenport, Greek life coordinator, said volunteers are needed for the drives, especially since the Saturday drive was hastily planned.

"We kind of put this together in a hurry," Davenport said.

For more information, contact the Kimmel Leadership Center at 650-2686.

Religious Center offers hope

ANTHONY WATT
ASSISTANT NEWS EDITOR

The Religious Center is helping the SIUE community come to grips with the terrorist attacks on the East Coast.

The Rev. Cherie Hambleton and Religious Sister Claudia Calzetta led about 50 students, staff and faculty in an ecumenical prayer service Wednesday.

"We are a wounded nation," Hambleton said during the service. "We pray for your healing touch upon us. Let us not act out of hate, but guide our leaders to make intelligent decisions, not ones out of our own anger and pain.

"We know this affected the whole world," she continued. "We ask for your blessing for peace in all nations throughout the world."

The service lasted about 35 minutes and included individual prayers and songs.

"I think it is important that we realize it isn't important what faith we belong to or what God we believe in," said Calzetta, a religious sister with the Sisters of Loretta.

"But that we know there is a greater being and a greater love. There are no answers to this. We need to replace evil and hatred with love. It is the only way we'll change. I believe all religions believe this," she said.

Staff members at the Religious Center are available if students need to talk or pray.

Three ministries are represented at the center, but all students are welcome regardless of faith.

For more information on hours or services, contact the Religious Center at 650-3246

He added that "it takes all the faith of people to push through."

One student, who did not offer her last name, took a different tack.

"I think all of America should get licks on the terrorists, then torture them, fry them," said the mass communications major.

Other students wonder what will happen.

"People are saying they might have more they can do to us," said Jessica Oldani, a business major. "I don't think so. We are the most powerful country in the world. All of us are trying to help and the Army is ready to go. Whoever did this should be frightened of us right now."

Samara Smith-Jacobs, a mass communications major, lives on Scott Air Force Base with her husband, an Air Force weather forecaster.

"I was weeping," she said. "About 10 minutes later I left campus. I had to get out of here. I was worried about my kids. They are in Scott Elementary School."

"When I left this morning they had Hum-vees out with M-60 (machine guns) gunners in the turrets," she said.

Student welfare a priority for all

DEREK SHELTON

SIUE officials are taking steps to ensure the safety of the some 500 international students on campus.

Student Affairs Vice Chancellor Narbeth Emmanuel called a meeting of the Crisis Management Team Tuesday.

He called for the SIUE community to come together as a family.

"We need to bond together now more than ever," Emmanuel said. "We need to stand hand in hand and help one another cope."

SIUE has stepped up police patrols and set up 24-hour counseling in reaction to Tuesday's terrorist attacks.

International Student Services Adviser Toni Liston spoke before the International Student Council Tuesday, telling members to beware of possible discrimination or even attacks on and off campus.

"It's time we round up the wagons and not allow an enemy to attack us from behind," Liston said, "just like in the days of the American gold rush."

She also told the students they should not endure threats or intimidation. She added that staff and police officers are trained to help and should be called upon whenever needed.

SIUE is limiting information about the international students in the interests of protecting them.

"As a matter of security, no directory information will be released from any university office," Public Affairs Director Keith Nichols said.

Student Senator Anthony Martin said that no one should have to worry about attacks on any one people.

"We can't stereotype our students. These were specific people with specific goals. Our students are just as shocked as anyone else," Martin said.

University President James Walker said all the campuses "will put forth every effort to protect our members of the international community."

Marvin Peterson, director of counseling services, said his counselors will be on 24-hour call through the weekend if students need to talk. Regular hours will resume Monday.

"People can reach us during the day at this office," he said. "After hours they can reach us through the SIUE police."

Counseling Services will also be distributing red, white and blue ribbons from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday in the Goshen Lounge of the Morris University Center. The ribbons will symbolize university unity and grief.

Ministers are also on hand at the Religious Center for students who need to talk or want to pray.

A candle is burning under the center's dome in memory of the victims of the attacks on the East Coast.

"We are trying to create a space here where people can connect with their God," Claudia Calzetta, a religious sister with the Sisters of Loretta, said.

"We are trying to let them know their faith will get them through this."

For more information about Counseling Services, contact Peterson at 650-2197. Counseling Services can be contacted after hours through the University Police at 650-3324.

Human Cytomegalovirus (HCMV) Vaccine Study

Volunteers are needed to participate in a research study evaluating investigational vaccines that may prevent HCMV

Approximately 50% of all persons in the United States are infected with HCMV by the age of 40. HCMV is a leading cause of death, mental retardation and deafness in babies infected before birth and may cause serious illness or death in children or adults with weakened immune systems. This study evaluates investigational vaccines that may prevent HCMV.

Men and women between the ages of 18 and 60 who are generally in good health and HCMV positive (to be determined by a blood test) may be eligible to participate. Eligible female participants must be surgically sterile. Participants will be compensated for time and travel and will receive at no charge:

- office visits
- physical examinations
- laboratory tests
- study vaccine

Women's soccer starts conference play

KELI KEENER
SPORTS STRINGER

The women's soccer team is off to a perfect 5-0 start in its 2001 season and looks to add to its record in Great Lakes Valley Conference play.

