LOGO ART COURTESY UNIVERSITY GRAPHICS

The new athletic logo will be unveiled at Midnight Madness. The logo is a collaborative effort to symbolize the fighting spirit of the university's athletic teams.

ALESTLE STAFF REPORT

SIUE will be changing the face of Cougar athletics Sunday night at Midnight Madness.

The Athletics Department will unveil the new athletics logo to the campus community at the event, which will also be the introduction of the men's and women's basketball teams.

"It is time for a new identity," Athletic Director Cindy Jones said. "We had players and coaches who desired a logo which was more alive and would create some energy and excitement."

Rather than the profile of a cougar, the new logo shows a full-length cougar, one paw raised and teeth bared in a roar.

Associate Director of Intercollegiate Athletics Nick Adams said the new logo has been in the works for some time.

"The idea came up about three years ago," Adams said. "About the beginning of the year, this school year, we began working really hard on it."

Adams said the athletic coaches chose the design from more than 30 submissions from an independent company and University Graphics. He added that variations of the logo will also be circulated on campus.

With the new logo will come changes to athletic equipment. Adams said the Athletic Department will not get rid of equipment, such as uniforms, with the old logo, but all new equipment will use the new design.

The biggest change will come in the summer. Adams said the Vadalabene Center floor is scheduled to be repainted and the job will incorporate the logo.

The first 500 students at Midnight Madness with a student identification will receive a T-shirt with the new logo. For more information on Midnight Madness, see page 12 of the sports section.

Free flu shots are offered on campus

Flu shots are available for students, staff and faculty.

MARY WITTE
 NEWS STRINGER

There is good news for SIUE students, faculty and staff suffering from flu-like symptoms this fall.

The Department of Central Management Services will provide free influenza immunizations at Health Services for all active full- and part-time employees, as well as all students.

According to SIUE head nurse Susan Grimes, the influenza season usually starts at the end of October and lasts until late March. The shot is recommended for anyone who wants to reduce the risk of catching the flu, particularly those living in dorms or other crowded conditions.

"It really benefits the students and helps to keep them in classes," Grimes said.

The immunizations will be available for students on a first-come, first-served basis. All workers enrolled in a state-sponsored health plan, including retirees, are eligible for the free flu shot during the months of October and November.

"There are probably nearly 100 strains of influenza out there," Grimes said.

Werner says SIUE making progress

DEREK SHELTON
 NEWS REPORTER

Citing "the spirit of cooperation across units at SIUE," Chancellor David Werner drew applause from most of the more than 400 people packed into the Meridian Ballroom Wednesday for his "State of the University" address.

Werner acknowledged that the university may "no doubt have 'silo' moments" where departments and offices fail to communicate with one another, but, overall, the chancellor said, the spirit of cooperation "is one of our greatest assets."

In his 40-minute talk in the Morris University Center, Werner cited efforts to move the school to the next level, a theme he began three years ago in his first address as chancellor.

Werner cited accomplishments in seven areas and noted that an eighth, fundraising and development, first

Def Comedy Jam proves funny despite low turnout

ANTHONY WATT

Around 400 people turned out to laugh with the comedians of the Russell Simmons Def Comedy Jam Saturday.

Lisa Ramsey, assistant director of Campus Life, coordinated the event.

"It was fantastic," she said. "The audience had a great time. The comedians were fun to work with. It went off without a hitch.

"I wish we could have had more people there," she added. "The people who didn't come missed a great show."

The University Center Board and the Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs office sponsored the Def Comedy Jam. The show cost $35,000.

Ramsey said 1,500 tickets were available at $15 for students and $20 for general admission.

She said it isn't clear yet how much money was lost because of the low turnout but the UCB will cover the loss.

The group has a yearly budget of $70,000.

Southern Illinois University President James E. Walker said there might be some tough choices down the road for higher education.

Walker spoke Tuesday during a review of the agenda for the board of trustees meeting Thursday in Carbondale.

He said there may be less state money available for universities in the next fiscal year.

The university's fiscal year starts July 1 and ends June 30 of the following year.

"We may be under a tighter budget because the General Assembly may have less money to dole out to various state agencies," SIU spokesman Scott Kaiser said. "It's kind of far in the future, but that is what the projections look like."

According to Kaiser, state revenue is not coming in at expected levels this fiscal year and Gov. George Ryan has asked some state agencies to curtail their spending, but it does not look like SIU will have to give back any money yet.

"The government projected this year's budget

18 months ahead of time," Kaiser said. "It is hard to predict downturns in the economy or the attacks on Sept. 11."

Walker said that once there is a better idea of how things are going to go, he will be spending a lot of time in Springfield trying to get SIU's fair share of money for next year.

He said priorities in university spending would include SIUE's Science Building and the Morris Library in Carbondale.

In other news, the board of trustees will discuss a pay adjustment for Walker at Thursday's meeting.

Walker's salary for the year was $225,000.

"He started Oct. 1," Kaiser said. "Traditionally all university employees have their salaries adjusted yearly."

It normally happens at the beginning of the fiscal year, but he (Walker) is on contract so the board has waited until now.

They've been reviewing his performance for the last year.

They will make a decision on his adjustment Thursday."

Express yourself, but be tolerant

Sometimes you just can't win.

I have been swamped with letters to the editor about religious beliefs or the lack of those beliefs. This is a very touchy subject and a number of the writers offered extreme views.

I'm not trying to be a moderator, rather, the voice of reason.

No one is going to win this battle. That has to be known from the start.

Beliefs are strong, especially when they come to religion. Throughout history people have died for their religious beliefs. So it has to be understood that it is unlikely people will change their thinking on this matter.

I'm Catholic. I went to a Catholic grade school and junior high school.

I'm not the most religious person, but I stick to a set of personal beliefs, most of which coincide with the Bible.

That does not mean that I think others' beliefs are invalid.

The people writing letters have a strict set of beliefs and they are very set. Conviction goes hand in hand with beliefs, particularly religion.

Strong beliefs are not the problem, though. What I see as the problem is some writers' unwillingness to accept others and their beliefs.

One area that seems to be a sticking point is homosexuality. Some students have said they believe homosexuality is deviant. This is an argument that has been played out on the editorial page before. Nothing was accomplished last time, and I don't think anything will be accomplished this time.

Students, faculty or staff, or anyone else for that matter, who are homosexual, are living their lives by their own set of beliefs. If they believe that homosexuality is moral, then they can live a happy life abiding by their morals.

If you believe that homosexuality is immoral, then don't be homosexual. Don't hang out with homosexuals. Don't have anything to do with homosexuals. That is your choice.

While all have a freedom to express themselves and voice their beliefs, sometimes there is just no reason to put people through grief.

If you think that voicing your opinions will accomplish something, then do it. But all these letters going back and forth about homosexuality and religion are not going to accomplish anything. We're wasting each other's time.

People are going to enjoy life. As long as people's enjoyment does not interfere with my rights or the way I live my life, then why should I complain?

People are living different lifestyles. Some choose to invite others to try that lifestyle. If you don't want to, then just ignore the message. It's a simple solution.

I feel like I'm in a fourth-grade argument when I read these letters. They offer deeply held viewpoints, but no one will listen to the other side. One letter responds to another and sooner or later I get a response to both letters.

Don't get me wrong. I like to get letters, but maybe we should put ourselves in someone else's shoes. Think about your own faults or beliefs before you throw stones at another.

Everyone has some sort of trait that another person might find offensive, or even immoral. There isn't a person on this planet who would be liked by everyone.

So, live your life. Enjoy your life. But don't tell other people they are wrong because they have different beliefs than you.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

Sean Michael Wallace's letter in the Oct. 9 issue of the Alestle reminded me that there is often confusion regarding the Baptist campus ministries at SIUE. Wallace referred to "the Baptist ministry on campus."

I want to clarify that there is more than one Baptist ministry on our campus and that the one I am affiliated with is not the one Wallace mentioned. I am often asked what the differences are between various Baptist denominations. I would like to offer a brief explanation of some of the differences.

The ministry I serve, The Shurtleff Baptist Campus Ministry, located in the SIUE Religious Center, is sponsored by congregations in Illinois and Missouri that belong to the American Baptist Churches, USA.

The American Baptist denomination was originally known as the Northern Baptist Convention. We were established in the 1850s when we split with Baptists in the South over the issue of slavery. The Baptist mission board at that time, which operated in Philadelphia, took a stand against slavery by refusing to appoint slaveholders as missionaries. In response to that action, Baptists in the Southern states formed their own mission board, which brought about the birth of the Southern Baptist Convention.

American Baptist churches are located all over the United States. We celebrate racial, ethnic and cultural diversity and the full partnership of men and women in all aspects of the church, including the ordained ministry.

Well-known American Baptists include Martin Luther King Jr., Harry Emerson Fosdick, Walter Rauschenbusch, Tony Campolo, John D. Rockefeller Sr., John and Sally Leland, Roger Williams, Adoniram Judson and John Mason Peck, founder of Shurtleff College, now the campus of the SIUE Dental School, and for whom Peck Hall is named.

The Shurtleff Baptist Campus Ministry was one of the founding ministries of the Religious Center. We are committed to serving the entire SIUE community in a spirit of Christian love, friendship and ecumenism.

I hope this is helpful to those who wonder about variations among Baptist groups in general and Baptist campus ministry programs at SIUE in particular.