SIUE has recorded wins thus far against five non-conference teams.

The Lady Cougars have shutout four of their five opponents and have had 11 different players score goals.

Much of SIUE's success has been from the defense and play of goalies Kristen Covalt and Jessica Brown.

Covalt and Brown have split time in goal, recording six shutouts and 39 saves.

The Lady Cougars will begin GLVC play Friday when the team travels to Romeoville to take on Lewis University in a 12:30 p.m. matchup.

Lewis returns nine players from last year's team and key players who were injured during last season.

The Flyers finished eighth in the GLVC last season with a record of 3-6-2, 7-7-3 overall. Lewis has not made a conference tournament run since 1997 and has not fared well since they won the conference tournament in 1995.

SIUE is tied at 5-0 in non-conference play with GLVC opponents Northern Kentucky University and the University of Wisconsin-Parkside.

Head coach Brian Korbmesmeyer hopes to keep his team on the same path they have been running thus far.

He will continue to rely on his veteran players but will also look for his freshmen to back the team up.

Korbmesmeyer has had three players score two goals this year. Colleen Creamer, Sarah Decker and Leslie Henigman have led the Lady Cougar offensive charge. Creamer and Henigman lead the team with six points each.

The team's underclassmen have continued to come to the aid when help is needed from the bench. Eleven freshmen have added depth to Korbmesmeyer's squad this year.

"When I can go to the bench and bring in five or six freshmen and the play doesn't go down that much, it really helps everybody," Korbmesmeyer said. "The upperclassmen know they can take a break and not lose the lead. There's a lot of confidence on this team now. We're starting to build that early in the season and I hope it helps us later on."

Conference play starts for volleyball at home

AMY GRANT
SPORTS REPORTER

The volleyball team will begin facing opponents in the Great Lakes Valley Conference this weekend in its home opener.

The Lady Cougars will face the University of Missouri-St. Louis Friday and Quincy University Saturday in the Vadalabene Center.

With the team playing so many matches on the road this year, playing at home is a welcomed change.

"We've played 12 straight matches on the road, so we're anxious to come home," head coach Todd Gober said. "It's been a challenging early part of the season for us."

The UMSL Riverwomen are 6-6 overall and in third place in the GLVC.

The Riverwomen are 1-4 in their last five matches and lost their previous two in the Findlay Classic last week.

UMSL hitter Holly Zrout led the team in the tournament with 52 kills for a total of 136 on the season and 3.05 per game.

Quincy is considered the easier of the two teams, at 3-6 overall and last in the GLVC.

Quincy senior Eunique Reaves was recently named to the All-Tournament Team for the Fairview Inn Classic at Northwood University in Cedar Wood, Texas. She is second on the team with 52 digs, 1.58 per game.

Gober admitted that nerves might be a factor in the game, but thinks the team has enough experience to not let it affect them too much.

"It's our first home match in front of family and friends so I think they'll be a little nervous," Gober said. "We have enough senior leadership, though, so we'll be fine this weekend."

The Lady Cougars are currently working on improving their overall record of 5-7 this season.

Struggles the team has faced this year could be accredited to changes in the lineup. Gober decided on a lineup last weekend at the Findlay Classic and said the team can now work on specialized units and plays.

"It's been tough for the team because we've juggled the lineup almost every match this year," Gober said. "Now that we've got our lineup, practices should be more productive."

Cougar soccer is ready for GLVC

KUMAR BHOOSHAN
SPORTS EDITOR

With a 3-1-1 overall record, the Cougar soccer team will start Great Lakes Valley Conference play at 3 p.m. Friday.

SIUE is fourth in the GLVC with its record and no other teams starting conference play yet.

The Cougars are coming off a tough loss to Christian Brothers University and were scheduled to face Southwest Baptist University Tuesday.

Due to the tragedies occurring in New York and Washington, D.C., the match was canceled by request of the Bearcats.

The Cougars will travel to Romeoville Friday to face their first GLVC opponents, the Flyers of Lewis University.

Head coach Ed Huneke said it is going to be tough.

"Lewis is an outstanding team and always plays well," Huneke said. "This game gives us the chance to start our march to the conference championship and post-season."

Starting conference play, Huneke said GLVC games mean a little more.

"When you get into conference play it puts a lot more meaning into what you are doing," he said. "We've been playing the same teams for a while so there is a sort of rivalry that has developed."

The Flyers are on top of the GLVC with a perfect 6-0 record in non-conference play.

Huneke is playing with seven seniors and said it has really paid off.

"Our veterans have helped us come from behind and get wins," Huneke said. "We don't like to allow goals first, but when we have, we have shown a lot of resilience."

This will be the lone game for the Cougars this weekend.

Tennis looks to improve at home

MIKE MCGEHEE
SPORTS STRINGER

The Lady Cougars look to keep their winning streak going against Quincy University and the University of Missouri-St. Louis.

SIUE is coming off two big wins last weekend and sits atop the Great Lakes Valley Conference.