Dear Editor:

I just wanted to take a minute to do a little complaining about parking services.

This year the Student Fitness Center lot became a red lot. In the past years I have always purchased the $100 SFC sticker because, as an engineering student, it was close to the Engineering Building and also the Student Fitness Center, which I use on an almost daily basis. This year when the changes were made, I entered the lottery to get green tag for the lot next to the Engineering Building, but my name was not pulled.

I understand the purpose of the lottery and, though disappointed, did not complain when I was not pulled. So I purchased a red lot sticker like 80 percent of the SIUE population.

Now, I go to the gym to work out and the entire lot is full. If you are lucky, you can get a spot in the lot across the road. First-come first-served, that's fair, but then I have the pleasure of walking by the lot nearest to the Engineering Building. The west half of this lot is a parking paradise. Open spots everywhere. I have yet to see a day when Lot E is full.

Could there not have been more names pulled in the lottery? Was someone too lazy to count how many spots there really were?

Another change was the increase in parking ticket fines. I'm sure that all the money goes to good causes like buying a new 4x4 Dodge Dakota, that gets 12 miles to the gallon on a good day, for the parking attendants to tool around the lots in. But really, weren't the old fines enough?

Does anyone realize the average student makes around $4 an hour after taxes? So that means, if you are running late for class and park your car in a lot you don't have a tag for, you will get a ticket that will take you roughly eight hours or, at 20 hours per week, three days to pay for.

Are we students or slaves to parking services?

Ryan Freeman
Mechanical Engineering senior

Student of the week

Cory Hart

BROOKE HEITZ
ASSISTANT NEWS EDITOR

Cory Hart, student of the week, is a construction management major and sophomore at SIUE.

The decision to move away from home and come to SIUE was easy for Hart.

"I came here because I really liked the school," he said.

Hart calls Bluff Hall his home for the school year but is from Cornell, a small town three hours north of Edwardsville.

"My hometown is really small. It has about 500 people in it," Hart said. "I live a couple miles out of town in the country where my family and I have some cattle."

During the summer, Hart works in a cabinet shop and hopes to eventually put his degree to good work.

"I want to go into commercial building rather than residential," Hart said. "It seems more interesting and difficult than residential building."

Hart said he likes his construction class more than his elective music class that he has to take as a general education requirement.

"I'll do better when I get into my major classes and it will be more appealing to me than taking my general education classes," he said.

For fun, Hart finds plenty to do on the campus and even stays many of the weekends.

"I go to the Vadalabene Center and play basketball and I ride my bike," he said. "We just do whatever sounds appealing at the moment, like play a football game or something just to stay in shape."

Hart added a little advice for the freshmen.

"Stay on campus for at least a little while. That's the only way you get to meet people," he said. "If you go off campus, you might not meet as many people. Last year I lived in Woodland (Hall) and it's really the only way you meet people when living in the residence halls."

ROTC gets new exercise field

KENT HIGHSMITH
NEWS STRINGER

SIUE ROTC cadets can test their mettle on the program's new exercise field.

The field was completed in August and has 12 activities including tree-to-tree rope swinging and climbing a 12-foot wall.

"The course helps build teamwork and self-confidence," Lt. Col. Joel Hillison said.

The activities also help build a sense of trust between the cadets. Activities like the trust fall, in which cadets fall backward and their partners stand behind them and catch them, help accomplish this goal.

"They have to trust each other to know that they will be caught," Hillison said.

The field should eventually be available for recreational purposes or classes doing field work.

"We are still working out the details of the other uses," Associate Director of Campus Recreation, Ann Schonlau said.

The project was funded by the Excellence in Undergraduate Education Grant received by SIUE. The cooperative project between the ROTC program and campus recreation was completed in August at an estimated total cost of $4,000.

integral to our operation and to prepare for a major campaign as we move closer to SIUE's 50th anniversary year in 2006-2007."

The chancellor was joined on stage by Illinois Sens. Evelyn Bowles, James Clayborne and Vince Demuzio as well as several state representatives from the area.

Werner expressed his gratitude to state officials, particularly Gov. George Ryan, for increasing the university's budget by 6.1 percent, which allowed for salary raises and several new programs, such as the criminal justice bachelor degree and a master's degree in computer science.

He said the only financial disappointment was the failure to get money to remodel the 35-year-old Science Building.

He added that he expects renovation of the building to be "near the top of the priority list for the Illinois Board of Higher Education next year."

"Over the last year we have made steps, some large, some small, in moving SIUE to the next level, in making Edwardsville synonymous with academic excellence, in making this a great place for students to learn and live," Werner said.

Noting the tragedy of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, Werner said, "let us resolve to continue our academic progress this year, moving into the year 2002 proud of our accomplishments, confident of our future and knowing that the fruit of our labor will be the ability to say again next fall, 'Now is the best time ever to be a student at SIUE.'"

Students can apply for research dollars

MARY WITTE
NEWS STRINGER

The Undergraduate Research Academy is accepting student applications for money to support senior assignments and related projects.

All juniors and seniors are eligible to apply for the benefit. However, seniors at least one year away from graduation are usually favored for the award.

Benefits include special student assistance in research, writing, presenting and publishing. Checks of $600 are available for approximately 25 students at the university. According to Douglas Eder, director of undergraduate assessment and program review, the state-funded money goes directly to the students' pockets so they can use it however they please.

Up to $800 is available in support of student research and scholarly activity, and an additional $400 is available for equipment, supplies or to support conference travel to present a published paper by a student scholar.

The assistance is made possible by the URA, an honors program established more than 15 years ago, to encourage, support and recognize excellence in undergraduate research.

"In the past we've seen some very creative proposals to the URA," Eder said.

He also said there are many different forms of talents among students, ranging from artistic dancers to biologists.

"We accept the fact that not every honors student has a 3.9 GPA," Eder said. "For example, look at Olympian Jackie-Joyner Kersee. Although her ACT scores were probably not the greatest ever, she was truly a remarkable person. At the URA, we wish to reward other forms of genius."

A minimum grade point average of 2.3 is required for interested students. Students are also required to submit a proposal which determines whether they earn an interview for the award.

"We are looking for persistence, creativity, a good proposal and a reasonable GPA," Eder said.

Students who wish to graduate in December are encouraged to apply. The support for these students, as well as others who plan to graduate at a later date, begins the first day of the spring semester.

The deadline for student applications is noon on Nov. 28, but students should contact the URA as soon as possible to communicate proposal ideas.

Inquiries can be directed to Eder at 650-2640, deder@siue.edu, or Cindy Scarsdale at 650-3647.

More information is available online at www.siue.edu/~deder/assess/index.html.

"But the flu shot will protect against the three most prominent strains of flu for the season."

Protection from the flu virus usually develops two weeks after getting the shot and can last up to a year.

"It's a good idea to get immunized each year because the flu virus changes often," Grimes said.

Normally there is a $15 expense for the immunization, but employees and retirees interested in the opportunity for flu relief can present their health insurance cards to receive the complimentary flu shot.

Dependents on the state health plan are not eligible for the free flu vaccine. SIUE Health Services is located in the basement of Rendleman Hall.

"It dawned on me that after Sept. 11 people might not have wanted to see comedy yet. I would have thought it would be the opposite."

She also said Southern Illinois University Carbondale had its Homecoming at the same time as the Def Comedy Jam and that the Def Comedy Jam did not have as much diverse interest as Nelly did.

"Def Comedy largely drew an African-American audience," she said. "When Nelly was here, two-thirds of the audience was Caucasian."

Originally, the band Smashmouth was going to perform but canceled the tour that included SIUE.

Ramsey said the UCB also tried to schedule Alicia Keys but Keys couldn't make a decision in time because of her schedule and had to pass.

Ramsey said covering the loss from the Def Comedy Jam should not affect any other UCB programs planned for this year and that no major programs are scheduled for the spring because she will be on maternity leave.

The history of Halloween

ELIZABETH A. LEHNERER
LIFESTYLES STRINGER

Halloween, in the beginning, was an Irish tradition to honor the Druid harvest for Samhain, the god of the dead. In the year A.D. 800, Christians took over the Celtic religion and declared Nov. 1 All Hallows or All Saints Day to celebrate martyrs and saints. All Hallows Eve, in the Celtic calendar, is also a sign of the end of summer.

All Hallows Eve became Halloween when thousands of Irish fled their homeland during the 18th and 19th centuries and brought their traditions with them to America.

Halloween is celebrated all over the world, but in different ways and on different days. Ireland, Scotland and Wales still celebrate Halloween as it was meant to be, as a religious holiday.

England celebrates Guy Fawkes Day, which is similar to Halloween. Guy Fawkes was convicted for trying to blow up the House of Parliament in England in 1605 and was hanged on Nov. 5. In England Nov. 4 is known as Mischief Night and children are allowed to play pranks on adults.

Japan's version is called Bon Festival. It consists of three days of remembering loved ones and past ancestors.

Mexico celebrates El Dia de Los Muertos. Its English translation is the Day of the Dead. Mexican families decorate graves and go to religious ceremonies.

Halloween is a time for free candy and dressing up, but it is also a time to remember those ghosts that might be right behind you.

ELIZABETH A. LEHNERER

Haunted houses are synonymous with Halloween, and this year Halloween Productions Inc. is not holding back any of its zombies, ghosts and scary villains.