After the two matches, head coach Bill Logan said he was happy with what he saw.

"We played well overall," Logan said. "I think it makes the team confident to start the season with wins."

The Lady Cougars will look to remain perfect in the conference by playing Quincy University at 9 a.m. Saturday at home.

Quincy finished the regular season at 3-6 overall in conference play, finishing seventh in the GLVC.

After two matches last weekend the Lady Hawks' record stands at 1-1.

Later Saturday, the Lady Cougars will travel to St. Louis where they will match up against the UMSL Riverwomen.

Last year was the first year of tennis for the Riverwomen who came up winless through the 2000 season. The Riverwomen have already upped their record with one win this year.

Logan said he feels very confident about his team's play.

"I really think we will finish the weekend undefeated," Logan said. "We just have to be mentally tough."

Logan said this weekend's GLVC opponents have relatively the same casts as last year. So his team is ready.

Cross country travels to Normal

DAN WALDEN
SPORTS STRINGER

The SIUE cross country teams will travel to Illinois State University this weekend for the Illinois State University Invitational.

After racing some tough National Collegiate Athletic Association Division I competition last weekend, the Cougars will turn around and again run against some strong Division I teams.

Coach Darryl Frerker said he looks for his squad to compete at a higher level.

"When we play bigger schools it allows our runners to perform better," Frerker said. "It allows us to step up and compete to the level of great competition."

Other schools SIUE will face include Bradley University, University of Illinois, University of Wisconsin, University of Northern Iowa, SIU-Carbondale and St. Xavier University.

Frerker said he hopes his team will contend and that these races should help his squad prepare for the Great Lakes Valley Conference meet Oct. 20.

"This will be a scenario that will hopefully produce a lot of personal records for our squad," Frerker said. "We will compete against high levels of competition and will be running with a great number of runners."

Frerker said that he hopes the Lady Cougars continue to perform well and it will give the men a great opportunity to improve.

The meet will begin at 8:45 a.m. with the university men's 8,000-meter race, followed by the women's 5,000 at 9:30 a.m.

The meet will also feature a high school boys' five-kilometer run at 10:15 a.m. and a high school girls' 4-K race at 11 a.m.

There will also be a 5-K race open to the public.

Farrell sets pace for SIUE golf

AMY GRANT
SPORTS STRINGER

History was made as the women's golf team set four new SIUE records in the Cougar Classic tournament last weekend.

Sophomore Katie Farrell broke two individual records for the best 18 holes with a score of 78 and the best 36 holes with a score of 162.

As a team, the Lady Cougars shot an 18-hole record of 336 in the first round and went on to break the team's 36-hole record as well, finishing with a score of 679.

Farrell's 36-hole score of 162 landed her fourth in the tournament, which was held at the par 71 Woodlands Golf Club in Alton.

Kim Moore and Amy Wenning, both from the University of Indianapolis, finished first and third respectively in the tournament with scores of 157 and 159.

SIUE finished 32 strokes behind Indianapolis to take second place in the tournament.

With their second place finish, the Lady Cougars matched their best placing ever, tying their finish at the Greyhound Spring Classic in Indianapolis in April.

Brittany Auld rounded out the top for SIUE, finishing seventh with a score of 168.

Both Auld and Farrell were named to the All-Tournament Team.

Other Lady Cougars to finish in the tournament were Deanna Bock (86, 88), Kacy Gruenkemeyer (82, 95), Nonie Ehlke (88, 93), and Kristi Novak (93, 100).

SIUE will face the University of Southern Indiana Sunday and Monday in Indiana.

VOLLEYBALL

Amanda Hampton is leading the team with 386 sets and 113 digs.

Jennifer Trame is also expected to return to the lineup this weekend after suffering a quadricep injury. She is third on the team with 106 kills, 2.21 per game.

SIUE will face UMSL at 7 p.m. Friday and Quincy at 2 p.m.
Saturday.

Both games will be played in the Vadalabene Center.

TENNIS

Players to watch this weekend will be 2000 All-GLVC member Amber Stanley, who is undefeated in match play this season, serving her way to a record of 2-0, and Laura Zeeb and Keli Keener, who each also stand at 2-0 in match play.

The three players are coming off a hot weekend and will look to add to their success.

Carrying records of 1-1 are freshmen Chrissy Yingst and Allison Coates.

Both newcomers lost their first singles matches of the season against St. Joseph's College, but were able to regroup the next day, defeating their Lewis University opponents.

Undefeated in doubles matches are the team of Stanley and Zeeb, and the team of Reich and Yingst, each carrying a 2-0 record.

The team of Keener and Coates has split the matches this season and are 1-1 in conference play.

"Car Accident Victims Get A Crash Course On Their Rights!"

Madison County, IL.- A new report has recently been released that reveals information every car accident victim should have before they speak to anyone. Research shows that even a "fender bender" can cause pain, headaches, even arthritis. Many car accident victims worry more about their car than they do about their rights. If you have been involved in an auto accident listen to the 24-hour toll-free recorded message by calling 1-800-565-9783. The call is free and so is the report.