HPI has clients all over the world and was hired by Anheuser Busch this year for its Sea World and Busch Gardens attractions.

The first of HPI's haunts is The Darkness in St. Louis. The Old Welsh Factory has been turned into a 35,000-square-foot tour of terror that includes a haunted mansion, a spooky forest and the city of lost souls.

If The Darkness is not enough, step onto the ship of screams in the Terrortanic 3-D maze. The Darkness is $13.50 for adults and an additional charge for Terrortanic is $4. The attractions are open from 7 to 11 p.m. on weekdays and 6:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. on weekends through Oct. 31. Parking is $2. The Darkness is located in the Old Welsh Factory at 1535 S. Eighth St. next to the Old Soulard Market.

Screamworld Halloween Theme Park is a carnival and scare fest in one. Screamworld contains seven haunted attractions and a full carnival with games and rides that should not be missed.

The newest attraction is the Area 51 Dark Ride. Two people board a ride that takes them through a pitch-black ride of fright.

Also new is Vincent Price's Hollywood Horror Museum containing the nation's largest collection of Hollywood characters.

For a real scare, enter the all-new 'Return of the Dead Haunted Mansion. Visitors are trapped inside the mansion with a horde of zombies out to get them. The park also includes Dominion of the Vampire Haunted Maze, Curse of the Mummy in 3-D and an all-new, three-times longer haunted hayride. A new entrance system makes lines virtually non-existent for the attractions.

Screamworld is $14.50 for adults and opens at 6:30 p.m. Thursday through Sunday. The attraction is located in Fenton, Mo., on the corner of Springdale and 13th Streets. Admission for both Screamworld and The Darkness can be purchased for $20. For additional information visit www.scarefest.com.

For the extreme fun seeker, there is Six Flags St. Louis. Six Flags is celebrating its 14th annual Fright Fest with its Mausoleum of Terror and Brutal Planet attractions. Brutal Planet is a techno-terror, sci-fi haunted house with high-tech special effects.

Mausoleum of Terror contains a 12-room maze with an insane asylum, a creepy alien invasion and a haven for vampires. Six Flags is open on weekends only, beginning at 7 p.m. Friday and 11 a.m. Saturday and Sunday. Admission to the park is $38.99 plus tax, $8 for parking, and the haunted houses are an additional charge. The park is located off Interstate 44 in Eureka, Mo. For more information, visit www.sixflags.com:

For the nature enthusiasts, Rotary Park, 2577 W. Meyer Road, Wentzville, Mo., offers Molly Crenshaw's Haunted Forest. Molly Crenshaw, convicted of being a witch by her townspeople, was murdered in the 1800s. According to the story, she set a curse on the heads of the townspeople and their descendants.

The 45-minute tour runs at 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday nights for $12. For more about Molly Crenshaw, head to www.mollycrenshaw.com.

D&H Haunted Hayride offers woods, tunnels and minibals. Off Missouri Highway O between Catawissa and Obertsville, the 30-minute ride runs through Oct. 27 and is $10 per person with group rates available. Information can be found at www.exus.cc/hayride.

The historic Lemp Mansion is a haunted house that is open year round. Located at 3322 DeMenil Place in St. Louis, the mansion is said to be haunted by its former owners. The Lemp family was America's first lager beer brewers, but along with fortune came tragedy. Almost every member of the immediate family committed suicide. It is said the spirits of the family still lurk in the house.

Ghost stories and ghost hunting lessons are held from 7 to 9 p.m. on Mondays for $10. Special tours with a concentration on the spirit world will be held at 8, 10 p.m. and midnight Oct. 29 and 30. Reservations are required. Visit the house on the Web at www.lempmansion.com.

If ghosts and haunted houses fail to appeal to you, try Eckert's Country Store and Farm in Millstadt, Belleville or Afton. The Belleville location has pumpkin and apple picking along with a wide variety of squash, gourds and Italian corn.

The country store sells homemade jams, jellies, baked goods and gifts along with homemade custard. For directions, descriptions of each location and special holiday information, go to www.eckerts.com.

The Great Godfrey Corn Maze, near Glazebrook Park and 1 Stamper Lane in Godfrey, puts a patriotic turn on the Halloween maze. The maze, cut into seven acres of a cornfield, is in the shape of the American Bald Eagle. The maze opens at 4 p.m. Friday and will last until dusk. Weekend hours are from 10 a.m. Saturday and 1 p.m. Friday until dusk. Admission is $6.

"The new 'Darkness' will send you on a journey so life-like, you'd only expect to see something similar in a Hollywood movie."

'Raisin' enjoys successful opening

KAREN M. JOHNSON
CHIEF COPY EDITOR

Extra seats accommodated 405 people who sat riveted in SIUE's Katherine Dunham Theatre for more than three hours as the saga of Walter Lee Younger and his family unfolded.

"A Raisin in the Sun," a drama by Lorraine Hansberry, opened Friday to a sold-out audience. Every member of the audience was treated to the dynamic yarn that reaches into the souls of black folk.

The gods must surely have lent their hands to Director Lisa Colbert Bandele. Her cast and crew were so skillfully assembled that Mrs. Hansberry herself would have been proud.

Every member of the cast seemed to be a stellar performer in a multi-faceted unit. Each character fought to keep an individual dream alive and each actor, whether newcomer or veteran, brought the story to the audience in living color.

Olivia N. Neal was superb as Ruth Younger, who, like any wife and mother, wants a safe and secure home for her family. She dreams of having a real house, not an apartment in the projects of Chicago's Southside, where her son, Travis, could grow and play. She sees her husband, Walter, become restless and distant, and she wants desperately to quiet him and return to the intimacy they once shared.

Wendy Renee Greenwood brought forth the essence of Beneatha Younger, who witnesses the miracle of medicine when a childhood playmate has a sledding accident and is patched up by a surgeon. That incident gives her the inspiration to pursue a career in medicine.

Fannie Lebby gave an outstanding performance of Lena Younger, the matriarch of the family, who wants to buy a home for the family with a "little patch of dirt" where she can plant a garden. Lena gives all she can to her children with a loving but firm hand. She has definite plans for the future and how she will contribute to it with money she receives from her deceased husband's life insurance policy.

Jack J. Gipson poured his heart into his stupendous portrayal of Walter Younger. One could feel Gipson's anguish as Younger sees the dream of being an entrepreneur outside his grasp. Walter wants, no, needs to take his rightful place as head of household. It means replacing his mother who had always been the family's backbone. He has to prove himself to himself and his sister, son, wife and mother. He struggles with moving his family into an all-white neighborhood where they will not be welcome. When he musters the courage to decide for all of them, he shows his mother that raising her son was not in vain.

The audience saw excellent performances by accomplished actors Sean Walton and Brad Brefeld as Joseph Asagai and Karl Linder, respectively, as well as by novices Theodore Terrell Spencer as Travis and Venessa A. Brown as the meddling neighbor, Mrs. Johnson.

The production staff provided the finishing touch with set design by James R. Dorethy and crew that created an authentic housing project with little natural light and water-stained walls dingy with the smoke and grime of previous occupants.

Costume designer Gregory Jerome Horton dressed the cast in post-World War II clothing right down to Lena and Ruth Younger's not-so-flesh-colored stockings.

Sound designers Raymond Kent and Bandele set the mood with music by Mahalia Jackson and Dinah Washington.

"A Raisin in the Sun" will run until Sunday. Nile Hamer, newcomer to stage performance, and Spencer alternate playing the part of Travis.

Lady Cougars set for GLVC tournament

KUMAR BHOOSHAN
SPORTS EDITOR

The regular season is over and it's time for the most important matches of the season to start for Lady Cougar tennis.

SIUE will travel to Indianapolis with a No. 3 seed in the Great Lakes Valley Conference Championship Friday and Saturday.

The Lady Cougars finished third in the GLVC with a record of 7-2.

The only two losses came at the hands of the No. 1 and No. 2 seeded teams in the conference, Northern Kentucky University and the University of Southern Indiana.

The Lady Cougars will face No. 6 Quincy University, who finished fourth with a 5-4 conference record, tying with Lewis University and the University of Indianapolis.

Coach Bill Logan said his team is confident with its matchup with Quincy and is ready for the tournament.

"I hate to look ahead, but we are feeling pretty good about Quincy and are ready for a matchup against Southern Indiana," Logan said.

Lewis received a No. 4 ranking and Indianapolis received a No. 5 ranking.

In their lone matchup of the year, the Lady Cougars claimed a convincing win over the Quincy Lady Hawks 7-2.

SIUE will bring three doubles teams to the tournament with all of the teams totaling better than .500 records.

The Lady Cougars will be led by the team of Coryn Reich and Chrissy Yingst which has served its way to an 8-1 conference record this year.

The team of Amber Stanley and Laura Zeeb as well as the team of Allison Coates and Keli Keener recorded a 7-2 GLVC record.

In singles action, the Lady Cougars will look to their No. 1 singles player, Stanley, who finished with a conference record of 6-3.

"Amber is really going to have a tough road," Logan said. "She will play the best player in our conference from Northern Kentucky, but I'm pretty confident she'll do well."

The best Lady Cougar singles record went to Zeeb, who served her way to an 8-1 record in 2001.

Keener finished the regular season with a 7-2 conference record.

Northern Kentucky will go in as the favorite for the third year in a row.

Logan said regardless of the outcome he is really proud of his players.

"Our team has worked really hard," Logan said. "No matter what happens I'm proud of them.

The Lady Norse will try to win their third GLVC championship in a row, and will go into the tournament with a perfect 9-0 record.

Lady Cougars soccer to face No.1

KELI KEENER
SPORTS STRINGER

The members of the Lady Cougar soccer team will have their work cut out for them this weekend.

SIUE is 9-1-1 overall and holds a 4-1-1 record in the Great Lakes Valley Conference.

SIUE is ranked seventh in the Great Lakes Region, according to the National Soccer Coaches Association of America.

The Lady Cougars have outscored their opponents 31-6 through 11 games.

SIUE nabbed two conference victories last weekend at Ralph Korte Stadium. The Lady Cougars took an 11-1 victory over the Panthers of Kentucky Wesleyan College Friday. On Sunday, the Cougars played host to Bellarmine University. SIUE edged the Knights early 1-0.

The Lady Cougars have been preparing this week to face their most challenging opponent of the season on Friday.

SIUE will travel to Highland Heights, Ky., to take on the Lady Norse of the University of Northern Kentucky in a 5:30 p.m. matchup. NKU is ranked No. 1 in the nation.

Now at 6-0 in the conference and 12-0 overall, Northern Kentucky jumped to the No. 1 spot after the University of California at San Diego lost at San Francisco State University Friday.

The last team to defeat NKU in a regular season game was the University of Missouri Rolla, which posted a 5-3 win on Aug. 27, 2000.

The Lady Norse own three straight GLVC championships. Northern Kentucky has advanced to the National Collegiate Athletics Association Division II Final Four the past two years, and finished runner-up last season to UC San Diego, who defeated the Norse 2-1 in last year's national championship game in Miami Shores, Fla.

Midnight Madness to open basketball season

KUMAR BHOOSHAN
SPORTS EDITOR

Midnight Madness will sweep through the Vadalabene Center Sunday night to kick off the the men's and women's basketball seasons.

This is the second year Midnight Madness has been used to introduce the SIUE basketball teams to the Cougar fans and give students opportunities to win money.

Throughout the night there will be chances for four students to win $10,000 each.

Four random students will be selected and will choose one of four options to win.

The first choice is making three quarter-court shots and the second is to make two halfcourt shots. The third will give a student a choice of where they want to shoot then they must go to the opposite basket and make the same shot. The fourth choice will give a student the opportunity to make a layup, a freethrow, a halfcourt shot and a three-pointer in 20 seconds.

After one selection is made, the next person cannot choose that one.

Associate Director of Athletics Nick Adams said these are not impossible opportunities.

"These shots aren't easy," Adams said. "But they are definitely possible."

One student will have the chance to get free tuition for a semester by competing in a round by round contest against other students.

"The contest is simple," Adams said. "If you make the shot, you advance. If you miss, you're out."

Basketball fans who don't get the chance to win money will not go home empty handed.

Free "Red Zone" T-shirts with the new SIUE athletics logo will be handed out.

"I'm pretty excited about unveiling the new logo," Adams said. "Each shirt will have the logo on them and they're pretty sharp."

The event starts at 11 p.m., followed by a one-hour practice at midnight to kick off the first day of practice for both teams.

Adams said last year there were about 500 students in attendance and he hopes to get an even better turnout this year.

BETH KRUZAN/ALESTLE

Sophomore Erin Gusewelle (16) has scored two goals and recorded two assists for the Lady Cougars.

The men's and women's cross country teams will have a break from competition this weekend, but practices will not be easy.

Both teams will be gearing up for the 2001 Great Lakes Valley Conference Championships.

"We'll be ready," freshman standout Mary Witte said. "Hopefully we will all be in a tight pack when the race comes. We are going to bring down our miles and tapering for this meet."

The men's team is also confident and ready for the race, but needs to get Nick Campbell at 100 percent.

Campbell sprained his ankle during a practice before the Panther Open on Sept. 21.

"We should run pretty well," sophomore Tyler Krauss said. "We need to get Nick Campbell healthy. We definitely have the talent to run well."

The distances for the upcoming race will increase to 6,000 meters for the women and 10,000 meters for the men.

Witte said this is not a disadvantage because all the teams running have to adjust.

"Every team has to deal with the increase," Witte said. "Our team has a lot of strength so we will still be competitive."

Krauss said the change from 8,000 to 10,000 on the men's side will only help the team.

"We are a distance-oriented team," Krauss said. "I think the increase will benefit our team more."

Both teams will continue to practice hard through this week before starting to bring their miles down.

"This week we have to stay focused on practicing hard," Witte said. "We also have to get ready to race mentally. We all need to be getting sleep and doing the right things."

The GLVC Championships will take place in Louisville, Ky., at Bellarmine University.

Cougar soccer squares off against two GLVC teams

The SIUE men's soccer team will try for two more Great Lakes Valley Conference wins this weekend.

The Cougars will take to the road and go head-to-head against Northern Kentucky University and the University of Indianapolis.

Northern Kentucky is sitting under SIUE in the GLVC standings with a record of 4-2-0.

This will be the first game on the road for the Cougars since Sept. 26 when SIUE defeated Lincoln University 7-2 in Jefferson City, Mo.

The match against Northern Kentucky will begin at 8 p.m. on the campus of NKU in Highland Heights, Ky.

The Cougars will then travel to Indianapolis to take on the University of Indianapolis Greyhounds.

The Greyhounds are tied with NKU at 4-2-0 in the GLVC.

The game between SIUE and Indianapolis will get under way at 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

The Cougars have been experiencing a successful season.

Due to a very productive offense, a solid defense and a lot of depth, the Cougars are seeing results they haven't seen for a couple years.

"We are having a very good season so far," senior Brian Douglas said. "We haven't had a record like this at this part of the season since my freshman year."

The Cougars have a roster that includes 15 upperclassmen, seven seniors and eight juniors.

"We have a lot of talent and a great deal of depth on our team," Douglas said.

The Cougars will have two more GLVC matches after this weekend before the GLVC tournament starts.

The dates and places of the tournament will be announced at a later date.

Volleyball set to play tough non-conference opponents

AMY GRANT
SPORTS REPORTER

Volleyball fans can expect plenty of action this weekend as the Lady Cougars will play host to the two-day Cougar Classic.

SIUE will face the University of Charleston in its first match Friday night. Charleston is undefeated in seven West Virginia Intercollegiate Athletic Conference matches and remains in first place.

Outside hitters Jenny Fromherz and Nicole Lafollette strengthen Charleston defensively. Fromherz is leading the conference with 4.15 digs per game and Lafollette is first in the conference with 131 blocks.

The Charleston team is coming off of a 3-1 defeat of West Virginia Wesleyan College Friday.

The Lady Cougars return to the court Saturday in a day match against Wheeling Jesuit.

Wheeling Jesuit is fourth in the WVIAC with a conference record of 4-1.

The team has an impressive overall record of 20-3, which ranks them 10th in the Great Lakes Region.

"Wheeling Jesuit has been ranked 10th in our region," head coach Todd Gober said. "So just looking at the rankings, they will be the tougher of the two teams to beat this weekend."

As a team, Wheeling Jesuit is first in the WVIAC standings in three categories.

The team is averaging 15.27 kills per game, 13.20 assists per game, and 2.52 blocks per game.

Individually, Meredith Neff is leading the team, as well as the conference, with 12.4 assists per game.

Neff has 744 assists in 60 games this season.

The Lady Cougars were 6-3 against Great Lakes Valley Conference opponents before their match against the University of Southern Indiana Wednesday night.

Results of that game will be published Tuesday.

Southern Indiana, with a 7-2 conference record, had to win the match in order to maintain sole possession of first place in the GLVC Green Division.

Gober said the key in the match against the Screaming Eagles would be defense and ball control.

"If we can dig the ball and pass the ball in system, I think we'll be tough to beat," Gober said.

The team can look to setter Amanda Hampton for help in that area.

Hampton is leading the team in both digs and assists with 197 and 757 respectively.

SIUE will take on Charleston at 7 p.m. Friday and Wheeling Jesuit at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Both matches will take place at the Vadalabene Center.

NKU's Betsy Moore was named GLVC Player of the Week. Moore had a goal and five assists to help the Lady Norse remain undefeated last weekend.

She had a goal and an assist in the 3-0 win over the University of Wisconsin-Parkside and tied her own school record with four assists against Lewis University on Sunday when the Lady Norse recorded an 8-0 shutout.

Junior forward Bessie Black is tops in the conference for Northern Kentucky in goals with 14 and assists with 13.

She averages one goal per game.

NKU has five other players who rank in the top 11 in scoring in the conference.

On the defensive end for the Lady Norse, junior goalkeeper

Megan Zalla ranks first with a 0.34 goals against average.

She has been splitting time in the goal with senior Jessica Jenson, who has just three goals against.

SIUE will move on to the University of Indianapolis for a noon matchup Sunday.

The Indianapolis Greyhounds are ranked fourth in the NCAA Division II Great Lakes Region.

Greyhound senior Laura Gregory leads the team with eight goals.

Indianapolis lost to the University of Wisconsin-Parkside 2-3 on Sunday and will play Lewis University on Friday before hosting SIUE.

The Greyhounds are 4-2 in the conference and 9-2 overall.
